ASSANGE TORTURED IN LONDON JAIL CELL?

- WikiLeaks whistleblower is being denied legal and basic humanitarian rights

By S.T. Patrick

For two weeks, supporters and friends of WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange have been dumbfounded by what happened at the whistleblower's U.S. extradition hearing in a London courtroom.

"Did this happen in the home of the Magna Carta?" asked Australian filmmaker John Pilger, referring to Britain's chief constitutional document, a symbol of global liberty that some still believe is the most important constitutional document of all time. Pilger later answered his own question. "Yes, but who knew?"

The Assange extradition trial went off almost unnoticed until it had concluded. The BBC and other channels blacked it out, refusing to air the trial that Pilger likened to a "newsreel of a show trial in [Joseph] Stalin's Russia." By all accounts of the minimal eyewitnesses present, Vanessa Baraitser, a magistrate, because the court apparently didn't see the trial as inconclusive enough to use an actual judge, sneered at Assange, speaking to him with arrogance and condescension.

When Assange or his representation spoke, Baraitser seemed bored and disinterested, the outcome predetermined. When the prosecution presented its case, continuously aided by a U.S. representative who repeatedly took notes to the prosecutor as the hearing progressed, the magistrate livened up, listening intently to the prosecution's case.

As if this hearing wasn't already beset by a media blackout, Baraitser assigned the next hearing to a remote locale at Woolwich, which adjoins

A PERSONAL MESSAGE FROM THE EDITOR

Deep State Mad Trump Won't Lie for Them

In a lengthy article for The Atlantic magazine published late last month that was titled “Trump’s Character a Threat to Foreign Policy,” Eliot Cohen—one of the leading voices for neoconservatism—whined that Donald Trump lacks the “character, values, and experience to be president” and, as a result, is trashing decades of allegedly well-planned and enacted U.S. foreign policy.

Ironic that this magazine, which, in its founding statement claimed to be focused on “Freedom, national progress, and honor, whether public or private,” would turn to an individual like Cohen to critique the president. But he is what many consider to be one of the more prominent faces behind the Deep State—that highly paid, loud, chattering class of unelected Beltway insiders and prominent “intellectuals,” who have, for the past seven decades, been the loudest cheerleaders for every foolish intervention that America has been involved in, from Vietnam to Afghanistan to Iraq to Libya to Syria and beyond.

Of course, Cohen didn’t go straight at the president’s policy decisions. Instead, he took shots at Trump’s “character,” which, to be fair, is kind of low-hanging fruit. It’s not like anyone with a straight face is defending the moral qualities of the president, with his history of marital infidelity and financial profiteering. We do believe Trump loves this country.

Cohen, however, like so many in the Washington establishment, has no shame. After all, he is just one of many who, themselves, have had no problems lying to the American people when it comes to promoting wars that are not in the best interests of the United States.

Perhaps Cohen has forgotten that, in the run-up to Iraq War II, he was a featured name on the Committee for the Liberation of Iraq, pressing President George W. Bush to invade that country. But now that it has been accepted that Iraq intervention is the worst strategic disaster in American history, which has cost, by some estimates, the lives of a million Iraqis, does Cohen admit his role in selling the war? Does he hide his face in shame? Of course not. Ever the chickenhawk, Cohen concedes that Iraq War II was a mistake, but rather than accept responsibility for his own spirited and flawed advocacy of the war, he blames “poor intelligence”—despite the fact that many in U.S. intelligence as well as politicians on both the left and the right at the time were warning him that it would be a catastrophic blunder to invade that Mideast country.

Perhaps the thing that bothers Cohen so much about Trump is not the fact that Trump often does not tell the whole truth but that Trump, with his plain talk, often inadvertently pulls the curtain back to reveal the real goals of the Deep State. For example, everyone knows, but few in the Establishment would concede, that financial profit is a primary concern of those planning wars. Thus, the vast majority of wars are inevitably fought for control of natural resources.

For Deep State actors like Cohen, though, they would much prefer a malleable president who is willing to lie to the American people and sell lofty goals like “democracy” and “freedom” as reasons for going to war. They do not like it when presidents tell the truth, as did President Trump when he admitted that the U.S. military is in northern Syria to secure the oil for America, plain and simple.

The Deep State wants us all to believe that U.S. forces were stationed in northern Syria simply to protect the oilfields for the benefit of the Kurdish people. This way, all of those wonderful Kurds we had just stabbed in the back would be bathing in money, the well-deserved recipients of the revenue stream that now is, certainly, being sent directly to them.

Why does a large segment of the population not know the truth about our real reasons for being in northern Syria? Why do people believe that U.S. troops secured those oil fields for the Kurds? Because lap-dog establishment news outlets like “Vox” say so. Rather than figure it out for themselves, “Vox” just enthusiastically repeated what they had been told in a press release from the Pentagon. (And we all know that the Pentagon would never lie.)

News You May Have Missed

Capping Immigration

“CNSNews” reported on Nov. 4: “Not one refugee has arrived in the United States since fiscal year 2020 began 35 days ago, a State Department spokesperson confirmed on Monday, adding that the last time there had been an ‘extended pause’ in admissions was in November 2001.” The Trump administration rolled out the “pause” following reports that unprecedented numbers of illegal immigrants had been attempting to cross the U.S. border with Mexico this year. As a result, President Donald Trump has capped the number of refugees allowed into the U.S. at 18,000, the lowest number since the program was started in 1980.

Sanctuary Rollback

A new policy rolled out last year that bars Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents from accessing jails in Montgomery County, Md. was at least partially rolled back earlier in November following the arrests of multiple illegal aliens on charges of rape or sexual abuse, reports Fox News. In the course of only two months, nine illegal immigrants have been charged with sexual assault, prompting the county executive’s office to reevaluate the “sanctuary” policy and concede that it had received “numerous phone calls as well as emails” from local citizens seeking the change.

Legal Immigrants Support E-Verify

The mainstream media would like American taxpayers to believe that most Hispanics in the U.S. are okay with illegal immigrants breaking the law. It turns out, they’re wrong. According to a recent report by news and commentary website “The Daily Caller,” a sizable majority of Hispanic voters in Florida support mandatory E-Verify, which bans employers from hiring illegal aliens, and Gov. Ron DeSantis’s announcement outlawing sanctuary cities in his state. A new poll by the University of Florida found that 82% of Hispanics approve of DeSantis while only 7% disapprove.

Massive Media Layoffs

According to reports, 7,200 people have lost their jobs so far in 2019 in a massive media lay-off landslide. In October alone, layoffs hit left-wing news outlets Spin, ThinkProgress, Rooster Teeth, and others, according to a tally by news website “Business Insider.” The latest cuts followed layoff announcements at BuzzFeed, Verizon, Vice Media, McClatchy, Disney, and Gannett. By comparison, it’s estimated that some 5,000 media jobs were eliminated from 2014 to 2017.

Whistleblowers

The mainstream media only cares about whistleblowers if they are against President Donald Trump. This was demonstrated recently when CBS fired an unnamed employee, who reportedly had access to damning videos of a reporter from another network blasting executives for spiking her story on millionaire pedophile Jeffrey Epstein. Conservative media outlet Project Veritas released the video earlier this month of ABC reporter Amy Robach discussing information she received from one of Epstein’s victims, Virginia Roberts Giuffre. Robach can be heard expressing her frustration surrounding ABC News’s refusal to air her story, which she said showed British royalty and Bill Clinton as complicit in the pedophile ring. ABC news staff figured out who accessed the old raw video and informed CBS, which promptly fired the individual, according to reports. It is not known if the fired individual was the one who actually leaked the video to Project Veritas.

Trump Resetting U.S. Courts

President Donald Trump is well on his way to reaching a significant high mark in his presidency, as his latest nominees for federal appeals courts go through the confirmation process. Reports Fox News, “With several potential appeals judges awaiting confirmation, Trump’s nominees could soon make up more than a quarter of those serving on the appellate bench. Out of 179 Circuit Court positions, 43 are occupied by Trump picks, with four current vacancies and another five spots opening up due to upcoming retirements.”

Medicare for All Is DOA

With her new “Medicare for All” plan, Democratic presidential contender Elizabeth Warren is playing games by telling Americans she won’t raise taxes. According to a report in the National Review, Warren is not imposing a direct tax on Americans to fund the program like the plan offered by Sen. Bernie Sanders (I-Vt.). Instead, she would slap a tax on businesses of $9,000 per employee per year that would help pay for her healthcare plan. What she doesn’t tell you is that this constitutes a payroll tax that will make it more expensive for businesses to hire people. All of this is academic, though, because neither Warren’s nor Sanders’s plans will ever pass Congress, as they are expected to cost over $2 trillion annually—and that doesn’t even take into account that Medicare is already underfunded by trillions of dollars and will likely cost taxpayers $42 trillion in the next half-century.

Big Tech and Gender Dysphoria

Big tech has lost its mind when it comes to discussing the issue of transgenderism, or when men say they “identify” as women or vice versa. Recently, the Heritage Foundation’s news operation, “The Daily Signal,” published an interview with Dr. Michelle Cretella, a pediatrician and executive director of the American College of Pediatricians. YouTube decided to censor that video for “hate speech,” however, because the doctor had the nerve to say: “See, if you want to cut off a leg or an arm, you’re mentally ill, but if you want to cut off healthy breasts or a penis, you’re transgender.” Many pundits knew America was in real trouble when people started arguing about whether to use the men’s or women’s bathroom. Now the gender police want to censor anyone who has the audacity to disagree with the idea there are 67 genders.

Controlling Healthcare

What could go wrong if government took over healthcare from private industry? Poor service is certainly one concern, but there are more. A second fear is that government officials could start denying healthcare to individuals they don’t like. This is happening in England, where one local division in the National Health Service (NHS) says it will no longer help people that it deems to be “racist” or “sexist.” According to news website “Breitbart,” “The North Bristol NHS Trust announced that patients will be subject to a ‘sports-style disciplinary yellow card and then final red card in which treatment would be withdrawn as soon as is safe’ on its official website. The policy would cover not just ‘threatening and offensive language’ but also ‘racist or sexist language, gestures or behavior’ more generally, as well as ‘malicious allegations’—a rather troubling caveat, given the NHS has in the past been entangled in large-scale malpractice scandals which hospitals and staff have initially denied.”

Good Girl with a Gun

If it weren’t for an AR-15 rifle, a break-in into a family’s home in Florida might have ended a lot worse. NBC News reports that a woman, who was eight months pregnant, scared off two men who broke into her family’s home and pistol-whipped her husband, shooting one of them and killing him as he tried to flee. Homeowner Jeremy King said he’d be dead if not for his wife’s deadly proficiency with a firearm. He said both home invaders had pistols and they fired one shot. “Them guys came in with two normal pistols and my AR stopped it,” King told Bay News 9. “[My wife] evened the playing field and kept them from killing me.”

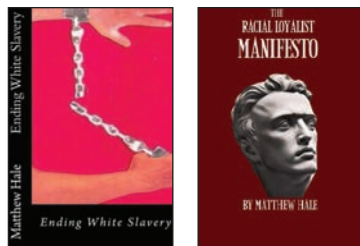

Left Targets Free Expression in Fight Over 'Hate Speech'

By John Friend

The tyrannical assault on the First Amendment and freedom of speech, thought, and inquiry has reached a whole new level, as establishment spokesmen and media outlets openly advance the notion that America needs "hate speech" laws.

In a recently published op-ed in The Washington Post, Richard Stengel, a former high-ranking State Department official under President Barack Obama and a former editor of Time magazine, argued that the United States should consider enacting "hate speech" laws similar to the tyrannical laws in many European countries that criminalize such things as "Holocaust denial" and "incitement of racial and religious hatred." These types of laws have effectively been used to persecute and punish any individual investigating complex and disputed aspects of history, particularly relating to WWII, as well as those who criticize massive Third World immigration into the West, refugee resettlement, globalism more generally, and other politically incorrect topics.

"All speech is not equal," Stengel hypocritically argues in his op-ed. "And where truth cannot drive out lies, we must add new guardrails. I'm all for protecting 'thought that we hate,' but not speech that incites hate."

The very concept of "hate speech," long promoted by organizations such as the ADL and SPLC, essentially amounts to any criticism of any aspect of the New World Order agenda and the forces behind it. Freedom of speech, thought, and historical and scientific inquiry, bedrocks of the American political tradition specifically and Western civilization more generally, have increasingly been undermined and eroded by private entities such as Google, YouTube, and Twitter that censor and punish dissenting opinions on their platforms. Individuals expressing politically incorrect opinions also increasingly face the risk of becoming targets of radical leftwing organizations and activists, such as antifa, that work tirelessly to publicly shame and expose "thought criminals," often leading to social ostracization and loss of employment.

With establishment figures openly pushing for "hate speech" laws, the Senate and House have both established Bipartisan Task Forces for Combating Anti-Semitism, an initiative lobbied for by the Zionist lobby dominating Capitol Hill in an effort to punish those who criticize Israel and the pro-Zionist policies promoted by the D.C. establishment. Jonathan Greenblatt, the CEO of the ADL, praised the recently established task force, arguing that "we must all come together to fight the rise in anti-Semitism that threatens communities everywhere."

Ronald Lauder, the president of the World Jewish Congress, likewise has called for more laws to combat anti-Semitism, especially online anti-Semitism. "After three decades, anti-Semitism has now reared its head," Lauder said in part during the recently concluded Second World Jewish Congress International Meeting of Special Envoys and Coordinators for Combating Anti-Semitism. "We want laws that really mean something."

Of course, to them, anti-Semitism is not just about racism against Jewish people. It includes criticism of Israel as a way to muzzle opposition to that country's policies.

Additionally, local and federal officials have even launched investigations into harmless flyers simply declaring "It's OK to be White" at various universities across the country in an effort to determine if those responsible for posting the flyers committed a "hate crime."

At Oklahoma City University School of Law, investigators are searching for the man who posted the flyers "to determine his intent and whether the actions are a hate crime," according to a local ABC affiliate in Oklahoma. Similar flyers were posted on the campus of Western Connecticut State University recently, prompting an official investigation by local and state police as well as the FBI. University President John Clark described the posting of the flyers as "an attack on our university community" and assured students that his office is "making every effort to see that those responsible are caught and properly punished."

The trouble is, even if the posters of these flyers only intended to state the obvious in protest of the vilification of white people especially on college campuses and never intended violence, it wouldn't matter to leftists. Once their identities are exposed, they will be harassed, threatened, fired from their jobs, and likely driven from society all because they had the audacity to try to push back against the establishment today. ★

The Intimidation Game: How the Left Is Silencing Free Speech

From journalist Kim Strassel comes an insightful, alarming look at how the radical left, once the champion of civil liberties and free speech, is today orchestrating a campaign to bully and frighten Americans out of these rights. She provides a chilling exposé of political scare tactics, liberal harassment against conservatives, targeting of tea party groups by the IRS, states shutting down conservative political activism businesses and websites, and more. This book shines a light on how the liberal machine ensures opposing opinions never reach the public. New Movie Stands Up for First Amendment

By Mark Anderson

The newly released pro-free speech docudrama “No Safe Spaces: You Have the Right to Remain Silent” is finding more safe spaces through which to air its vital message that our long-cherished First Amendment is not only being devalued in mainly leftist venues such as universities. It’s also being wildly attacked and could go asunder unless we put an end to broadening censorship.

At its debut in Phoenix, the film scored “the second largest opening for a documentary on a single screen in history after Michael Moore’s ‘Sicko,’” according to a press release from its producers.

“No Safe Spaces”—co-starring conservative radio talk show host Dennis Prager and comedian and “podcast king” Adam Carolla—continued its market expansion in South Carolina and Florida, taking in an estimated $65,000. The film will also be shown in Los Angeles, Sacramento, Fresno, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Salt Lake City, Orlando, and San Antonio.

In “No Safe Spaces,” Carolla and Prager travel America to talk to experts and advocates on the left and the right, visiting college campuses while examining their own upbringings “to try to understand what is happening in America today and what free speech in this country should look (and

Film advocating real freedom of speech being

sound) like,” the press release noted.

An even more familiar figure in the docudrama is comedian Tim Allen, known for his oft-censored, conservative-flavored sitcom “Last Man Standing.” In a panel discussion in the film, he observes, “Isn’t it spooky we’re having this discussion? It’s spooky even thinking about that you have to be ‘modulated.’ I’m a little alarmed about things that I ‘cannot’ say; I do it anyway, but it is weird that I’m ‘thinking’ [about self-censoring].”

The documentary shows an on-stage discussion, which was held on Feb. 15, 2017 at Cal State Northridge. Carolla tells Prager about his assumed “white privilege,” with regards to a “semi-heated debate” Carolla had via radio with an accomplished black man who had earned a University of Michigan law degree and whose black wife also had a successful career.

“He went on to explain to me that I didn’t know what I was talking about because of my white privilege,” Carolla related. “And I said, ‘Well, let’s examine my white privilege, may we?’ I said I got out of North Hollywood High. I did not go to college. I worked cleaning carpets. Later on, I worked on construction sites—digging ditches, picking up after the carpenters. I felt like my ‘white privilege’ wasn’t kicking in. Mom was on food stamps and welfare; dad was eking out a living.”

Notably, the docudrama covers a lot of other ideological ground and features conservative political commentator Ben Shapiro, CBS commentator-reporter Sharyl Attkisson, black liberal-leaning CNN contributor and political commentator Van Jones, gay “classical liberal” commentator Dave Rubin, young black conservative and Trump defender Candace Owens, conservative media pundit and “former Trumper” Ann Coulter, and Canadian psychology professor Jordan Peterson, who frequently challenges political correctness.

These contributors lament the stark reality of today’s students “lashing out at any speaker brave enough to say something they disagree with—precious snowflakes demanding ‘safe spaces’ to protect them from any idea they haven’t heard from their liberal professors.”

The ongoing attack on free speech and free thought “began in the universities, but, fair warning, it’s coming to your neighborhood and your workplace,” the movie’s promoters stated. ★

Free Speech on the Ropes

• Is criticism of Israel already an official hate crime in America?

By Philip Giraldi

One subject that congressmen and the mainstream media tend to avoid is the erosion of fundamental liberties in the United States as a consequence of the war on terror and American involvement in the Middle East. Some of America's legislators apparently do not even understand that freedom of speech actually means that one can say things that others might find distasteful. The assault on freedom of speech has been accelerated through the invention of so-called "hate speech," which has in turn morphed into "hate crimes" where punishments are increased if there is any suggestion that hatred of groups or individuals is involved. Some have rightly questioned the whole concept, pointing out that if you murder someone the result is the same whether you hate your victim or not.

Freedom of speech is particularly threatened in any situations having to do with Israel, a reflection of the power of that country's lobby in the United States. At a recent town hall gathering, Rep. Dan Crenshaw (R-Texas) demonstrated how he and his colleagues run and hide whenever the issue of Israel is raised when he would not respond directly to a question over whether any criticism of Israel should or should not be protected under the First Amendment. Crenshaw is a Republican and generally reliably conservative, though he recently spoke out against the "For the People Act of 2019," which he claimed "would limit free speech dramatically."

A constituent specifically asked Crenshaw's opinion about federal laws that require citizens in some states to sign a pledge that they will not boycott Israel if they wish to get government contracts or obtain a government job. The audience member also mentioned a law passed in Florida that bans anti-Semitism in public schools and universities, defining "anti-Semitism" as criticism of Israel. The constituent observed, "These laws are obviously flagrant and troubling violations of the First Amendment to free speech."

"Will you honor your oath and denounce these laws here, now and forever?" Crenshaw was then asked. Crenshaw quickly fired back that the critic was "cloaking yourself in the First Amendment" to enable engaging in "vehement anti-Semitism."

Crenshaw then asserted that the questioner was "advocating the BDS movement," a recent target of much of the legislation that the critic was addressing.

BDS refers to the Boycott, Divestment, and Sanctions movement, which calls on people to protest Israel by pulling investments from and boycotting the country.

Israel is engaged in what might be described as a war with the objective of driving any and all criticism of the Jewish state out of polite discourse, making it illegal wherever and whenever possible. The Knesset has passed legislation criminalizing anyone who supports BDS and has set up a semi-clandestine group called Kella Shlomo to counteract its message. The country's education minister has called BDS supporters "enemy soldiers" and has compared them to Nazis. Netanyahu has also backed up the new law with a restriction on foreigners who support the BDS movement entering the country, including American Jewish dissidents, several of whom have been turned around at the airport and sent home.

Israel has been particularly successful at promoting its own preferred narrative, together with sanctions for those who do not concur, in the English language speaking world and also in France, which has the largest Jewish population in Europe. The U.S. government under Donald Trump is completely under the thumb of the Israeli prime minister's office, with Secretary of State Mike Pompeo recently saying "our major focus is stamping out anti-Semitism."

Sanctions already in place in Europe consist of fines and even jail time. The legal penalties come into play for those criticizing Israel or questioning the accuracy of the accepted holocaust narrative, i.e., disputing that "6 million died." Even attacking specific Israeli government policies, like its slaughter of Palestinians in Gaza every Friday, can be found guilty of anti-Semitism, which is now considered a hate crime in Britain, France, Germany, and, most recently, the Czech Republic. In Britain, where the Jewish lobby is extremely strong, a law passed in December 2016 made the UK one of the first countries to use the definition of anti-Semitism agreed upon earlier in the year at a conference of the Berlin-based International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA).

Will protests held in the U.S. against Israel's policies in Palestine be criminalized?

A statement from the British prime minister's office at that time explained that the intention of the new definition was to "ensure that culprits will not be able to get away with being anti-Semitic because the term is ill-defined, or because different organizations or bodies have different interpretations of it."

The British government's own definition relies on guidance provided by the IHRA, which asserts that it is considered anti-Semitic to accuse Jews of being "more loyal to Israel or their religion than to their own nations, or to say the existence of Israel is intrinsically racist." In other words, even if many Jews are more loyal to Israel than to the countries they live in and even though Israel is in fact intrinsically racist, it is now illegal to say so in Great Britain.

One should not be surprised, as the British government's subservience to Jewish and Israeli interests is nearly as enthusiastic as is government in the United States, though it is driven by the same sorts of things—Jewish money and Jewish power, particularly in the media. A majority of Conservative Party members of parliament have joined Conservative Friends of Israel, and the Labour counterpart is also a major force to be reckoned with on the political left.

Here in the United States, the friends of Israel appear to believe that anyone who is unwilling to do business with Israel or even with the territories that it has illegally occupied should not be allowed to obtain any benefit from federal, state or even local governments. Constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and association for every American are apparently not valid if one particular highly favored foreign country is involved, as the discussion with Crenshaw reveals.

Twenty-seven states now have laws sanctioning those who criticize or boycott Israel. And one particular pending piece of federal legislation that is regularly re-introduced into the Senate would far exceed what is happening at the state level and would set a new standard for deference to Israeli interests on the part of the national government. It would criminalize any U.S. citizen "engaged in interstate or foreign commerce" who supports a boycott of Israel or who even goes about "requesting the furnishing of information" regarding it, with penalties enforced through amendments of two existing laws, the Export Administration Act of 1979 and the Export-Import Act of 1945, that include potential fines of between $250,000 and $1 million and up to 20 years in prison.

Israel, and its friends like Crenshaw, are particularly fearful of the BDS movement because its non-violence is attractive to college students, including many young Jews, who would not otherwise get involved on the issue. The Israeli government clearly understands, correctly, that BDS can do more damage than any number of terrorist attacks, as it represents a serious critique of the behavior of the Jewish state while also challenging the actual legitimacy of the Israeli government and its colonizing activity in Palestine. Much of the current hate crime legislation in places like Germany and the Czech Republic directly targets BDS, stating specifically that it is "inherently" anti-Semitic. In late July, the House of Representatives overwhelmingly passed its own resolution condemning BDS explicitly in a 398-to-17 vote.

Going hand-in-hand with the condemnation of BDS is a drive to maintain the exclusivity of Jewish suffering. In June, when Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-N.Y.) called border detention centers holding asylum seekers "concentration camps," she was inundated with protests from Jewish groups that claimed she was denigrating the holocaust and "insulting victims of genocide." The United States Holocaust Memorial Museum even published a statement objecting to comparisons between "the holocaust and other events."

It is important for Americans to realize that Israel not only spies on the U.S., digs its paws deep into our Treasury, and perverts Washington's Middle East policy, it is also attempting to dictate what we the people can and cannot say. And Congress and much of the media are fully on board, which is the real tragedy. ★

How the Internet Is Controlled

• The practice of shadow-banning and the art of stealth censorship

By Dr. Kevin Barrett

On Oct. 17 I published an article headlined “The Legal Lynching of a Truth-Seeker: Jim Fetzer’s Stalinist-Style Show Trial.” In it I argued that Dr. James Fetzer, who lost a $450,000 libel judgment to Lenny Pozner on Oct. 15, didn’t get a fair trial. My account was based on what I saw in the courtroom that day.

According to a recent Reason post by Eugene Volokh, someone has been trying to get my article de-indexed from Google. Volokh notes that Pozner had earlier successfully persuaded Google to de-index web pages featuring Fetzer’s edited book Nobody Died at Sandy Hook due to its having been judged libelous. But asking Google to “vanish from the searchable internet” an article about a court decision, simply because one of the parties to the decision doesn’t like the article, is absurd.

My article did not endorse Fetzer’s statements that the court found libelous. It did not assert, as Fetzer does, that “nobody died at Sandy Hook.” It merely noted procedural problems marring Fetzer’s trial, arguing that the affair sets a dangerous precedent that could contribute to the ongoing rollback of free speech.

My article is certainly not libelous. But if the charge is hyperbole, I plead guilty. Calling Fetzer’s trial a “lynching” and a “Stalinist-style show trial” is obviously hyperbolic. Fetzer is not swinging at the end of a rope or lined up in front of a Bolshevik firing squad. I often use hyperbole to make a point—in this case, that the trial seemed unfair, and that free speech is in danger. Fortunately for us op-ed writers, hyperbole isn’t legally actionable.

Reactions to my article were fairly evenly split between people who thought I didn’t go far enough defending Fetzer and his thesis that Sandy Hook was a hoax, and others who thought Fetzer’s interpretation is not just libelous but downright insane. Both sides wanted me to endorse their strongly held views on Sandy Hook.

The most helpful feedback came from journalist Dave Gahary, publisher of Moon Rock Books. Gahary appeared on my radio show to explain how his viewpoint changed after he spent two full days with Pozner. As the publisher of Nobody Died at Sandy Hook, Gahary had leaned toward viewing the event the way Fetzer does, as a FEMA stunt designed to promote gun control.

But after watching Pozner respond to questions at his deposition last spring, and conversing with him outside the formal setting, Gahary came to believe that Pozner is telling the truth about losing his son, Noah. While still finding many aspects of Sandy Hook worthy of investigation, Gahary no longer accepts the thesis of the book, which he withdrew from circulation after his encounter with Pozner.

Dr. James Fetzer, the editor of dozens of books researching equally as many fascinating topics, is shown in a Wisconsin court after learning that he would have to pay Lenny Pozner $450,000 for claiming Pozner lied when he said his child Noah died in the 2012 Sandy Hook Elementary School shooting.

JOHN HART/WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL/AP

After our radio interview, Gahary sent an email urging me to look at the court transcript and documents archived at poznervfetzer.com. Could all of the material Pozner submitted to the court—notably the Zimmerman affidavits featuring abundant documentary evidence supporting Pozner’s account of the birth, life, and death of Noah Pozner—really be fraudulent? The number of people and institutions that would have to be involved in such a hoax, and the seeming likelihood that it could be easily discovered, would seem to militate strongly against Fetzer’s thesis.

But if Pozner is trying to debunk Sandy Hook “conspiracy theories,” the last thing he should be doing is urging Google to delist articles he disagrees with that discuss aspects of the case not related to Fetzer’s claims. Anyone pushing censorship looks like he or she has something to hide.

Google has already delisted many alternative news sites. Since purchasing YouTube, Google has purged the internet of tens of millions of videos. Between July and September 2019, Google obliterated 2 million YouTube channels and removed 7.85 million videos. In many cases, Google destroyed the livelihoods of the video makers simply because it didn’t approve of their political views. Conservative voices have suffered the most.

Google, Facebook, and Twitter have also been accused of shadow-banning users on the basis of their political views. Shadow-banning is an especially insidious form of censorship. According to The Economist, “Shadow-banned users are not told that they have been affected. They can continue to post messages, add new followers, and comment on or reply to other posts. But their messages may not appear in the feed, their replies may be suppressed, and they may not show up in searches for their usernames.”

Such stealth censorship is an outrage. According to antitrust law, monopolies are illegal. The billionaire internet oligarchs censoring the digital public square are criminals and traitors to the Constitution. They should be arrested and their companies seized and run transparently as public utilities under First Amendment protections. ★

Journalist Arrested in Washington

• Free speech hypocrisy abounds as left ignores mistreatment of newsman

By S.T. Patrick

On Oct. 25, Max Blumenthal, the editor of independent news website “The Grayzone” and a frequent contributor to “Consortium News,” was arrested in Washington, D.C. It was a five-month-old arrest warrant levied in conjunction with a protest at the Venezuela embassy. Blumenthal had tried to bring food to the protestors inside the embassy, which had been under siege by protesters and Washington, D.C. police. For this, he was charged with simple assault. Blumenthal has been one of the leading voices in the alternative press, speaking out against the U.S.-backed coup d’etat that has brought the rise of Juan Guaido in Venezuela.

Blumenthal was detained for two days and was not permitted to call an attorney for over 36 hours. He had been unaware that a warrant had been issued, believing it had initially been rejected, which it had, only to be revived later without Blumenthal’s knowledge. A Guaido supporter, Naylet Pacheco, claims Blumenthal kicked her in the stomach in the middle of a chaotic scuffle between the opposing sides.

“If the government had at least told me I had a warrant I could have voluntarily surrendered and appeared at my own arraignment,” Blumenthal said. “Instead, the federal government essentially enlisted the D.C. police to SWAT me, ensuring that I would be subjected to an early morning raid and then languish in prison for days without even the ability to call an attorney.”

In a statement shortly after his release, Blumenthal denied the charges and explained what he believes is the motivation for the warrant and arrest.

“This charge is a 100% false, fabricated, bogus, untrue, and malicious lie,” Blumenthal said. “It is clearly part of a campaign of political persecution designed to silence me and ‘The Grayzone’ for our factual journalism exposing the deceptions, corruption, and violence of the far-right Venezuelan opposition.”

Blumenthal had been working on a series for “The Grayzone,” exposing the direct U.S. intervention in the rise of Guaido. The Trump administration had always claimed that a grassroots uprising was occurring in what was once one of Latin America’s richest oil-producing nations.

The Trump administration rejected the election results of May 2018, in which Venezuelan voters re-elected President Nicolas Maduro. The U.S. was backing Guaido, a largely unknown Venezuelan figure. Polls showed that 80% of Venezuelans had never heard of him. In January, Guaido declared himself the president of Venezuela. The U.S. and 60 other puppet-nations instantly recognized his ascendancy. The Department of State demanded all former Venezuelan diplomats leave the U.S. immediately. Those remaining at the Venezuelan embassy invited peace activists inside in order to protect their diplomatic home. In April, Guaido attempted to take Venezuela’s presidential palace by force. In those moments, Guaido supporters also attempted to storm Venezuela’s embassy in D.C. Attempts to starve out the original embassy employees were met with U.S. activists, who attempted to bring them food and supplies.

Critics of the U.S. policy toward Venezuela gather to protest American meddling in that nation’s internal affairs. Reporter Max Blumenthal was recently arrested in D.C. for what authorities say was his part in a scuffle between protesters who back U.S. puppet Juan Guaido over President Nicolas Maduro.

Who or what is this opposition that is so financially and militarily supported by the U.S. and its interests? Alan McLeod of “MintPress News” wrote, “Far from the wholesome image they enjoy in much of the press, the Venezuelan opposition has a long and exceptionally violent history of attacking political opponents, including journalists. Their many campaigns to oust President Maduro from power have included beheading innocent passers-by and roasting Afro-Venezuelans alive in the street in an attempt to terrorize the population into surrender.”

The mainstream media and the non-governmental organizations (NGOs) that purport to protect journalists from governmental abuse have been silent on Blumenthal’s arrest, just as they continue to poorly cover or fully ignore the plights of Julian Assange and Chelsea Manning. But Blumenthal was not the only high-profile figure who had attempted to bring food to the Venezuelans opposing U.S. intervention. Jesse Jackson Sr., former Green Party candidate Ajamu Baraka, Veterans for Peace president Gary Condon, and activist Ben Rubenstein had all been met with physical force when trying to feed those left inside.

What else can we call it? We may disagree on its name, but unlike The New York Times, CNN, The Washington Post, and Reuters, we can’t ignore it. To paraphrase theologian Martin Niemöller, first they came for Max Blumenthal. . . . ★

Assange Being Psychologically Tortured?

Belmarsh prison. With even fewer seats made available to the public, most commentators defending Assange and the state of global journalism will not be allowed inside. After rejecting the Assange team's request for additional preparation time—Assange has been denied access to legal documents and research, by which he could defend himself—ensuring that the next hearing will be as secret as can be while still being officially public was yet another dagger into the state of free speech and the free press in court.

News-gathering organization Reuters described Assange, 48, as “confused,” struggling to answer questions about his name and age. He has spent seven years barricaded inside Ecuador's British embassy and, since April, has been in a permanent state of solitary confinement where sensory deprivation and a lack of access to humanity are his new normal. The inhumane imprisonment is designed to break him before he is ultimately sent to the United States to answer for 18 counts, including hacking government computers and violating parts of the Espionage Act. A vital, motivated, lively Assange is a heavyweight contender who has built a career on courage, exposing the worst misdeeds of the most powerful governments, financial powerbrokers, and militaries in the world. When he appears before a judge in the U.S., he will stand as a shell of that Assange.

When Baraitser asked him if he understood what was happening, Assange replied, “Not really,” before attempting to expose the conditions in which he has been forced to live. Stating that he was unable to “think properly,” Assange said, “I don't understand how this is equitable. I can't research anything. I can't access any of my writing. It's very difficult where I am.”

Julian Assange spent seven years in the Ecuadorian Embassy in London and is now being held in solitary confinement in a British prison, according to rights activists. He is allegedly having trouble answering simple questions. This will make him easy game for U.S. prosecutors, who want him extradited to America as soon as possible.

WikiLeaks editor Kristinn Hrafnsson argued on social media that the case should have been thrown out. “Not only is it illegal on the face of the treaty, the U.S. has conducted illegal operations against Assange and his lawyers which are the subject of a major investigation in Spain.” Hrafnsson is referring to a charge that the CIA used the Spanish security company Undercover Global S.L., hired to protect the embassy during Assange's time there, to spy on Assange and his attorneys during the stay in the Ecuadorian embassy in London. Spain's highest court, the Audiencia Nacional, is investigating undercover Global S.L. and its owner, David Morales.

In the words of Pilger: “No one doubts—not his enemies at The New York Times, not the Murdoch press in Australia—that if he is extradited to the United States and the inevitable supermax, journalism will be incarcerated, too. Once there were spaces, gaps, bolt holes in mainstream journalism in which mavericks, who are the best journalists, could work. These are long closed now. The hope is the samizdat on the internet, where fine disobedient journalism is still practiced.”

Rather than reporting on the farce of a hearing that occurred in London, the American mass media focused instead on Assange's confused answers and his denial of extension. The undertone is one of punishment: Had he only played ball with the U.S. government and the world's most powerful financiers, had he only attended a proper journalism school, had he only gumshoed it at an established newspaper in a metro area for decades first, he would be worth defending. Instead, he formed his own journalistic organization and dedicated himself to exposing the darkest areas of geopolitical maneuvers, doing what the mainstream media throughout the world refuses to do. He is everything they are not, and the alternative media should unite in hope that he is everything we are. ★

Freemasonry, Communism & the Plot Against the Church

Maurice Pinay's book The Plot Against the Church, written in 1962, and translated into five languages, is a comprehensive review of the hate-filled 2,000-year Jewish-inspired war against the Roman Catholic Church, and a warning of the dangers posed in the Vatican II Council. For centuries, the enemies of Christ have placed fifth columns into the Catholic Church in order to achieve their goals of worldwide Jewish imperialism.

During the Second Vatican Council, a small Masonic fifth column of Cardinals and Bishops, under the pain of excommunication, who were sympathetic to Communism and Zionism, controlled most of the proceedings and outcome of the Council. They, under misguided thinking, thought the Church would have a place in the New World Order when fully established.

For over 50 years the current conciliar Catholic Church has only appeared and posed as the real Roman Catholic Church, as it has gone along with the promoters of Globalism and the New World Order war names for International Communism.

Because we have been warned, we are not without hope. The Blessed Mother of God in 1607 at Quito, Ecuador said, “In the second half of the 20th century the church will undergo a severe and frightful crisis.” In 1846 at LaSalette, France, she said, “Rome will lose the Faith and become the seat of Anti-Christ.” Finally, at Fatima, Portugal in 1917 she again said, “the Faith will disappear from many nations.”

Generally speaking the modern-day Catholic Church has been serving for the past 50 years the forces of Anti-Christ and helping to prepare for his advent upon the world stage.

Partisan Impeachment Parade Really a Deep State Witch-Hunt

By Donald Jeffries

Evidence increasingly suggests that the recent campaign to impeach President Donald Trump is the culmination of joint efforts between members of the intelligence community and mainstream Democrats, which began upon his election.

The much beloved “whistleblower,” who had remained anonymous during fawning news coverage of his second- and third-hand allegations, has now been identified as Eric Ciaramella, a CIA analyst specializing in Russian and Ukrainian affairs. Not surprisingly, Ciaramella is a registered Democrat. Not only that, he once worked directly for then-Vice President Joe Biden, who is intrinsically involved in the entire Ukrainian impeachment question, along with his son, Hunter. He also worked for former CIA Director John Brennan, one of many outspoken Deep State critics of the president. In 2017, Trump’s National Security Advisor H.R. McMaster appointed Ciaramella as his personal aide.

Ciaramella had no direct knowledge of the infamous June 25 phone conversation that has formed the basis for the latest attempts to impeach Trump. It is known that Ciaramella contacted the staff of Rep. Adam Schiff (D-Calif.) prior to filing his complaint. Interestingly, two of Ciaramella’s former colleagues at the National Security Council have been hired by Schiff this year.

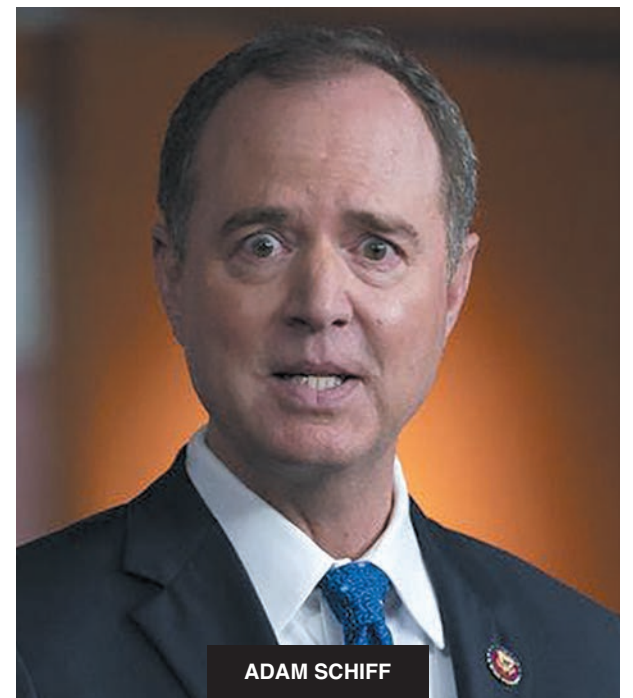

To say that Ciaramella is a partisan opponent of Trump is to severely understate things. He worked with Ukrainian-American lawyer and activist Alexandra Chalupa in 2016 in an effort to find incriminating information about Trump. Chalupa, a former Democratic National Committee staffer, spent a great deal of time investigating Trump and his former campaign chairman Paul Manafort’s alleged ties to Russia in the 2016 campaign. In a 2017 letter to Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein, Sen. Chuck Grassley (R-Iowa) charged, “Chalupa’s actions appear to show that she was simultaneously working on behalf of a foreign government, Ukraine, and on behalf of the DNC and Clinton campaign, in an effort to influence not only the U.S. voting population but U.S. government officials.”

Far-left political commentary website “Daily Kos,” reflecting the massive divide in this country, countered with, “Alexandra Chalupa is the Ukrainian-American former DNC staffer who tried to alert the nation of the danger that was Paul Manafort before the 2016 election and was subsequently smeared by Republicans for her efforts.”

The question that should be asked here is, what was the personal aide to Trump’s National Security Adviser doing working with a member of the opposition party to expose his alleged wrongdoing?

In October 2016, before joining the Trump administration under McMaster, Ciaramella was invited by Biden’s office to a state luncheon for the Italian prime minister. Other attendees at this luncheon included Brennan, then FBI Director James Comey, and then National Intelligence Director James Clapper. According to investigative reporter Paul Sperry, several U.S. officials indicated that such an invitation to a relatively low-level GS-13 federal employee like Ciaramella was highly unusual and, especially given the known political sympathies of other notable guests, indicated that he may have had connections to the

ADAM SCHIFF

Obama White House.

Ciaramella reacted to the revelations of his connection to Biden and other powerful figures by expressing an unwillingness to testify before Schiff’s committee. Additionally, according to the Washington Examiner, “There is no discussion of testimony from a second whistleblower, who supported the first’s claims. . . . There is no indication that either of the original whistleblowers will be called to testify or appear before the Senate or House Intelligence committees.” For those keeping score, pro-impeachment advocates are using as “evidence” the account of a “whistleblower” who actually was working with Trump’s opponents while serving in his administration, has no firsthand knowledge of the Ukrainian phone call, and is now not even going to testify about it. Neither will his source.

Donald Trump Jr. recently incurred the wrath of the gentle hosts of “The View” over his retweeting Ciaramella’s name as the “whistleblower.” The fact that his name had appeared in the media for several days before this mattered little to Joy Behar and company. And the mainstream media’s recent lovefest with this misnamed “whistleblower” didn’t translate into any positive coverage for Ashley Bianco, recently fired by CBS for exposing the suppression by network competitor ABC of a story regarding Jeffrey Epstein. As The Wall Street Journal noted, since the CIA employee came forward and was trumpeted as a courageous “whistleblower,” CBS had aired more than 100 stories on Trump and Ukraine. Needless to say, those stories left little doubt in the minds of viewers that the network takes these laughable allegations seriously as impeachable offenses.

As Fox Business reported, “You don’t need to take seriously anymore when ABC and CBS do another story worshipping the alleged federal whistleblower, pretending that there’s some sacred right to remain anonymous while criticizing the president. Because we’re seeing how they treat a whistleblower in their midst.”

All “whistleblowers” clearly aren’t equal. ★

The Deep State vs. Gen. Michael Flynn

By Donald Jeffries

Lt. General Michael Flynn stood out from all the rest of Donald Trump's putrid, longtime insider appointments to his cabinet. Flynn seemed to be the closest thing to an outsider in the Trump administration. Predictably, he was targeted for removal before he'd even begun his extraordinarily brief tenure as national security advisor.

The establishment was alarmed with Trump's selection of Flynn, and immediately the state-controlled media went into overdrive in an attempt to derail the choice. Flynn attended a December 2015 10th anniversary gala for RT (formerly Russia Today), the Russian-owned English language media outlet, which provides more independent investigative reporting than all the American television networks do combined. They are the only television network to ever ask this author to appear on air. Green Party presidential candidate Jill Stein was also at this anniversary celebration but didn't face quite the same critical scrutiny.

In early 2017, several Democratic congressmen formally requested that Secretary of Defense James Mattis investigate Flynn's connections to RT. The same American intelligence community that has been at loggerheads with Donald Trump since he first entered the White House characterized RT as "The Kremlin's principal international propaganda outlet." Ironically, Flynn notably said during a fiery speech at the 2016 Republican convention, regarding Hillary Clinton, "If I did a tenth of what she did, I'd be in jail today."

MICHAEL FLYNN

Michael Flynn pled guilty, almost certainly under the threat of more punitive punishment, to lying to government investigators about conversations he'd had with a Russian ambassador in late 2016.

Flynn would go on to be blasted for several controversial retweets on Twitter and accused of anti-Semitism and promoting "conspiracy theories" like Pizzagate.

Like Trump himself, Flynn incurred the wrath of the Deep State with his contention that Obama's reliance on deadly drones was a "failed strategy" and called our disastrous bipartisan foreign policy "this continued investment in conflict. The more weapons we give, the more bombs we drop, that just . . . fuels the conflict."

Establishment vitriol toward Flynn extended to his son, Michael G. Flynn, who was known for his extreme tweets about Hillary Clinton's corruption and other verboden subjects. He became the target of his own federal investigation into possible collusion between Trump and Russia, and alleged Russian "meddling" in the 2016 presidential election. The younger Flynn was renowned for his politically incorrect tweets, as well, and mentioned other conspiratorial topics like an alleged video of Bill Clinton raping a teenage girl, Florida Republican Sen. Marco Rubio's rumored secret gay lifestyle, and frequently retweeted Paul Joseph Watson, long-time associate of Alex Jones.

In 2017, Flynn pled guilty, almost certainly under the threat of more punitive punishment, to lying to government investigators about conversations he'd had with a Russian ambassador in late 2016. In the aftermath of the deal, Flynn fired his defense team, and his new attorney Sydney Powell stated, "there never would've been a plea to begin with" if Flynn had been aware of the amount of information being withheld from him.

In early November, federal prosecutors rejected what they termed an "extraordinary reversal" by Flynn, who is now claiming he was the victim of a "plot to set up an innocent man and create a crime." In a recent court filing, the prosecutors noted that Flynn "now claims that he is innocent of the criminal charge in this case," and, "For the first time, the defendant represents to this court that he 'was honest with the agents [on Jan. 24, 2017] to the best of his recollection at the time.' He makes this claim despite having admitted his guilt, under oath, before two federal judges (including this court)."

Among the evidence attorney Powell is requesting U.S. District Court Judge Emmet Sullivan release are two Blackberry devices used by the shadowy Maltese professor Joseph Mifsud, who has been placed at the center of the entire Russian "collusion" fantasy. Flynn's lawyers also allege that James Comey's FBI engaged in massive misrepresentation, leading him to believe the agents were interested in a friendly conversation about terrorism.

Powell told Sullivan the interview was an "ambush," and said, "When the director of the FBI, and a group of his close associates, plot to set up an innocent man and create a crime—while taking affirmative steps to ensnare him by refusing to follow procedures designed to prevent such inadvertent missteps—this amounts to conduct so shocking to the conscience and so inimical to our system of justice that it requires the dismissal of the charges for outrageous government conduct."

Flynn, like Paul Manafort and Roger Stone, are surrogate scapegoats for Donald Trump and the entire Russian "collusion" narrative. Today's so-called "liberals" devise nicknames like "Moscow Mitch" and "Red Rand" for Republicans, without the slightest evidence, or realization of how closely this all mirrors the age of "McCarthyism" which they seemingly abhor.

While the Deep State tries to convert a nebulous phone conversation into an impeachable offense, the Bushes, the Clintons, and the rest of the odious swamp remain free. ★

Trump's 'High Crimes' Nonexistent

• The president broke no laws, so there can be no impeachment

By Patrick J. Buchanan

“Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors.” These are the offenses designated in the Constitution for which presidents may be impeached and removed from office.

Which of these did President Donald Trump commit? According to his accusers in this city, his crime is as follows:

The president imperiled our “national security” by delaying, for his own reasons, a transfer of lethal aid and Javelin missiles to Ukraine—the very weapons President Barack Obama refused to send to Ukraine, lest they widen and lengthen the war in the Donbass.

Now, if Trump imperiled national security by delaying the transfer of the weapons, was not Obama guilty of a greater crime against our national security by denying the weapons to Ukraine altogether?

The essence of Trump’s crime, it is said, was that he demanded a quid pro quo. He passed word to incoming President Volodymyr Zelensky that if he did not hold a press conference to announce an investigation of Joe Biden and son Hunter, he, Zelensky, would not get the arms we had promised, nor the Oval Office meeting that Zelensky requested. Again, where is the body of the crime?

- Did Zelensky hold the press conference Trump demanded? No.
 - Did Zelensky announce Ukraine was investigating the Bidens? No.
 - Did Zelensky get the Oval Office meeting? Yes.
 - Did Zelensky get the U.S. weapons? Yes, $400 million in arms and Javelin missiles.
- Where then is the crime? When was it con-summed? Or was this a thought crime, a bluff to get Zelensky to look into how Hunter Biden got a $50,000-a-month seat on the board of the most corrupt company in Ukraine, days after Joe Biden was in Kyiv threatening to block a $1 billion loan guarantee to the regime.

By the way, what was Biden doing approving a $1 billion loan guarantee to Petro Poroshenko’s regime, which was so corrupt that it ferociously fought not to fire a prosecutor whose dismissal all of Europe was demanding?

Should Biden be nominated and elected, a special prosecutor would have to be appointed to investigate this smelly deal, as well as the $1 billion Hunter got for his equity fund from the Chinese after his father visited the Middle Kingdom.

Given last week’s party-line vote in the House, where all but two Democrats voted to proceed with the inquiry, the impeachment of Trump seems baked in the cake. Speaker Nancy Pelosi’s designation of Rep. Adam Schiff (D-Calif.) to head the investigation tells us all we need to know about the sincerity of her pledge to make the inquiry bipartisan.

Suppose Zelensky had agreed to an investigation into how Hunter Biden, with no experience in the energy industry, got his sweetheart deal. Would that be impeachable for Trump? How so? Does not the U.S. have a right to put conditions on its foreign aid and to seek guaranties that our money will not be used as graft to grifters?

A few of those listening in on Trump’s phone call with Zelensky have gone public asserting that withholding the arms transfer to Kyiv imperiled our national security.

But if east Ukraine rises up and secedes from Kyiv, as Kyiv itself seceded from the Russian Federation at the end of the Cold War, how does any of that endanger America’s national security? Did not President George H.W. Bush himself warn, three decades ago, that a declaration of independence by Ukraine from the Russian Federation would constitute an act of “suicidal nationalism”?

And who does the Constitution charge with making the decisions as to whether military aid goes to Ukraine? The president, or some National Security Council (NSC) staffer who sits on the Ukraine desk?

Since the U.S.-backed overthrow of the pro-Russian regime in Kyiv in 2014, and Vladimir Putin’s counter-seizure of Crimea and support for pro-Russian secessionists in Donetsk and Luhansk, there has been a debate in the United States over how to deal with this faraway problem. Obama decided not to send lethal aid or tank-killing Javelin missiles, lest the U.S. arms escalate a war between Russia and Ukraine that Kyiv could not win.

The Republicans argued the issue at their Cleveland convention. Trump’s team won that argument, but lethal aid and Javelin missiles were eventually sent to Kyiv. Now Trump has sent even more weapons. But again, the authority to make this decision resides in the Oval Office, not in the NSC, not in the CIA, and not with those in the “Deep State” who have their own settled view of what U.S. foreign policy should be. The authority lies with the elected president of the United States.

This impeachment battle will almost surely reach the Senate. And in the end, it will be about what it has been about since the beginning: An attempt by the Deep State and its media, bureaucratic, and political allies to overturn the democratic verdict of 2016 and to overthrow the elected president of the United States.

The establishment’s coup attempt is now approaching end game. ★

CLIMATE CHANGE:

Heating & cooling have been going on since the beginning of time!

And this discovery—rapidly heating & cooling water—could power an economy, a nation and the world . . .

BY JOHN ELLIS

Like environmental cycles of heating and cooling, my heating-cooling method can also be used to reduce mankind's fossil fuel carbon footprint ... using WATER!! When you rapidly heat and cool water, it weakens the hydrogen bonds so it can easily be split into Oxygen and HYDROGEN ... producing CHEAP HYDROGEN FUEL!! A homeowner's $300 electric bill is reduced to less than $10. (See more at JohnEllis.com Energy Lab Video) with 3000% less energy required to split ordinary water ... using even solar with a carbon NET LOSS!

In reality, RAIN FOREST DEFORESTATION accounts for 10%-27% of the planet's temperature increase because trees consume carbon dioxide (CO₂). They in turn give off the oxygen we need to live. Every acre of forest removes about 2.5 TONS of CO₂/YEAR!!

It's all profit motivated: BIG ENERGY DOESN'T WANT A SOURCE OF CHEAP ENERGY regardless of Michael Faraday's discoveries (the greatest scientist that ever lived)!

With 56 drugs found in local drinking water, these drugs combine with water at the molecular level producing a chemical reaction ... they become part of the water because chemical reactions are IRREVERSIBLE!! Since chemical reactions also require energy, the water continues to consume energy from the host even after it's consumed unless you RESTORE THAT ENERGY BEFOREHAND using the Faraday-Ellis Method of rapidly heating and cooling. Ordinary water requires 31 amps to split while our water machine requires LESS THAN ONE AMP producing the same amount of HYDROGEN ENERGY... Hydrogen is "the fuel of Life!" according to Nobel Prize Winner Albert Szentgyorgy.

Like an Oncologists' reports, blood tests prove why people that drink ordinary filtered/distilled water never look young in old age (I am in my 90th year) or live longer drinking water that has been produced by methods that subvert nature! With the camera right in my face on YouTube, they comment: "He doesn't look 82!" and more recent videos show you will also look about the same while industry naysayers influence millions of people and get what they deserve: They won't use revealing "old age" videos of themselves but instead suffer from the laws of often painful retribution from even man-made diseases!

All of the above is why 75% of our business is cancer related (FTC Chart is an example). Today, 50% of the population will get cancer while years ago it was rare! When we talk about water, we are talking about the water in your BLOOD (94% water) like Guy Abraham MD doing Independent BLOOD TESTS on 100's of patients flushing disease out of the blood stream when he taught at UCLA Medical Center: "Nobody can argue with something we can measure... the ability of blood to go through a membrane and into the cells to the extremities. Nothing is even close to your water because YOU CHANGED THE PROPERTIES OF WATER... no wonder we get these results!" (JohnEllis.com). Again, they test your BLOOD... NOT the water you drink and yet that's all the water industry talks about! Again, if you have Cancer or any other disease they test your BLOOD! Years ago, scientists said: "Blood tests show your water is Deuterium depleted (DDW)" but since it's being replaced by the Deuterium in the food we consume, how can they say that? Now they are trying Deuterium Enhanced Water (DEW)... ADDING Deuterium to water to see if they get better results and yet DDW was sold at $300.00 a bottle! ★

I Discovered How to Cure My Own Cancer at the Choate School after being stricken with it at age 14!

THE FARADAY-ELLIS WATER MACHINE WORKS!

I found the elusive answer at the Andrew Mellon Library in a book written by Michael Faraday (one of the greatest scientists that ever lived) where he mentions “the mystical qualities” produced by alternately heating and cooling water! Accordingly, I designed a machine that does that 3 times/minute (100’s of times/gallon) to weaken the Hydrogen Bonds that hold water molecules together (like stretching and releasing a rubber band repeatedly until the bonds weaken) making it easier for water to pass through a membrane and into the cells... splitting into hydrogen and oxygen (the basic building blocks needed to avoid disease and maintain life)! The results are confirmed in great detail by THE FARADAY TWINS author Jon Christian Ryter with 16 million followers. Since we give away FREE WATER and 90% of all men will eventually have an enlarged prostate, it’s their own fault if they ignore a life threatening problem (it only takes a few drops)!!

Guy Abraham MD also confirmed the discovery with 100’s of UCLA Independent patient Blood Flow studies: “Nobody can argue with something you can measure! We can measure the ability of blood (mostly water) to go through a membrane into the cells to the extremities ... flushing aging metabolic wastes, markers for disease and pesticides from the blood stream. Nothing is even close to your water because you changed the properties of water! YOUR HYDROGEN BOND ANGLE IS 114 DEGREES instead of 104.5! Do you realize the importance of your discovery?” The results are obvious: Look at the Sloan Kettering Chart the FTC returned to us with almost immediate results! That’s why 75% of our users are involved with Cancer and related diseases outlined by THE FARADAY TWINS author.

Although naysayers avoid using simple electrolysis children use in grade school chemistry class: “Look how much Hydrogen this water produces!”, the author mentions scientists at Los Alamos Nuclear Lab who called him after purchasing our E5 Machine: “He DID change the Hydrogen Bond Angle in water and we wish we owned his patents!” However, we weren’t well known until Oncologists like Dalton Kinsella MD retired from Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center after 30 years: “Your machines cure cancer but since I retired I don’t have access to your water anymore!”... treating thousands of patients especially after 9/11! As a result, users still comment “Why didn’t we hear about this discovery years ago? How about the thousands of lives that could have been saved!”

The answer: THE WATER INDUSTRY AND THEIR SHILLS (in spite of the thousands of chemicals like plastic phthalates that are known to cause cancer) that bombard us with ads for filters/distillers that CAUSE CANCER!! Apparently I am the first person to understand the healing power created by simply changing water properties at the Nuclear Level (watch the Energy Video at JohnEllis.com) which was also noted by another Los Alamos Nuclear scientist (with FOUR PH’s after his name) who bought a machine and called us in regard to hiring 1000 more Nuclear Engineers!

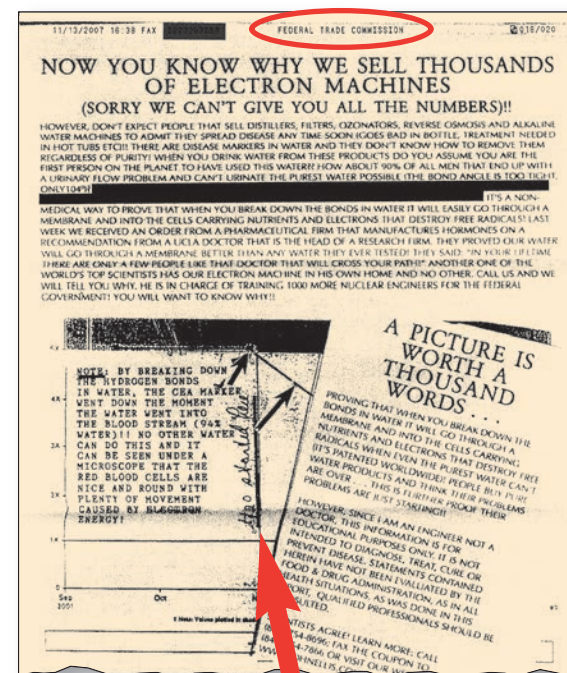

DON’T BE FOOLED by internet “Scientists,” scam alert artists and even a Vietnam draft evader at a startup university in Canada who was fired for duplicity because he also sells plagiarized “chemistry courses” on the web! How many people lost their lives because of this subterfuge? The situation is so dire in an effort to profit from misery by creating health problems, a News Magazine hired MD’s on the fringe to sell “health products” and promote a plastic distiller known to CAUSE Cancer while the FDA is telling mothers not to boil plastic baby bottles! Plastic is O.K. as long as you don’t have long contact time like supermarket food. That’s why virtually everyone has plastic phthalates (known to cause cancer) that should be flushed from the Blood Stream!!

THE FARADAY TWINS

To find out the truth, you have to read THE FARADAY TWINS by an author with 16 million followers. Highly researched ... even interviewing scientists at Los Alamos Nuclear Lab that tested our machines because they thought my discovery was “impossible”: “He DID change the Hydrogen Bond Angle in water and we wish we owned his patents!” ★

The Syria-ISIS Fraud Exposed

- Alleged assassination of terrorist leader took place in area protected by U.S.

By S.T. Patrick

As American militarists continue to rejoice in the killing of self-proclaimed ISIS caliph Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi, they are forced to reckon with the strategy they, themselves, used to create a safe haven for al Qaeda and ISIS in Idlib, the northwestern Syrian province where Baghdadi was protected and then killed.

There are moral, ethical, and strategic conundrums the American military faces in Syria, a majority of which are caused by the dense logic and passion toward interventionism that keeps them there today.

Idlib is a Syrian war zone located, metaphorically, somewhere between Hell and Detroit. While it is as dangerous as any region in the world, the American military has held a shaky control over the Idlib province and its 165,000 people.

On the one hand, American regime-change supporters have been very attentive toward Idlib. It is the last, powerful bastion of Syrian opposition to the government of President Bashar al-Assad. On the other hand, it is the home of the largest conglomeration of al Qaeda fighters in the world. Syria's largest al Qaeda affiliate, Hayat Tahrir al-Sham, controls the province on the ground and in the minds of its residents, while the Americans control it from the sky, from the borders, from the defense contractors, from CIA headquarters, and, if you believe the narrative streaming out of Washington, D.C., from a technologically advanced situation room in the White House.

The State Department and the Pentagon are not hiding the fact that they are actively supporting the largest global collection of al Qaeda fighters. In fact, they are admitting what would, to many, be a great post-9/11 hypocrisy, while furthermore bragging about its size. In June, Deputy Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi, the head of the notorious terrorist group ISIS, was recently killed, it is claimed, by U.S. special forces during a raid on his home in Syria. Are we to believe that Baghdadi was living peacefully in the midst of an area controlled by U.S.-backed rebel forces for years? More than likely, Baghdadi was killed just before U.S. troops left the area to tie up some embarrassing loose ends before the withdrawal. This smacks of the story of alleged terrorist mastermind Abu Nidal. It's claimed Nidal was responsible for 900 deaths in widespread terror attacks in the 1970s and 1980s, but later it was discovered he was an intelligence asset of the U.S. and Israel's Mossad.

Secretary for the Middle East Michael P. Mulroy said, "Idlib is essentially the largest collection of al Qaeda affiliates in the world right now." Gen. Joseph Dunford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, confirmed that there are between 20,000-30,000 fighters in Idlib.

Al Qaeda makes up a majority of those being armed by the American military on the ground. The other large faction had been called the "Free Syria Army." The American people were propagandized to believe these were average Syrians-turned-rebels, horrified by the brutality of Assad and inspired by the American support to pick up arms in defense of their homeland. In October, the truth reared an even uglier head than the ongoing Civil War.

When President Donald Trump recently decided to accept a Turkish invasion of Syria, the world discovered the identities of the "moderate rebels." "All it took for the curtain to be pulled back was for President Donald Trump to greenlight a Turkish invasion of Syria," Dan Cohen of news website "The Grayzone" wrote. "Those once-'moderate' CIA-trained contras who had long terrorized civilians in Syrian government territory were revealed to be Turkish-backed mercenaries, slaughtering and beheading their way throughout the Kurdish-majority regions of northeastern Syria."

Not only are the Americans fighting in Syria alongside those al Qaeda forces whom they continue firing upon in Afghanistan and Iraq today, but they have now unleashed their mercenary Turkish allies on the Kurds, whom the George H.W. Bush administration had instructed us were the sympathetic Iraqis during Operation Desert Storm.

Syria has been a complex story to follow—part of what has made many Americans tune out—but to understand what has happened, one needs to just remember the axiom, “the enemy of my enemy is my friend.” In deciding that Assad is public enemy number one in Syria, the Americans have turned the largest region they still control into a jihadist haven for al Qaeda fighters and Turkish mercenaries willing to fight against Assad. In doing so, they created a safe zone for Hayat Tahrir al-Sham and ISIS leader al-Baghdadi.

Almost instantly after the killing of al-Baghdadi was publicized, Democratic presidential candidate Rep. Tulsi Gabbard (D-Hawaii) criticized Trump for “supporting al Qaeda” by prioritizing the defense of Idlib. Sen. Kamala Harris (D-Calif.), whose campaign is now on life support, attacked Gabbard for being an “apologist for an individual, Assad, who has murdered people in his country like cockroaches.” Gabbard’s comments, however, are supported by Brett McGurk, the former special presidential envoy for the global coalition to counter [ISIS], who said in July 2017 that “Idlib province is the largest al Qaeda safe haven since 9/11.”

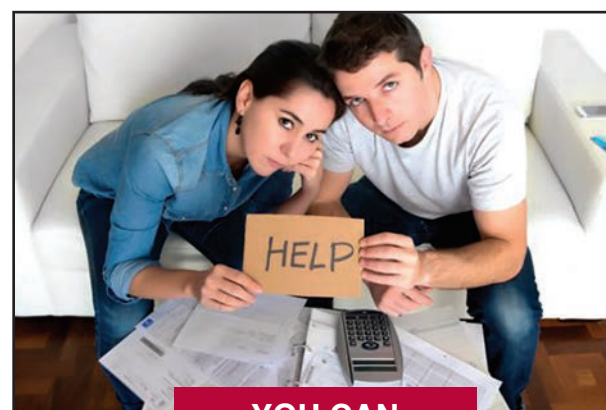

The Middle East think tanks and Washington journalistic set feigned surprise and astonishment that al-Baghdadi had been hiding in Idlib. The morning the assassination of al-Baghdadi was announced, in that moment of analytical insanity, Max Abrahms of Northeastern University provided one of the few sane analyses of the situation.

“The think tank crowd gets an ‘F’ for ISIS and Syria analysis,” Abrahms said. “These same pundits who got the main points about ISIS and Syria so obviously wrong are now shocked that Baghdadi was hiding in Idlib, the opposition stronghold. This is because they have been arguing since day one that ISIS is not part of the opposition to Assad, but rather his ally. And they have been trying to minimize the portion of the opposition seen as extreme . . . For those of us who understood that ISIS and Assad are not friends and that the rebels have been al Qaeda-tainted for some time, it’s no surprise that the ISIS leader would set up shop in the heart of the opposition, where al Qaeda and friends are the dominant groups.”

Why did al-Baghdadi go to Idlib, a place defended by American weaponry and CIA-trained fighters? It was the perfect place for him to recruit jihadists and build the caliphate. Why did the Americans kill one of the major organizers of the Assad opposition? Because Trump may have, once again, shot himself in the foot. He chose the short-term, Obama-like “Death of Osama bin Laden” campaign season victory parade (situation-room shock photo included) over the narrative that had been built since the April 2017 missile strike on the Shayrat airbase. In doing so, the narrative of the regime-changers, and thus the Pentagon and the CIA, has been thoroughly exposed. ★

Leftist Policies Are Ruining Europe

• If suicidal immigration policies are not reversed, Christian-European culture will die

By Dr. Paul Craig Roberts

In Sweden the rape of white Swedish women by black immigrant-invaders never stops. In the latest outrage four black Eritreans forced a 13-year-old Swedish girl into a bathroom and took turns raping her while filming the gang rape. According to the news report, the rape was “preceded by violence consisting of at least two of the defendants grabbing the plaintiff’s neck and shoulder, slamming her head into a wall and pushing her into a bathroom.”

If convicted, prosecutors hope that the four blacks are deported back to Eritrea and are banned from entering Sweden for at least 15 years. But the Swedish Migration Tribunal blocks deportations on “humanitarian grounds.”

Deportation means no prison time for gang raping and recording the rape, which under Swedish law is a clear felony as a “child pornography offense.” Prison time would be too much to impose on the poor, underprivileged, misunderstood black men from Eritrea who came to Sweden searching for a new life. I can hear the feminist Swedish government crying over the poor dears and blaming the Swedish girl for the rape. Notice also that the news report describes the Women in Sweden are the biggest victims of that nation’s shortsighted lust for multiculturalism. There is now a 25% chance a woman living in Sweden will be raped in her lifetime, most likely by a non-white immigrant.

Does the 13-year-old girl have a father, brothers, or cousins? If so, how can the prosecutors expect the blacks to live long enough to be deported to Eritrea? As the traitorous all-female government of Sweden has opened Sweden’s borders and invited in rapists of Swedish women, there is no government protection of Swedish women. Punishment of rapists has collapsed. The Norwegian-based “Herland Report” reports that “in an astounding number of cases, the Swedish courts have demonstrated sympathy for the rapists, and have acquitted suspects who have claimed that the girl wanted to have sex with six, seven, or eight men.”

Wherever we look in Europe the same question stares us in the face.

German Chancellor Angela Merkel has destroyed Germany. The German Federal Institute for Employment Research estimates that immigrant-invaders could constitute more than 40% of the population of Germany in 20 years. In larger cities the migrant-invader population is expected to comprise 70% of the population.

In other words, Merkel has left no room for Germans in German cities.

European alt-media news reports say that Italy gives more aid to immigrant-invaders than it does to the Italian handicapped. We see this everywhere. Europe exists for the immigrant-invaders, not for the native-born citizens. The leader of France’s nationalist party, Marine le Pen, is threatened with criminal prosecution for hate speech for defending the rights of Frenchmen.

Nowhere in Europe can a citizen protest the destruction of his country without being called a “white supremacist” and subject to indictment gang rapists as “defendants” and not as perpetrators, and that the raped victim is merely a plaintiff, not a victim. This is the way it is in Sweden. The migrant-invader-rapists-bomb-throwers are protected by hate speech laws. A raped Swedish woman runs a risk of being accused of a hate crime by immigrant-invader advocates if she reports her rape.

Police officials, who have stated that the vast majority of rapes are committed by the immigrant-invaders, have been suspended and investigated.

Why do white women continue to live in Sweden, a country where the feminist government dangles them as bait to attract more immigrant-invaders? Polls show that 25% of Swedish women are afraid to leave their house even to go shopping. The 1,472% increase in violent rape has left Swedish women prisoners in their own homes.

for hate speech. Nationalism and patriotism have become crimes. To be clear, Europe is a Tower of Babel, an utterly destroyed civilization. There is no Europe left.

It is the same in the United States. President Barack Obama, the great savior, dumped 100,000 Somalis on Minneapolis and another 100,000 on Portland, Maine, and little doubt elsewhere.

- What does a community do when it has 100,000 aliens dumped in its midst demanding food, housing, healthcare, and entertainment? Being dark-skinned, the unwanted immigrants have privileges under the civil rights laws that discriminate against white men.

- How does it help Washington to have Europe under the control of Islamicists that Washington has been bombing and invading for two decades?

- How does it help the Israelis to have the Islamist Middle East spread into Europe?

- How does it help Israel to have vast numbers of Islamicists in the U.S. to object to Israel's control over the U.S. government and Israel's territorial gains in the Middle East?

Clearly, the morons who rule in Washington and Israel have created a world that is multiplying the numbers and power of the enemies of Israel and Washington.

Little wonder Russia and China stand aside ignoring provocations and waiting for the certain self-destruction of the utterly dumb Western world. ★

SATAN IN HOLLYWOOD

Anti-Christian Propaganda in Film

On television and in film, Christians are most frequently depicted as narrow-minded, intolerant racists and bigots, if not actually rapists or murderers. The Catholic clergy is almost always depicted as a place of concealment for sadists and mental defectives. Hundreds of films contain anti-Christian smears, and the list gets longer every year. Ryssen identifies a large number of these films and details their anti-Christian messages and imagery. These vile themes even appear in children's cartoons! The evidence speaks for itself: Christianity—and most particularly the Catholic Church—is under attack in the Hollywood film industry in ways that have never been used against Islam or Judaism or any other community in history. Decade after decade, these messages have been growing in intensity, becoming increasingly explicit and evermore aggressive. It is as if the weakening of Christianity in the West were merely exacerbating a revengeful, explosive hatred too long contained. Since 2005, has published 10 books, each containing hundreds of footnotes and references, on matters of crucial importance to an understanding of the 20th and 21st centuries:

the religious origins of globalism; the cosmopolitan ideal in literature and film; the origins of psychoanalysis; the prevalence of hysteria, homosexuality and feminism; the hidden face of communism; the history of anti-Semitism; the causes of World War II; the great transnational mafias and swindlers; and the vision of the "End Times" in the great religions, etc. Satan in Hollywood: Anti-Christian Propaganda in Film (softcover, saddle-stitched, 59 pages, $10 minus 10% for TBR subscribers plus $5 S&H inside the U.S.) can be yours FREE when

Is NATO Brain Dead?

• Divides between member states is growing larger

By Richard Walker

After 70 years, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) has gone into steady decline. While its supporters, to quote Mark Twain, will insist that its death has been greatly exaggerated, the cracks in its core have been growing deeper.

French President Emmanuel Macron, the most outspoken European leader on the issue, is now claiming that NATO is brain dead due to dwindling support from Washington.

His views appear to echo a previous remark by President Donald Trump that NATO was obsolete, but that did not entirely reflect the president's opinion, because he also said that the alliance was "very important" to him. The conflicting nature of all these assertions has only added to a general feeling that NATO is no longer as relevant as it once was. According to Macron, it could soon vanish.

There is no disputing that it has departed from its original mission to protect Europe from the Soviet Union. The disintegration of the Soviet empire, and the growing closeness of Washington and Moscow, has led many observers to conclude that since Russia no longer poses an imminent threat of the kind once clearly apparent in Soviet political and military posturing, NATO is indeed a relic of the past.

A rarely discussed aspect of the debate about the fast-changing nature of NATO is the failure of many of its backers to recognize that its demise accelerated under the Barack Obama presidency. That might seem contradictory, given President Obama's praise of the alliance and his dependence on it, but the fact remains that he exploited NATO's military capability and expanded its reach well beyond Europe, much to the organization's detriment. He also allowed Israel to engage with NATO exercises and toyed with the prospect of backing an Israeli request for membership.

The starkest examples of how he damaged the NATO brand can be found in his willingness to enable French President Nicholas Sarkozy and British Prime Minister David Cameron to push for the overthrow of Libyan leader Col. Muammar Qaddafi. It has since transpired that Sarkozy had corrupt links to Qaddafi and may have wanted to get rid of him to hide financial ties to him. France also wanted Libya's oil. Obama later blamed his two allies for the war in Libya and the mess that has followed, but that was disingenuous. After all, Obama was in overall charge of the NATO forces that overthrew the Libyan government.

Libya was not the end of NATO's foreign adventurism. Obama dragged the alliance into the war in Syria, once again with the French and British, as well as NATO member Turkey. Help in the shadows came from Israel and Saudi Arabia. NATO helped train and arm the terrorist and guerrilla forces amassed to fight Syria's government led by Bashar al-Assad, including Kurds and extreme Islamic elements such as the al-Nusra Front. It was heavily involved in the arming and training of the anti-Assad forces, routing large weapons consignments through the Balkans to northern Iraq where they were distributed to Kurdish fighters. It also quietly encouraged Turkey to train anti-Assad militias, many of them dominated by ISIS fighters.

A critical result of the wars in Libya and Syria was a massive flow of migrants into Europe. So, while NATO was an alliance designed to protect Europe from exterior threats, it chose instead to create conditions that facilitated a mass migrant movement that became a threat to Europe's internal stability.

A real body blow to NATO cohesion arose from the 2016 failed coup against Turkey's President Recep Erdogan, who said the attempt to dethrone him was approved by Obama and European NATO members, specifically Germany. Moscow exploited Erdogan's subsequent anti-Western feelings and benefited from the fact that the Russians had also saved Erdogan's presidency by giving him ample warning of the plot

MACRON

President Emmanuel Macron of France believes that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is "brain dead," due to diminishing support from the United States.

against him. Since then, however, Trump has developed closer ties to Moscow and Erdogan and has refused to oppose Turkey's decision to purchase the Russian S400 missile system over its U.S.-NATO counterpart, the Patriot missile system.

By all accounts, Turkey no longer appears to be a committed NATO member, further shattering the alliance's claim to unity. It has instead drawn closer to its neighbor, Russia.

A further sign of NATO weakness has been its reduced funding over decades, due to the unfair reliance of its members on Washington's dollars. The effects of this were evident in 2018 during the NATO military exercises, Trident Juncture. They paled in comparison to massive exercises held by Russia, illustrating that NATO was no match for Russia in a conventional war. It was equally embarrassing for NATO that Russia managed to disrupt the NATO exercises by using electronic warfare devices to target them.

NATO now finds itself divided into blocs, with the most vocal being those nations like Poland bordering Russia who argue that the threat to Europe comes from the East. In contrast, Trump wants NATO to focus solely on terrorism and illegal immigration. Other NATO members, especially Germany and France, favor the creation of a European Defense Force to replace NATO, thereby signaling that they have already envisioned the death of the alliance. It is unlikely Britain would join any NATO replacement force.

What demonstrates that NATO is far from dead, however, is that there are more U.S. forces in Europe than there were during the Obama years, and Trump has committed to placing more troops in frontline Baltic states. ★

Mother of All Bubbles About to Burst?

• Busting of sovereign debt bubble will cause a crash worse than the 2008 meltdown

By Dr. Ron Paul

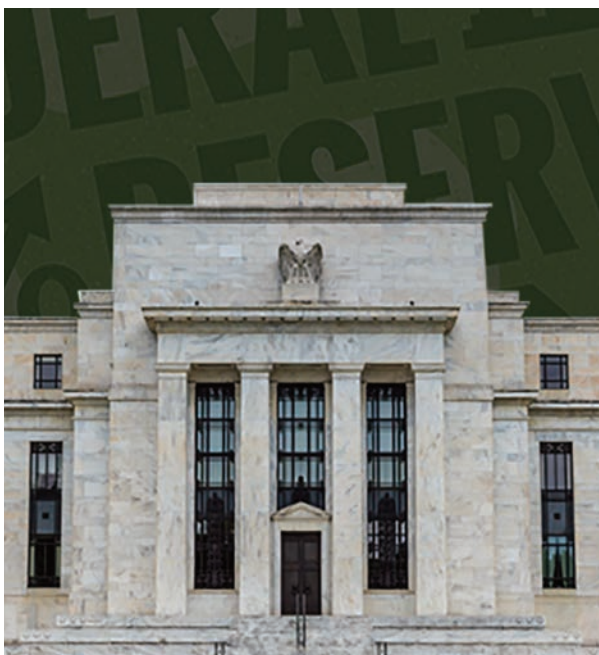

When the New York Federal Reserve began pumping billions of dollars a day into the repurchasing (repo) markets (the market banks use to make short-term loans to each other) in September, they said this would only be necessary for a few weeks. Yet, last Wednesday, almost two months after the Fed's initial intervention, the New York Federal Reserve pumped $62.5 billion into the repo market.

The New York Fed continues these emergency interventions to ensure “cash shortages” among banks don't ever again cause interest rates for overnight loans to rise to over 10%, well above the Fed's target rate.

The Federal Reserve's bailout operations have increased its balance sheet by over $200 billion since September. Investment advisor Michael Pento describes the Fed's recent actions as quantitative easing (QE) “on steroids.”

One cause of the repo market's sudden cash shortage was the large amount of debt instruments issued by the Treasury Department in late summer and early fall. Banks used resources they would normally devote to private sector lending and overnight loans to purchase these Treasury securities. This scenario will likely keep recurring as the Treasury Department will have to continue issuing new debt instruments to finance continuing increases in government spending.

Even though the federal deficit is already over $1 trillion and growing, President Donald Trump and Congress have no interest in cutting spending, especially in an election year. Should he win reelection, Trump is unlikely to reverse course and champion fiscal restraint. Instead, he will likely take his victory as a sign that the people support big federal budgets and huge deficits. None of the leading Democratic candidates are even pretending to care about the deficit. Instead they are proposing increasing spending by trillions on new government programs.

“The Fed is panicking in an effort to prevent economic trouble much worse than what occurred in 2008.”

Joseph Zidle, a strategist with the Blackstone investment firm, has called the government—or “sovereign”—debt bubble the “mother of all bubbles.” When the sovereign debt bubble inevitably busts, it will cause a meltdown bigger than the 2008 crash.

U.S. consumer debt—which includes credit cards, student loans, auto loans, and mortgages—now totals over $14 trillion. This massive government and private debts put tremendous pressure on the Federal Reserve to keep interest rates low or even to “experiment” with negative rates. But the Fed can only keep interest rates, which are the price of money, artificially low for so long without serious economic consequences.

According to Pento, the Fed is panicking in an effort to prevent economic trouble much worse than occurred in 2008. “It's not just QE,” says Pento, “it's QE on steroids because everybody knows that this QE is permanent just like any banana republic would do or has done in the past.”

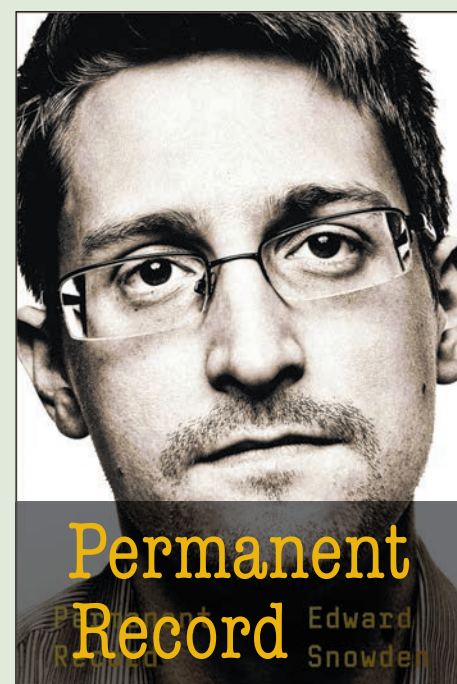

Congress will not cut spending until either a critical mass of Americans demand they do so, or there is a major economic crisis. In the event of a crisis, Congress will try to avoid directly cutting spending, instead letting the Federal Reserve do its dirty work via currency depreciation. This will deepen the crisis and increase support for authoritarian demagogues. The only way to avoid this is for those of us who know the truth to spread the message of, and grow the movement for, peace, free markets, limited government, and sound money. ★

New! Permanent Record

What whistleblower Edward Snowden wants you to know about the massive surveillance state spying on all of us

NEW! Edward Snowden, the man who risked everything to expose the U.S. government's system of mass surveillance, reveals for the first time the story of his life, including how he helped to build that system and what motivated him to try to bring it down. In 2013, 29-year-old Edward Snowden shocked the world when he broke with the American intelligence establishment and revealed that the U.S. government was secretly pursuing the means to collect every single phone call, text message, and email. The result would be an unprecedented system of mass surveillance with the ability to pry into the private lives of every person on Earth. Six years later, Snowden reveals for the very first time how he helped to build this system and why he was moved to expose it. Spanning the bucolic Beltway suburbs of his childhood and the clandestine CIA and NSA postings of his adulthood, Permanent Record is the extraordinary account of a bright young man who grew up online—a man who became a spy, a whistleblower, the internet's conscience—and Public Enemy No. 1. JFK Assassination Researchers Are Fractured, Unproductive

By Donald Jeffries

Every November for decades, a good number of researchers into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy gather in Dallas. There are always a number of speakers, addressing various aspects of the crime. These conferences also occur in other parts of the country, and even in the United Kingdom and Australia.

John Barbour, who like this author has been absolutely ignored by those who organize and promote these conferences, recently wrote on Facebook: “Pardon me if this upsets anyone, but I do not understand why anyone would either put on another JFK Conference, speak at one or attend one. . . . Every Nov. 22 should be America’s Bastille Day, with the thousands involved with these events or signing useless petitions to Congress instead gathering at the Robert F. Kennedy Justice Department.” Barbour should reasonably be seen as the face of the research community at this point, given his work with Jim Garrison and his impressive show-business pedigree.

From the beginning, when citizen critics of the Warren report like Mark Lane and Harold Weisberg began publishing works that demolished the official story, there was bickering and envy between the large egos and difficult personalities that have always been the predominant researchers in the case. Lane and Weisberg despised each other. Weisberg, especially, was jealous of all the others and regularly panned their work. When Oliver Stone’s “JFK” was released in 1991, Weisberg carried the enmity many critics felt toward the director making Garrison his protagonist to an absurd extreme—leaking an advance copy of the film’s script to a CIA-friendly asset at The Washington Post. Weisberg, like most of the other leading critics, wanted to be portrayed as the hero in the movie. Garrison’s investigation split the critical community, with even the best of them, like former World Health Organization employee Sylvia Meagher, turning against the New Orleans district attorney.

When Michael Collins Piper, longtime writer for AMERICAN FREE PRESS and its predecessor, The Spotlight, published Final Judgment: The Missing Link in the JFK Assassination Conspiracy in 1993, it was ignored or ridiculed by the research community. The predictable charges of “anti-Semitism” were leveled against him. Recently, on one of the larger JFK assassination forums, this author responded to a thread revolving around JFK’s battles with David Ben-Gurion and Israel’s burgeoning nuclear program by noting that credit should be given to Piper, whose research first shed light upon this area. Unsurprisingly, those posting ignored that, and continue to deny Piper the credit he deserves.

The lack of cohesion in the critical community, with the continuous internal arguments among researchers, has played into the hands of the state-controlled media, which has always sought to paint those who doubt the Warren report as eccentric “wackos.” Critics routinely dismiss each other as “disinformation agents” and “limited-hangout” dupes of one intelligence agency or another. In 2013, this author attempted to bring researchers together by writing the following consensus statement: “The Warren Commission, FBI, and Dallas police did not solve the mystery of who assassinated President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963. The House Assassinations Committee of the late 1970s left more questions than answers behind them. Despite the fact a real investigation has never been conducted, the available evidence shows conclusively that Lee Harvey Oswald was not the assassin and was framed by others for the crime. On the verge of the 50th anniversary of the most significant political assassination of the 20th century, it is more important than ever for there to be an open and independent inquiry into the matter for the very first time.” It was published on the largest JFK assassination forum, “Spartacus,” out of London.

PIPER

The general thesis of Michael Collins Piper’s JFK assassination blockbuster Final Judgment: The Missing Link in the JFK Assassination Conspiracy has never been refuted by anyone. Piper contended that Israel’s Mossad was a key player in the murder of JFK—and he provided a wealth of information to back up his claims. The two-volume set is available for $40 plus $6 S&H inside the U.S. from AFP, 117 La Grange Avenue, La Plata, MD 20646.

The responses generated to this consensus statement illustrated the problem. Very few researchers would agree to it, and most wanted to battle over a word or a perceived inference. The long discussion that ensued developed into something akin to Bill Clinton’s memorable, “It depends on what the meaning of ‘is’ is.” It is difficult for those who have devoted decades to researching the assassination, as this author has, to accept the level of dysfunction among those who share the same intense interest in the subject.

Heated battles over things like body alteration, film alteration, and Judyth Vary Baker, the woman who claims to have been Lee Harvey Oswald’s lover, occupy most of the critical community’s attention, and form the basis for the speakers invited and subjects explored at all the research conferences. This author’s writing has received little to no support from the vast majority of JFK assassination researchers, many of them longtime cyber friends.

Lone nutters don’t argue with each other about anything. The same can’t be said for those who are awake to the truth that a conspiracy took the life of JFK. ★

Something Not Right With CA Wildfires

• Longtime firefighter says something else besides “global warming” at play here

By Mark Anderson

Recently retired Fire Capt. Matt Dakin does not hesitate when he insists that the wildfires that have been raging and ruining California are, for the most part, not conventional fires at all.

Dakin served in the San Ramon Valley Fire Protection District and several other fire units for over 30 years.

At an absolute minimum, he said, “the authorities have been standing down” in some instances, thereby allowing the fires to worsen and spread unprecedented destruction and death. Known cloud-seeding technologies that could have been applied to bring rain in time to dampen the fires have been completely ignored, he told AFP for an exclusive.

“They had Operation Popeye, now declassified, way back in Vietnam, seeding the clouds [with special flares] to make it rain on the Ho Chi Minh Trail to slow down North Vietnam’s military advances,” Dakin told this writer.

This writer had confirmed that fact at a December 2016 Freedom Force International conference in Arizona that included talks on weather modification and weaponization.

Another bizarre circumstance in California came about when the most recent “Kincaid Fire,” as it’s known, came within a mile or so of Dakin’s Sonoma County home amid warnings of high winds—the infamous Santa Anna winds—coming to the area in a couple days, a situation that should have prompted authorities to seize the window of opportunity ahead of the coming winds and fight the fire to keep it from spreading.

But that crucial advance firefighting never happened, said Dakin, who on Oct. 25 could see the fires over a ridge, with the smell of smoke worsening by the moment. “A news crew was prevented from entering the area in their van, which I feel happened to prevent them from seeing that the fire was not being fought while there was still time,” Dakin said.

Retired California firefighter Matt Dakin shows a manzanita tree burned on the inside, from the ground up, near the highly destructive “Paradise Wildfire” of 2018 in Butte County, Calif. Dakin has over 30 years’ experience fighting fires in California and had never before seen anything like this.

Dakin noted other strange phenomena related to these fires. The “Tubbs Fire” of 2017 in Sonoma County reduced virtually every house to its foundation with only “powder” remaining throughout. Yet the surrounding trees remained largely intact and green and household appliances weren’t left a hollowed-out metal shell, as is often the case in a conventional fire; rather, the appliances were completely gone. Every house was destroyed to the same degree and in the same manner.

The same fire somehow “jumped” six-lane Highway 101 and burned other neighborhoods as well while “completely destroying a fully sprinkled K-Mart.” Dakin added that such buildings, with their “concrete-tilt-up” construction design, are “built so they don’t just burn up.”

In the 2018 “camp fire” that totally destroyed the city of Paradise in Butte County—which with unprecedented speed and fury killed at least 86 people and destroyed some 19,000 structures, 14,000 of which were homes—various trees and manzanita bushes appeared to have burned from the inside out, even including individual trees that were isolated in asphalt parking lots away from the main fires. Oftentimes, the strange internal fires would start at the bottom, seemingly from the inside of the roots.

“One of the things that worries me the most is the weaponization of the weather, but nobody talks about it,” Dakin said, adding that apparent aerosol injections in the atmosphere, resulting in what many call “chemtrails,” need to be further investigated just as alleged clandestine weather alteration needs to be further probed.

“I’m speculating, but this stuff points to a lot of good information I have,” Dakin said of these possible causes, while adding that the normal hydrological cycle is interrupted via atmospheric spraying, which completely dries everything out and turns it into a tinderbox.

“And then they blame it on climate change. It’s maddening,” he said. ★

Crimes and Cover-Ups in American Politics 1776-1963: The History They Didn't Teach You in School

By Donald Jeffries. Foreword by Dr. Ron Paul. For far too long, American history has been left in the unreliable hands of those who author Donald Jeffries refers to as the court historians. Crimes and Cover-ups in American Politics 1776-1963 fights back by scrutinizing the accepted history of everything from the American War of Independence to the establishment defamation of Thomas Jefferson and the other Founding Fathers, the Civil War, the Lincoln assassination, both World Wars, U.S. government experimentation on prisoners, mental patients, innocent children and whole populated areas, the Lindbergh baby kidnapping and much, much more. Secular saints like Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, and Franklin D. Roosevelt are examined in a critical way they seldom have been. Jeffries spares no one and nothing in this explosive new book. The atrocities of Union troops during the Civil War, and Allied troops during World War II, are documented in great detail. The Nuremberg Trials are presented as the antithesis of justice. In the follow-up to his previous, bestselling book Hidden History: An Expose of Modern Crimes, Conspiracies, and Cover-Ups in American Politics, Jeffries demonstrates that crimes, corruption, and conspiracies didn’t start with the assassination of President John F. Feds Finally Start Jailing Neo-Bolshevik Terrorists

By John Friend

On Nov. 1, a violent antifa extremist was sentenced to six years in prison for striking another man in the head with a baton during a protest in Portland, Ore. in June of this year. Protests in Portland in recent years have seen shocking levels of political violence, largely committed by radical leftwing extremists and members of antifa, who often use masks to conceal their identity and violently assault their perceived political opponents without provocation.

Gage Halupowski, 24, struck Adam Kelly, a conservative activist, in the head during the June protest, causing Kelly to require 25 staples to close the gash on his head. The violent blow, which was caught on film and used as evidence in the trial, also caused Kelly to sustain a concussion.

The incident took place during the same protest where independent journalist Andy Ngo was violently attacked, which caused Ngo to sustain serious injuries including a brain bleed. Several other conservative or right-leaning protesters were also assaulted by antifa members during the protest, yet thus far only Halupowski has been brought to justice.

Prosecutor Melissa Marrero argued that Halupowski's attack on Kelly was "completely unexplainable, completely avoidable, and didn't need to happen," according to The Epoch Times. Marrero indicated her office is continuing to investigate the violence that occurred that day, including others who participated in the attack against Kelly. "My office has individuals charged on both sides of the political spectrum," Marrero stated. "We are not picking sides based on political affiliation, political views, or anything like that."

The sentencing of Halupowski comes roughly one month after the successful conviction of yet another far-left extremist named David Campbell, 32, who pleaded guilty to two counts of felony assault last month. Campbell will serve 18 months in prison for assaulting a 56-year-old Trump supporter in January 2018. Campbell was arrested after reportedly punching the Trump supporter in the head after attending an event in New York City celebrating the anniversary of Donald Trump's inauguration organized by political commentator Mike Cernovich.

Following the assault, NYPD officers arrested and charged Campbell with multiple crimes, including strangulation, assault, criminal possession of a weapon, assault of a police officer, resisting arrest, and other related charges. The additional charges were dropped during the trial.

Ngo was recently interviewed on Fox News about the recent convictions of the two radical leftists. Incredibly, despite video and photographic evidence, credible testimony, and other evidence, the vast majority of leftwing activists who have engaged in political violence have not been prosecuted, leading many to conclude that certain elements in law enforcement and political establishment have coddled antifa extremists while pursuing right-leaning activists with the full force of the justice system.

"I want to point out that this is only the second

Is law enforcement finally aware of who is committing the violence?

violent antifa criminal across the United States to face actual prison time," Ngo stated to Fox News. "The first one was a militant in New York City; just last month he was sentenced to 18 months. So I hope that this marks a new trend in prosecutors pushing for actual convictions and sentencing."

Last month, a Manhattan judge sentenced two members of the Proud Boys, a much maligned pro-Western men's fraternal organization founded by the right-leaning political dissident and activist Gavin McInnes, to four-year prison sentences for their participation in a brawl with radical leftwing extremists, following a speech by McInnes at the Metropolitan Republican Club in New York roughly one year ago.

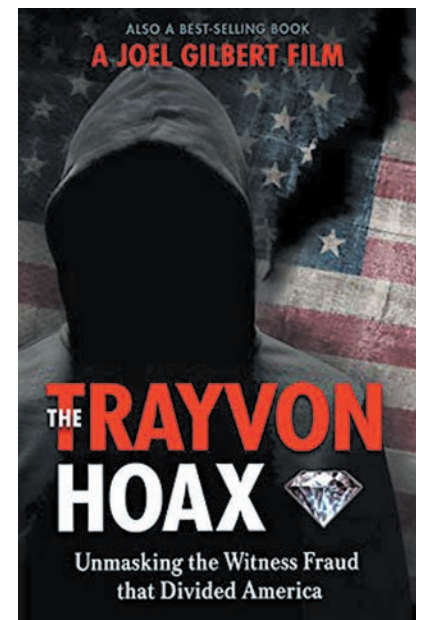

Maxwell Hare, 27, and John Kinsman, 40, were convicted of attempted gang assault, attempted assault, and rioting this past August for their actions on the evening of Oct. 12, 2018. Hare and Kinsman were with a group of other Proud Boys and supporters of McInnes who were exiting the Metropolitan Republican Club following McInnes's speech as radical leftwing extremists, who were protesting the event, eagerly awaited to unleash mayhem.

According to local reports, roughly 60 antifa-affiliated protesters jeered and physically confronted the Proud Boys and other attendees of the speech during their exit from the building. Police attempted to direct the attendees around the radical leftwing protesters, however several antifa members then attacked a group of the Proud Boys, including Hare and Kinsman. A violent scuffle ensued as fights broke out and punches were thrown. ★

The Trayvon Hoax: Unmasking the Witness Fraud that Divided America

NEW! By examining Trayvon Martin's 750-page cell phone records, Joel Gilbert discovers that the key witness for the prosecution of George Zimmerman, the plus-sized 18-year-old Rachel Jeantel, was a fraud. It was, in fact, a different girl who was on the phone with Trayvon just before he was shot. She was the 16-year-old named Diamond whose recorded conversation with attorney Benjamin Crump ignited the public, swayed President Obama, and provoked the nation's media to demand Zimmerman's arrest. Gilbert's painstaking research takes him through the high schools of Miami, into the back alleys of Little Haiti, and finally to Florida State University where he finds Trayvon's real girlfriend, the real phone witness, Diamond Eugene. Gilbert confirms his revelations with forensic handwriting analysis and DNA testing. After obtaining unredacted court documents and reading Diamond's vast social media archives, Gilbert then reconstructs the true story of Trayvon Martin's troubled teenage life and tragic death. In the process, he exposes in detail the most consequential hoax in recent American judicial history, that was ground zero for the downward spiral of race relations in America. BOOK: Softcover, 272 pages, $17. DVD: 120 minutes—$19. Faux Conservatives Being Challenged

By John Friend

A burgeoning movement on the dissident right comprised of America-first nationalists concerned with immigration, changing demographics, disastrous foreign entanglements, and globalism are on a mission to publicly confront, challenge, and expose the mainstream conservative establishment epitomized by figures such as Charlie Kirk of Turning Points USA (TPUSA) and Ben Shapiro of “The Daily Wire,” among others.

The America-first movement, led primarily by Nick Fuentes, a 21-year-old rising political commentator and host of “America First,” a popular nightly political analysis program on YouTube, has gained steam in recent weeks as supporters of the movement have publicly confronted Kirk and others associated with Conservative Inc at public events across the country. Kirk is wrapping up the TPUSA-sponsored Culture War tour, which brought the young conservative speaker and political organizer to various college campuses for public events that also featured open question and answer sessions.

Throughout the tour, Kirk invited other mainstream conservative figures on stage with him, and also helped organize similar events not officially part of the Culture War tour, including a recent book-signing event at UCLA featuring Donald Trump Jr. and Kimberly Guilfoyle, a former prosecutor and Fox News commentator that now serves as a senior adviser on the Trump presidential campaign. Other campus conservative groups, such as Young America’s Foundation and various college Republican organizations, have also organized public events in recent weeks that have been attended by supporters of the America-first movement.

Fuentes and his followers have used the Q&A sessions at these events to publicly challenge the conservative credentials of Kirk and others on stage with him, pressing the representatives of Conservative Inc on issues relating to massive immigration, both legal and illegal, unwavering support for Israel, and related matters. Questioners have even broached taboo topics such as Israel’s brutal assault on the USS Liberty in 1967, Israeli espionage against the U.S., and various cultural issues such as Conservative Inc’s seeming support and acceptance of the mainstreaming of homosexuality.

This reporter attended the aforementioned book signing event at UCLA, organized by TPUSA’s UCLA chapter. The event was designed to promote Donald Trump Jr.’s recently published book Triggered: How the Left Thrives on Hate and Wants to Silence Us All, with an open discussion followed by a book signing. Originally scheduled as a two-hour event, Kirk, Trump Jr., and Guilfoyle were forced to flee the stage after only 30 minutes due to boos and dissatisfaction from the audience, who were not allowed to ask questions or engage the speakers. Just prior to the speakers taking the stage, a representative from TPUSA’s UCLA chapter announced that a Q&A session would not be allowed due to time constraints. The announcement brought a deafening chorus of boos from the audience, many of whom were supporters of the America-first movement hoping to engage the speakers and challenge Kirk.

Since the event, a number of establishment media outlets have covered the America-first movement and its confrontation with Conservative Inc with the typical smears and slanders being leveled against a group of largely young American nationalists concerned about the future of their country, the direction of the conservative movement, and President Trump’s America-first agenda, which has been stymied by the Deep State and virtually the entire political and media establishment for decades now, if not the entire 20th century and now the 21st.

In response, Fuentes argued that the America-first movement does not have an issue with Donald Trump Jr. or the president. Rather, they are focused on exposing the faux conservatives surrounding the president and dominating the broader movement.

They want their voices heard and engaging mainstream conservative figures at public events has proven to be a successful strategy.

“Our problem is with Charlie Kirk’s TPUSA organization that shuts down and smears socially conservative Christians and supporters of President Trump’s agenda,” Fuentes said in part following the fallout from the UCLA event. “We are America first.”

Fuentes summed up the predicament the president finds himself in currently, indicating the forces the America First movement is opposing.

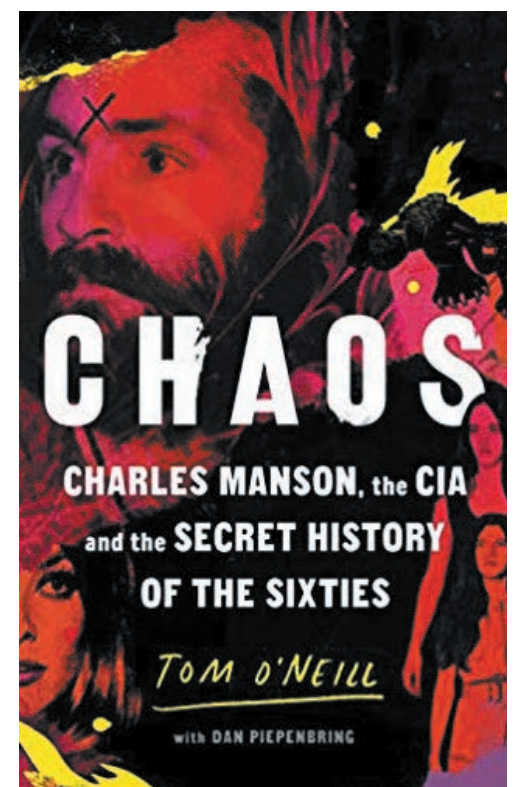

“President Trump’s agenda has been subverted from the beginning by people in his White House or inner circle who didn’t vote for him, aren’t loyal to him, and actively oppose his policies,” Fuentes noted. “They are the globalist GOP swamp trying to recapture the party from Trump and his voters,” he said. ★

Chaos: Charles Manson, the CIA and the Secret History of the Sixties

By Tom O’Neill with contributions from Dan Piepenbring. Over two grim nights in Los Angeles, the young followers of Charles Manson murdered seven people, including the actress Sharon Tate. With no mercy and seemingly no motive, the Manson Family allegedly followed their leader’s every order. Their crimes lit a flame of paranoia across the nation. Manson became one of history’s most infamous criminals. Twenty years ago, when journalist Tom O’Neill was reporting a magazine piece about the murders, he worried there was nothing new to say. Then he unearthed shocking evidence of a cover-up behind the “official” story, including police carelessness, legal misconduct, and potential surveillance by intelligence agents. When a tense interview with Vincent Bugliosi—prosecutor of the Manson Family and author of Helter Skelter—turned a friendly source into a nemesis, O’Neill knew he was onto something. But every discovery brought more questions: Who were Manson’s real friends in Hollywood, and how far would they go to hide their ties? Why didn’t law enforcement act on their many chances to stop him? And how did Manson—an illiterate ex-con—turn a group of peaceful hippies into remorseless killers? The Trouble With Barack Obama's "Dreamers"

Article I, section 1, of the Constitution gives all lawmaking power to a bicameral legislature, House and Senate. So, neither the executive nor the judicial branches of government can make laws binding upon the entire nation.

President Barack Obama unconstitutionally instituted the "Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals" measure (DACA) by executive order. Executive order authority is merely an instructive from a president, to tell executive departments and agencies how to implement laws passed by Congress. It has no binding legal authority whatsoever upon the American populace-at-large.

According to the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, American citizens are those either born on American soil or foreign persons naturalized by sanctioned government procedure. Both cases must be "subject to the jurisdiction thereof," i.e., of the United States and of the state in which they live. Children of illegal alien immigrants are always subject to the jurisdiction of the nation of their parents; i.e., their parents are always legally responsible for their children, under the authority of their parents' native country.

Sen. Chris Van Hollen Jr. (R-Md.) was born in Karachi, Pakistan, but because he was born to American parents, he retains his American citizenship. Only when foreign immigrant adults are officially naturalized can their children also be naturalized together with them. The DACA children are those of parents without valid American citizenship.

America has an exclusive sovereign right to decide which foreign immigrants may join the American family. Foreigners have no innate birthright to American citizenship. America does not belong to the rest of the world. It is not the world's political prostitute.

Trump Is All We have

We are in a culture war right now. This isn't between Republicans and Democrats. It is between the One-Worlders and freedom-loving Americans. I, for one, would hate to see my precious grandchildren live the life the Chinese people have to. Their government has been communist for as long as I know.

We may not all like Donald Trump, but in today's world he is the only one who can take on this challenge. Back a few years, JFK did and so did his brother Bobby. They both were killed, though. 2020 promises to be very interesting. I hope the truth can shine eventually. I'm optimistic that it will.

Gun Grab Coming?

During the presidential debate in early October, Democratic candidate for president Sen. Kamala Harris (Calif.) promised to issue, during her first 100 days in office, an executive order that would limit access to guns. Any law that violates the Constitution is null and void, but the Democrats will try to disarm everyone anyway.

The Second Amendment was not established for hunters and collectors. It was to protect the citizenry from our government disarming us. If you don't believe this can happen, look at what happened during Hurricane Katrina in New Orleans. During that disaster, law enforcement in several states, not just one, came into Louisiana and took guns away from law-abiding people. This was a practice run for what this party is planning.

Beware of Socialism

In the lead-up to the 2020 elections, we need to take a look at the past and then pause for a moment to really think about whether Americans should embrace socialism. Remember that socialism in France ended with guillotines. Socialism in Germany turned into concentration camps. Socialism in the USSR turned into death camps. Socialism in Venezuela turned into mass starvation. And then there are China, North Korea, and Cambodia.

George Santayana said, "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."
