CARAVAN CHAOS

• Media claims that migrant caravan is peaceful are lies

By John Friend

On Nov. 25, tear gas and pepper spray were used by U.S. Border Patrol agents to repel hundreds of migrants hell-bent on gaining political asylum in the U.S. following a rush on the U.S. border, which resulted in a temporary shutdown and major delays in crossing the port of entry.

Dramatic video captured near the San Ysidro Port of Entry bordering Tijuana, Mexico shows countless migrants attempting to force their way into the U.S. as many tried to run past security fences, evade immigration officials, and otherwise illegally enter the U.S. Some were seen throwing rocks and other projectiles at border patrol officials, as Mexican law enforcement officers struggled to contain and manage the mob.

Thousands of migrants, largely from Central American countries, have made their way north through Mexico in a caravan in recent weeks while many more continue their journey, raising concerns with both the Mexican government and the Trump administration.

President Donald Trump has characterized those participating in the caravan as economic migrants opportunistically fleeing their home countries with the hopes of taking advantage of America's generous asylum and social welfare policies. Many of the migrants are criminals with ties to gangs and drug cartels, the president and his supporters have argued, while local Mexican officials in Tijuana, where thousands of those traveling with the caravan are currently staying, have criticized the migrants and the problems the caravan has caused in their local community.

Trump and administration officials vehemently defended their agents' use of tear gas and pepper spray in responding to the lawlessness and chaos at the border, which was hysterically criticized by Democrats and opponents of the president.

Rodney Scott, chief of the Border Patrol's San Diego sector, recently confirmed that 42 individuals associated with the caravan were apprehended during the rowdy confrontation Nov. 24, with many more arrested by local Mexican law enforcement authorities. Scott said his agents' tactics were entirely justifiable given the dangerous circumstances they found themselves in, which included being assaulted by a "hail of rocks."

"That has happened before and, if we are rocked, that would happen again tomorrow," he explained to reporters recently. Trump also defended the response of the Border Patrol agents.

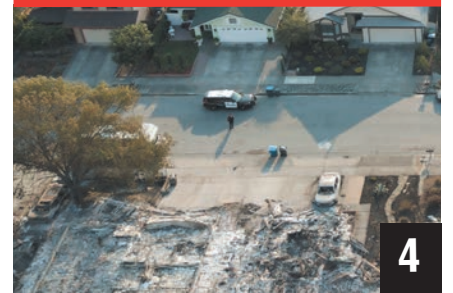

"They were being rushed by some very tough people and they used tear gas," Trump declared shortly after the incident. "Here's the bottom line: Nobody is coming into our country unless they come in legally."

U.S. Customs and Border Protection Commissioner Kevin McAleenan told reporters that hundreds of people attempted to rush the vehicle lanes at the border crossing that day, and the agents on duty used their professional judgment to handle the situation appropriately. Other administration officials, including Department of Homeland Security Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen, argued that many of the migrants attempted to use children as "human shields" in order to cross the border.

Tijuana Mayor Juan Manuel Gastélum has been vocal in his criticism of the migrant caravan, as have countless local Tijuana residents who view the migrants as disrespectful, disruptive, and entitled.

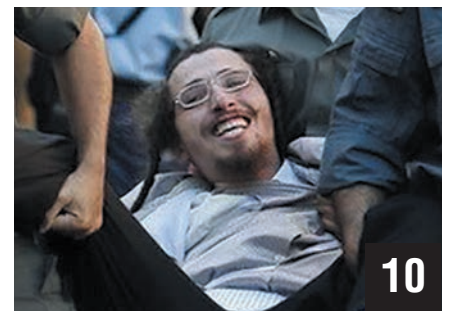

Gastélum said the migrants are "doing things outside the law," and that the caravan was "maliciously organized" with the "goal of creating trouble," according to the Epoch Times. ★

A PERSONAL MESSAGE FROM THE EDITOR

Wanted: Solutions to Growing Immigration Crisis

In this week's issue, we are publishing a letter on our "Letters to the Editor" page by longtime supporter and subscriber Nona Goodman, who was critical of the "Personal from the Editor" in the Nov. 5 & 12 edition of AMERICAN FREE PRESS.

In that issue's "Personal," the editors of this newspaper blasted U.S. immigration policy as chaotic, outdated, and slipshod. U.S. laws have been applied inconsistently from one administration to the next, we wrote, with President Donald Trump taking a hardline, zero-tolerance outlook when it comes to enforcing immigration directives while previous presidents, such as Barack Obama and George W. Bush, did arrest and deport millions of illegal immigrants but turned a blind eye to so-called "sanctuary cities" that would not investigate or prosecute immigration violators.

Sanctuary cities such as Los Angeles, Chicago, and New York are blatantly breaking U.S. immigration law. Obama chose to ignore them, but Trump called them out, threatening to cut off federal aid if officials in sanctuaries did not arrest illegal immigrants and turn them over to federal immigration authorities.

Mrs. Goodman didn't take issue with our characterization of U.S. immigration policy. Instead, she focused on what we wrote about liberal Canada's policies and its straightforward, modern laws designed to ensure Canadians can tightly control who comes to that country.

Mrs. Goodman asked some important questions of our "Personal," raising good points about the differences between the United States and Canada, much of which AMERICAN FREE PRESS editors touched on in the column.

These included Canada's rough climate and geography that sandwiches the vast country between two great northern oceans. Obviously, this makes sneaking into the country much more difficult than, say, the United States, France, Italy, Greece, or Hungary—something that was not lost on Mrs. Goodman.

Her chief point, however, wasn't so much an attack on Canada's so-called merit-based system, wherein each potential immigrant is vetted based on multiple criteria including what kinds of skills he brings to Canada. It was that this kind of detailed screening just would not work in the United States.

How could U.S. officials possibly do this, she asked, considering the massive scale of immigration we face on an annual basis?

Well, we did a little research. According to the latest figures available, the United States employs nearly 70,000 people in the Customs and Border Protection (CBP) agency, 46,000 of whom are sworn federal agents and officers. With an annual budget of nearly $14 billion, the CBP is the primary agency responsible for protecting the nation's borders. But that's not the only agency responsible for policing immigration into the U.S. The State Department, Immigration and Customs Enforcement, and the United States Citizenship and Immigration Services all work directly on the immigration process, doing everything from running visas, to documenting and removing illegal aliens, to conducting background checks on applicants. Those three agencies collectively employ 100,000 federal and civilian workers.

And that's not all, folks.

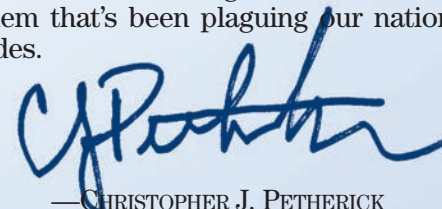

In addition, the following U.S. agencies also work on immigration to varying degrees: the Selective Service, the Social Security Administration, the Department of Health and Human Services, the Department of Justice, and the Internal Revenue Service. Taken together, that adds tens of thousands more federal and civilian workers to the army of bureaucrats around the United States, who in some capacity handle aspects of U.S. immigration.

In other words, every day, well over 100,000 government workers and private contractors at a cost of tens of billions of dollars to taxpayers could be called upon to lend a hand when it comes to evaluating possible new immigrants, especially if the immigration process were streamlined so as to ensure ease of administering applications.

Here's the problem, though.

With Democrats becoming the majority in the House of Representatives next year, Republicans, who had controlled Congress and the White House for the past two years, lost an incredible opportunity to try to repair our broken system. Instead, they sat around and attacked the president's attitude about illegal immigration rather than act. Unfortunately, now, it looks like we can expect many more years to come of chaos and lawlessness on our borders—a sad prospect for most Americans, who simply want their elected representatives to do what is right and solve a major problem that's been plaguing our nation for decades. ★

News You May Have Missed

More on the Migrant Caravan

Even far-left news agency MSNBC has been forced to admit that the massive migrant caravan, which in late November had stalled out in Tijuana, Mexico, right in front of the San Ysidro port of entry in the United States, is not made up of families and women and children fleeing violence in Central America and seeking asylum in the United States. In an interview on MSNBC, reporter Gadi Schwartz, who is on location in Tijuana, said, “The truth is, the majority of the people that are in this caravan, especially outside—if we can make our way all the way over there we’ll show you the majority of them are men . . . and some of these men have not articulated that need for asylum.”

Obama Did It 80 Times?

The mainstream media was in an uproar over the fact that U.S. Border officials under President Donald Trump had fired tear gas into a crowd of hundreds of migrants attempting to storm the U.S. border and break into the United States. “Breitbart News” reported on Nov. 27 that, between 2012 and 2017, “U.S. Customs and Border Protection law enforcement officials under President Barack Obama fired tear gas at migrants at or near the border at least 80 times.”

Mexicans Want Tougher Stance

NBC News reported on a new poll conducted by El Universal, a Mexican newspaper, which found that 70% of Mexicans have a negative view of the migrants from the caravan, 52% of Mexicans support stopping migrants from entering Mexico without documentation, and 55% believe Mexican President-elect Andrés Manuel López Obrador should be tougher on future migrant caravans.

ANDRÉS LOPEZ OBRADOR

Ran from Migrants in Fear

On Nov. 25, U.S. border officials closed the San Ysidro port of entry after hundreds of migrants, who were part of the massive caravan from Central America, tried to storm the border between Tijuana, Mexico and San Diego. Border agents then used tear gas to push the crowd back. “Buzzfeed News” reportedly interviewed the Central American woman who was the subject of a now-infamous photo of her running with her children from the gas. Here is what 39-year-old Maria Meza told “Buzzfeed”: “I brought five of my kids with me yesterday. I was there with them at the wall. I felt sad, scared, and wanted to cry. That’s when I grabbed my daughters and ran. I thought my kids were going to die with me because of the gas we inhaled. . . . It wasn’t right that they acted that way with kids. They have kids, too, and they should’ve thought about their own kids, just like they should’ve thought about ours. . . . I’m praying to God. I know that he will open the doors so that we can enter, or if we stay in Tijuana, he’ll open the doors so they will be able to give us, maybe, some sort of papers so that we can stay and work here. . . . I’m a mother who needs a job. I work to help my kids move forward and give them the best.”

Liberals Eat Their Own

News and commentary website “The Federalist” recently reported that Twitter permanently banned feminist activist Meghan Murphy, a writer based out of British Columbia, Canada, for the crime of criticizing “transgender ideology.” This isn’t the first time Ms. Murphy has been censored by Twitter. The platform repeatedly suspended her account for this and other writings that included such controversial statements as “men are not women.” Here’s what Ms. Murphy had to say about her deplatforming: “What is insane to me, though, is that while Twitter knowingly permits graphic pornography and death threats on the platform (I have reported countless violent threats, the vast majority of which have gone unaddressed), they won’t allow me to state very basic facts, such as ‘men aren’t women.’ This is hardly an abhorrent thing to say, nor should it be considered ‘hateful’ to ask questions about the notion that people can change sex, or ask for explanations about transgender ideology. These are now, like it or not, public debates—debates that are impacting people’s lives, as legislation and policy are being imposed based on gender identity ideology.”

Huge Autism Numbers

A new survey of U.S. parents estimates that as many as one in 40 children has been diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder, according to an article published on Nov. 26 in the journal Pe- diatrics. That translates into 2.5% of U.S. children, or about 1.5 million kids ages three to 17. There was no mention in Pediatrics of the cause of the high number of autism cases, though many people contend it is a result of pollution as well as certain types of medicines including vaccines.

MICHAEL AVENATTI

Avenatti a Hypocritical Phony?

On Nov. 14, Michael Avenatti, the liberal anti-Trump attorney who claims to be a women’s rights ally, was arrested for beating his wife, reports “Sputnik News.” The charge includes “felony domestic violence.” Avenatti’s infamous career includes representing a porn star against the president as well as promoting a woman who made absurd claims against Brett Kavanaugh during his confirmation hearings. Now, Avenatti has also been accused of sending a “gay Latino activist” into the Farmington Country Club in Virginia to verbally abuse Fox News host Tucker Carlson and his daughter, yelling “whore” at the 19-year-old woman. Avenatti claims that he will be running for president in the 2020 election as a Democrat.

Chemical Attack

The U.S. mainstream media completely ignored a major chemical weapons attack in the town of Aleppo in Syria on Nov. 24, largely because it didn’t fit the previous narrative that the Syrian government was behind it. According to reports, Syrian leader Bashar al-Assad and the Russian military are blaming terrorists still located in Syria for the suspected toxic gas attack in Aleppo city, which is now almost totally controlled by the Syrian military. A Syrian humanitarian group believes that the attack wounded nearly 100 people, including women and children.

Why Are Houses Burning, But Not Trees?

- Massive home destruction from California wildfires may be linked to “smart meters”

By Mark Anderson

Longtime activist and Eagle Forum of California President Orlean Koehle is highly doubtful that the widespread fires that have ravaged California are the result of errant “camp fires” and other innocuous causes. She is working with Yreka, Calif. Tea Party member Louise Gliatto to call attention to the digital “smart meters” that monitor customer power usage in most of California and the nation. The goal is to inspire citizens to ask whether these devices are a major reason that entire neighborhoods of homes—in the fires last year and this year—burned so intensely and completely, and often in a uniformly bizarre manner.

Mrs. Koehle said on Nov. 26 that the Press Democrat newspaper in Santa Rosa, Calif. declined to publish her guest column about evidence that smart meters have a low threshold of resistance to power surges and can explode, thereby causing ultra-hot fires when that threshold is breached. However, another newspaper, the Yreka area’s Siskiyou Daily News in Siskiyou County, ran her column.

Focusing on the fall 2017 Santa Rosa fires, Mrs. Koehle wrote in her column: “So many people are placing the blame for the horrendous fires in Santa Rosa last year (where over 5,000 homes were destroyed and 42 people killed) on PG&E (Pacific Gas & Electrical) for not taking better care of their power lines, which were falling down in the high 60-80 mph winds during the evening and night of Oct. 7-8 and creating sparks that started the fires. Could that be only half of the story?”

She continued: “According to an expert, Bill Bathgate, an electrical engineer who has worked for the Department of Defense, when the power lines were downed they created an electrical surge that went directly to the homes that have smart meters and ‘caused a significant fault and an explosion of the meters.’ The smart meters are designed to resist 300 volts of surge, but the surge was probably much higher—in the thousands of volts—and caused them to explode. Could this explain why so many people as they were fleeing their homes the night of Oct. 8 heard the sound of ‘pop-pop-pop’ explosions?”

Mrs. Koehle told this AFP writer that, according to Bathgate, electrical fires burn with higher temperatures than a normal fire, up to around 3,000 to 4,000 degrees, “hot enough to melt metal” and “even ceramics” including toilets and tubs.

She added that this could explain “why hardly anything was left in the homes except the brick fireplaces.” Moreover, “all refrigerators, washing machines and other appliances were melted and the cars in garages were left with only their steel frame; all aluminum had melted, all electrical components were gone, and even the rubber had melted off the tire frames.”

Mrs. Koehle’s home in Rincon Valley in Santa Rosa was directly in the path of the “Tubbs fire” in October 2017, but their home miraculously survived the fire even when their neighbors’ homes around them burned to the ground, again with all metals melted.

Mrs. Koehle and her husband were the only area homeowners who refused PG&E’s smart meter. They kept their old analog meter that lacked a radio-frequency chip and had nothing in it to make it explode. Tragically, in the aftermath of the blaze, the local utility audaciously installed a smart meter anyway.

Analog meters are also grounded, so if there is a surge, it goes into the ground and there is no explosion, Mrs. Koehle said. In south Stockton, Calif., back in March of 2015, more than 5,000 homes were left without electricity after a power line was reportedly hit by a dump truck. The collision caused the upper wire of the power line to fall on the bottom wire, sparking a power surge that caused hundreds of smart meters “to literally explode.”

As for Ms. Gliatto—who agrees that evidence is mounting that smart meters are a strong factor in California’s fires—she said that, as a conservative in north Siskiyou County, it’s not always easy to agree with the more liberal-minded residents to the south, but exploring the smart meter angle has brought about the kind of unity that can easily happen when people stop listening to the divisive mainstream media and start talking amongst themselves to take action.

“I found a like-minded person in south county who’s very liberal. And the liberal was shocked that a conservative like me is concerned about smart meters,” she said, while describing the resulting cooperative activities.

“We went to different libraries, one in north county and two in south county to give presentations, and we joined forces with a retired electrician. We did letters to the editor and a protest in front of our provider, Pacific Power’s office building, and put YouTube videos of the protest online,” she explained. She added that southern Oregon activists are joining northern Californians in the wake of this year’s fires to fully study the issue and seek measures to help people opt out of having to use smart meters, among other objectives. ★

Israeli-American Terrorist Sentenced

• More phony hate crimes pop up after murder of immigrant activists in synagogue

By John Friend

An Israeli court has finally sentenced a young Israeli-American to 10 years in prison for making thousands of fake bomb threats to a variety of organizations around the world, including many Jewish community centers, schools, and other institutions in the U.S., it was recently reported.

Michael Kadar, the now 20-year-old Jewish man whose criminal mischief garnered international headlines at the time, was found guilty of a series of crimes this past summer relating to the bomb threat hoaxes, including extortion, money laundering, conspiracy to commit a crime, computer hacking, and assault. In late November, an Israeli court rejected Kadar's defense team's argument that the young man was incompetent and unfit to stand trial due to his autism, low IQ, and other medical issues, handing down a 10-year prison sentence.

Israeli Judge Tzvi Gurfinkel found that Kadar was entirely responsible for his criminal actions, despite his medical conditions. Kadar was originally charged and arrested in a joint operation involving the FBI and Israeli law enforcement officials in March of this year after the bomb threats caused considerable panic and outrage around the world.

Between January and March 2017, Kadar made thousands of threatening phone calls to a variety of organizations and institutions using an online calling service that allowed him to mask his identity and disguise his voice. The fake threats generated hysteria, fueling the weaponized mainstream media narrative that then-recently elected President Donald Trump was fueling and encouraging anti-Semitism and "hate" with his divisive politics and controversial statements. At the time, leaders and spokespersons for the organized Jewish community denounced the president's rhetoric and politics, arguing Trump was helping to mainstream anti-Semitism and bigotry. As it would turn out, the alleged "anti-Semitic" bomb threats were in reality hoaxes carried out by a young Jewish man.

In related news, James Polite, a 26-year-old black man who previously worked as an intern investigating and combating hate crimes for former New York City Council speaker Christine Quinn, was recently arrested on criminal mischief charges for writing "Die Jew Rats," "Hitler," "End It Now," and "Jews Better Be Ready," on the walls of Temple Union synagogue in Brooklyn. Polite reportedly defaced the Brooklyn synagogue with anti-Semitic graffiti less than one week after the alleged shooting at the Tree of Life synagogue in Pittsburgh, which resulted in the death of 11 individuals, all of whom were members and attendees of the synagogue. Bizarrely, Polite identifies as homosexual and even had Jewish foster parents.

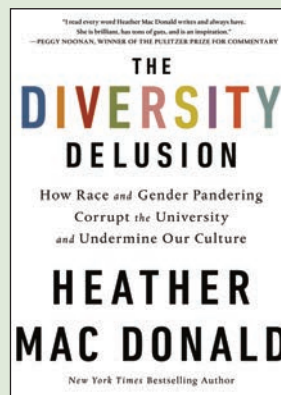

In addition to criminal mischief charges, Polite was also charged with arson and reckless endangerment for targeting not only Temple Union synagogue but other institutions affiliated with the Jewish community in New York as well, including Yeshiva Beth Hillel of Williamsburg. Polite lit a fire in the Yeshiva coatroom, and targeted other buildings associated with the Jewish community, it was reported. All of the charges Polite is currently facing are considered hate crimes by local authorities.

"I'm devastated," Ms. Quinn told The New York Times following Polite's arrest. "What James did is horrible and in some ways unforgivable. He ended up acting out violently and hatefully and I am so sorry. It's heartbreaking."

This bizarre incident is apparently yet another example of the trumped up "hate crimes" hyped and promoted by liberal advocacy groups in an effort to generate sympathy and perpetuate claims of oppression and victimhood status. ★

The Diversity Delusion: How Race and Gender Pandering Corrupt the University and Undermine Our Culture

NEW! America is in crisis, from the university to the workplace. Toxic ideas first spread by higher education have undermined human values, fueled intolerance, and widened divisions in our larger culture. Chaucer, Shakespeare and Milton? Oppressive. American history? Tyranny. Professors correcting grammar and spelling or employers hiring by merit? Racist and sexist. Students emerge into the working world believing that human beings are defined by their skin color, gender, and sexual preference, and that oppression based on these characteristics is the American experience. Speech that challenges these orthodoxies is silenced with force. The root of this problem is the belief in America's endemic racism and sexism, a belief that has engendered a metastasizing diversity bureaucracy in society and academia. Diversity commissars denounce meritocratic standards as discriminatory, enforce hiring quotas, and teach everyone to think of themselves as perpetual victims. Author Heather MacDonalD argues that we are creating a nation of narrowed minds, primed for grievance, and that we are putting our competitive edge at risk. But there is hope in the works of authors, composers, and artists who have long inspired the best in us. Compiling the author's decades of research and writing on the subject, The Diversity Delusion calls for a return to the classical liberal pursuits of open-minded inquiry and expression. Trump Must Not Repeat Bush's Folly

• U.S., Saudis place economic interests over Muslim, Christian human rights across region

By Patrick J. Buchanan

The 633-word statement of President Donald Trump on the Saudi royals' role in the grisly murder of Washington Post contributor Jamal Khashoggi is a remarkable document, not only for its ice-cold candor. The president re-raises a question that has roiled the nation since Jimmy Carter: To what degree should we allow idealistic values to trump vital interests in determining foreign policy?

On the matter of who ordered the killing of Khashoggi, Trump does not rule out the crown prince as prime suspect: "King Salman and Crown Prince Mohammad bin Salman [MBS] vigorously deny any knowledge of the planning or execution of the murder . . . (but) it could very well be that the crown prince had knowledge."

Yet whether MBS did or didn't do it, the Saudis have "agreed to spend . . . and invest $450 billion in the United States." And a full fourth of that is for "military equipment from Boeing, Lockheed Martin, Raytheon, and other great U.S. defense contractors." "Foolishly" cancel these contracts, warns Trump, and Russia or China will snap them up. Moreover, the Saudis have agreed to pump oil to keep prices down.

Trump is unabashedly putting U.S. economic and strategic interests first. He is not going to damage our relationship with Riyadh and its royal family, even if the future king ordered a cold-blooded killing of a U.S.-based Saudi journalist he regarded as an enemy. The stark manner in which Trump framed the issue will force the members of Congress of both parties to decide whether they wish to defy Trump, sanction the Saudis, and risk the relationship.

Other contentions in Trump's statement suggest that one of the reasons he is giving the crown prince a pass on the Khashoggi killing is that he sees MBS as an indispensable ally against our real enemy in the region.

After his introductory line, Trump goes into a tear that begins, "The country of Iran . . . is responsible for a bloody proxy war against Saudi Arabia in Yemen." But is this true?

In 2015, it was on the orders of MBS, then defense minister, that Saudi Arabia intervened in the civil war in Yemen, after Houthi rebels in the north overthrew a Saudi puppet and overran much of the rest of the country.

It is not Iran but Saudi Arabia and the UAE, with U.S. munitions and logistic support, whose troops, bombs, and blockade are responsible for the thousands of casualties in Yemen and the millions who suffer from cholera, malnutrition, and starvation.

It is not the Iranians who are trying to close the last port of entry for humanitarian aid for the suffering civilian population.

Iran, said Trump, is "propping up dictator Bashar Assad in Syria (who has killed millions of his own citizens). . . . Likewise the Iranians have killed many Americans and other people throughout the Middle East."

But the cause of the 7,000 U.S. military dead in the Middle East in this century, and the 60,000 wounded, are the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq that were launched by the United States and George Bush, not by Iran. As for U.S. civilian casualties, the 3,000 we lost in that monstrous atrocity of 9/11 were the victims of 15 Saudi terrorists, not Iranians, according to our own government.

While Iran has aided its Shiite allies in Iraq, and those allies have fought Americans, the major terrorist organizations we fight today in the Near East, Middle East, and Africa—al Qaeda and its affiliates, the Taliban, ISIS, Boko Haram, al-Shabaab—are all Sunni, like the Saudis. These terrorist groups are Iran's enemies as well as ours.

"Our paramount goal," Trump declared in his statement, "is to fully eliminate the threat of terrorism throughout the world." But this objective is every bit as utopian as George W. Bush's second inaugural where he declared the "ultimate goal" of U.S. foreign policy to be "ending tyranny in our world." Terrorism and tyranny have been with mankind forever, and they will be with mankind forever.

Trump both titled and concluded his statement "America first." But, had an America-first policy been pursued in this century, we would not today be tied down in these forever wars of the Middle East. We would not have attempted to create a Western-style democracy in the wilds of Afghanistan. We would not have invaded Iraq, or attacked Libya, or armed rebels to overthrow Assad, thereby igniting a war that has cost half a million Syrian lives and made refugees of millions.

In his statement, Trump praises Saudi Arabia as a "great ally in our very important fight against Iran." Yet Iran has not attacked us, does not want war with us, and remains in compliance with the nuclear treaty from which we walked away.

Trump is president because he promised to extricate us from the Mideast wars into which some of his closest advisers, along with some of our closest "allies," helped to plunge his country.

Is Trump about to replicate Bush's folly? ★

A Truthseeker's Guide to False Flags and Other Strange Events in American History

NEW! Here's the guide for experts or beginners that explains how false flags have been used to change American history. Fort Sumter, the sinking of the Maine and Lusitania, the attack on Pearl Harbor, the North Vietnamese attacks in the Gulf of Tonkin, the "Arab terrorists" who took down the Twin Towers—all of these events and the ensuing inflammatory mainstream media coverage were used as rallying cries to push a pro-peace nation toward war. But could these events have been prevented? Did they occur the way we were told? A bigger question is, what if the causes of these events and the media propaganda barrage were all scripted by the Deep State? In A Truthseeker's Guide to False Flags and Other Strange Events in American History, Clint Lacy examines the official narratives of each of these events (and more) and then provides information that contradicts the official story. AN INNOCENT MAN

Newly Released FBI Files Details DOJ Plot to Frame White Activist Bill White

On October 26, 2018, the Trump administration released to imprisoned white nationalist political activist Bill White a file detailing meetings between Department of Justice (DOJ) officials and members of Robert Mueller's Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), in which it was decided to frame White for crimes the DOJ knew he did not commit in order to silence his political speech. In between assessments by attorneys and agents that the specific acts White was later charged with were not crimes, the file contains meeting notes with dates, times, names, and places, showing how the plot to criminally frame White and imprison him came together in the minds of these corrupt public officials.

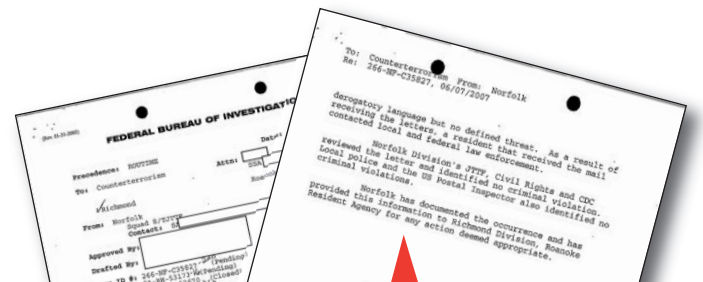

This attack was the culmination of a multi-year effort by a little known unit of the FBI which had been assigned to destroy what the DOJ called the "white supremacist extremist" and "sovereign and militia extremist" movements, definitions which extended from National Socialists like White to politicians like Ron Paul, Lou Barletta and President Donald Trump. The FBI Counter-Terrorism Division Domestic Terrorism Strategic Operations Section and the Domestic Terrorism Operations Units I and II (DTOU I and DTOU II) are the "dirty tricks" units of the FBI, a veritable criminal mafia that operated essentially without accountability under both George W. Bush and Barack Hussein Obama. Tasked with performing the genocide and suppression of America's white working class, this globalist extremist terror group created phony "white nationalist" organizations, "disrupted" the lives of those who joined, tampered in federal elections, orchestrated false arrests and torture and eventually organized an FBI "death squad" which may have carried out the murders of several American political dissidents.

Worst of all, perhaps, is another secret program that has come out in these files, a DTOU operation in which pedophiles and convicted sex offenders were recruited out of federal and state prisons and organized into FBI-run Satanic cults, including the "Joy of Satan" and "Teens for Satan" organizations. Bill White stumbled upon this program in 2006 when he discovered that the FBI was placing infiltrator pedophiles into senior leadership positions in phony "white supremacist extremist" groups in order to discredit opponents of the FBI's radical globalist agenda.

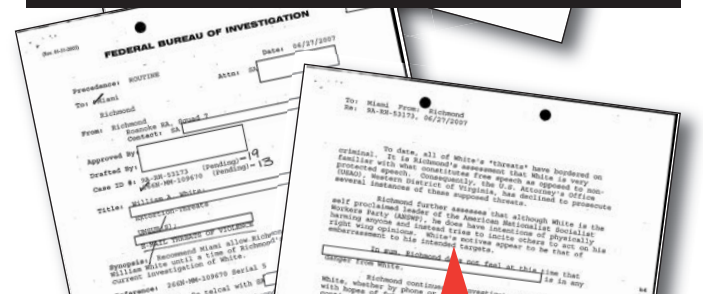

This evidence has come out solely because of the support that White has received from concerned supporters. Your money has helped offset the costs of almost two dozen legal actions that have exposed the lies of the Deep State and begun to force the Department of Justice to pay attention to the corruption of the past two administrations. But your help is still needed. Though a pardon application and several legal actions to free White are pending, he remains in prison.

"Norfolk Division's JTTF, Civil Rights, and CDC reviewed the letter and identified no criminal violation. Local police and the U.S. Postal Inspector also identified no criminal violations."

"Richmond further assesses that although White is the self-proclaimed leader of the American Nationalist Socialist Workers Party (ANSWP), he does [not] have intentions of physically harming anyone and, instead, tries to incite others to act on his right wing opinions. White's motives appear to be that of embarrassment to his intended targets."

"White said Monday he stepped down as spokesman for the group, and leader of its Roanoke unit, over the weekend following revelations that some members are involved with [an FBI front] group called Joy of Satan. According to White and others, the Satanic group engages in inappropriate sexual discussions with children through its Teens for Satan e-mail group." — Roanoke Times, 7/11/2006

Global Pushback Against Israel Rises

• Christian groups, some members of Congress no longer willing to bankroll genocide

By Philip Giraldi

One of the remarkable aspects of the Israeli government's program to turn the United States into a vassal state that exists to provide money, political support, and military interventions to destroy adversaries like Iran is the complete lack of any debate on the issue in the U.S. mainstream media or in Congress. But there are signs that at least some of that might be changing. The election of at least three Democratic congresswomen—Ilhan Omar, Rashida Tlaib, and Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez—who might be willing to discuss Israel in something less than worshipful ways is an only miniscule shift in the alignment of the Democratic party, where Jewish money dominates, but it reflects the views of the party's grassroots. A recent poll demonstrates that surveyed Democrats favor Israel over Palestine by a margin of only 2%—27% versus 25%—with the remainder of responders favoring neither side.

More significant is last week's announcement by Sen. Rand Paul (R-Ky.) that he intends to place a "hold" on the current package of $38 billion in military aid to Israel, which means he can filibuster the issue in the Senate to delay its passage. Paul, who, like his father, is a skeptic regarding foreign aid in general, did not cite any specific issues connected to the aid package, but critics have long noted that Israel is in fact ineligible for any foreign aid from the United States because it has an undeclared nuclear arsenal consisting of at least 200 weapons and delivery systems enabling them to destroy targets in most of Europe and western Asia. For that reason, providing aid to Israel is illegal under the Symington Amendment of 1961 as well as due to the fact that Tel Aviv has rejected signing the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT), for obvious reasons.

There are other issues relating to Israel, to include its booming economy, which would suggest

At left, Israeli policemen carry away an Orthodox Jewish man who has spat upon Christians in the streets of Israel. Archbishop Nourhan Manougian asks, "When there is an attack against Jews anywhere in the world, the Israeli government is incensed, so why, when [we are spat upon], don't they take harsher measures?"

lobby is already reacting hysterically to the "hold," as is the Israeli government, and one can be sure that all their massive resources will be used to punish the senator.

Another area where one might have expected more pushback from Americans is the lack of any serious resistance from Christian groups to the process whereby the conservative Likud-dominated Netanyahu government is seeking to turn Israel into a purely Jewish state. Israel boasts that it provides a safe haven for Christians to practice their religion, but reports that occasionally surface in some of the alternative media suggest something quite different. Jewish zealots spit on Christian clergy and curse them out in the streets without any fear of repercussions. Some clergy have been harassed and even assaulted by Jewish extremists. Churches and property of religious foundations are frequently vandalized, defaced with obscene graffiti, and the Israeli government has also confiscated or destroyed church property.

At the founding of the state of Israel in 1948 there existed a considerable Christian community inside Israel, on the West Bank and in Gaza. It was estimated that nearly 10% of Palestinian Arabs were Christian, mostly Greek Orthodox or Catholic. There were also churches and foundations in the old city of Jerusalem that adhered to other sects, including Syrian and Armenian Christians. Currently the percentage of Christians is closer to 2% of the Palestinian population with that it does not need more money from the U.S. taxpayer who does not enjoy the free healthcare and university education that all Israelis receive. And then there is also the problem with using American-provided weapons to commit war crimes in Gaza and Lebanon, illegal under both U.S. and international law.

Nevertheless, Paul's action is extremely courageous, as he is the first senator since William Fulbright to dare to say anything negative about the Jewish state. Fulbright was, of course, punished by the Israel lobby, which committed major resources to defeating him when he next came up for reelection. Another senator, Charles Percy, who was so bold as to maintain that Palestinian Arabs might actually have "rights," also found himself confronted by an extremely well-funded opponent who defeated him for reelection. Paul's action is far from risk free. In fact, the Israel more than a million Palestinian Christians living in other countries, having been driven from their homes by the Israelis in 1948 and after 1967. The Israelis sometimes claim that most Palestinians have departed the country due to persecution by Muslims, but Palestinian sources deny that assertion.

Christian churches have been reluctant to support their co-religionists in Israel and the Occupied Territories presumably for fear of being labeled as anti-Semitic in criticizing the Jewish state, as is routinely done by both Jewish groups and the Israeli government to end all discussion. But, as in the case of Sen. Paul, that, too, is changing.

The Presbyterian Church has led the charge in criticizing Israeli brutality. At its June General Assembly it passed a resolution condemning Israeli apartheid. Its Office of Public Witness has been in the forefront in calling on Israel to cease and desist. An action alert issued this summer entitled “Tell Congress: 70 years of suffering is enough! Stop the killing, hold Israel accountable, and support human rights for all” denounced the slaughter of unarmed Palestinian demonstrators in Gaza by the Israeli army.

The Presbyterians also signed on to a letter on May 14 entitled “70 Years On: Seeking a hopeful future in a time of yearning,” which called for an end to the slaughter and justice for the Palestinians. It was also signed onto by 13 other Christian groups, including the United Church of Christ, the Reformed Churches in America, the Lutherans, and Maryknoll. A copy was sent to each congressman.

Israel’s friends have pushed back against the Presbyterians, with the American Jewish Committee denouncing “The Church [as] remain[ing] obsessively critical of Israel in its national utterances. For many years and in myriad ways, the PCUSA has gone beyond legitimate criticism of Israel and embraced demonization of the Jewish state.” Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu also criticized the Presbyterians when they withdrew $21 million in investments in Israel, saying hyperbolically, “You come to Israel and you see the one democracy that upholds basic human rights, that guards the rights of all minorities, that protects Christians—Christians are persecuted throughout the Middle East. So most Americans understand that Israel is a beacon of civilization and moderation. You know, I would suggest to these Presbyterian organizations to fly to the Middle East, come and see Israel for the embattled democracy that it is.”

Christian groups are catching on that the Israeli government is not really concerned about their rights.”

Now it is the turn of the Quakers in Britain, who have banned any investment by the church in companies that exploit the “military occupation of Palestinian territories by the Israeli government,” prompting a furious response from Jewish leaders. It is the first British church to do so, and leaders of the group have compared their action to taking steps against apartheid and the slave trade. The Board of Deputies of British Jews immediately described the move as “appalling” and demanded that the policy be reversed.

It is certainly refreshing to see anyone taking on Israel and its all-too-often invincible lobby. What is significant is that Christian churches and even some congressmen have begun to speak out in spite of the knowledge that unprincipled Zionist power in the United States will make them pay a price for doing so. May the realization of just how evil Israel’s government is and the terrible damage it has done to the United States grow, finally reaching a point where some people in Congress, the media, and even in the White House will begin to listen. ★

I am still going strong at 89!

And much of my great health is due to the water I drink.

BY JOHN ELLIS

Inventor of the E-5 Water Machine

I will show you how I survived cancer after receiving Nasal Radium Treatments at age 14 before I went to The Choate School and read a book by Michael Faraday (one of the greatest scientists the world has ever known). It was called The Fathers of Modern Chemistry and in it Faraday stated: "Rapidly heating and cooling water stops disease."

Ultimately, this information saved my life—and thousands of others—because Faraday's method produces measurable ENERGY needed to stop disease unlike "SINGLE PASS" Filters/Distillers that have actually exacerbated human suffering in addition to requiring 30 TIMES more energy to split water into Hydrogen and Oxygen. (AMMETER VIDEO PROOF at JohnEllis.com)

There aren't any honest detractors (unless they think they are smarter than Faraday) because all I did was use scientific tools he didn't have available 118 years ago so I could achieve his dream for mankind!

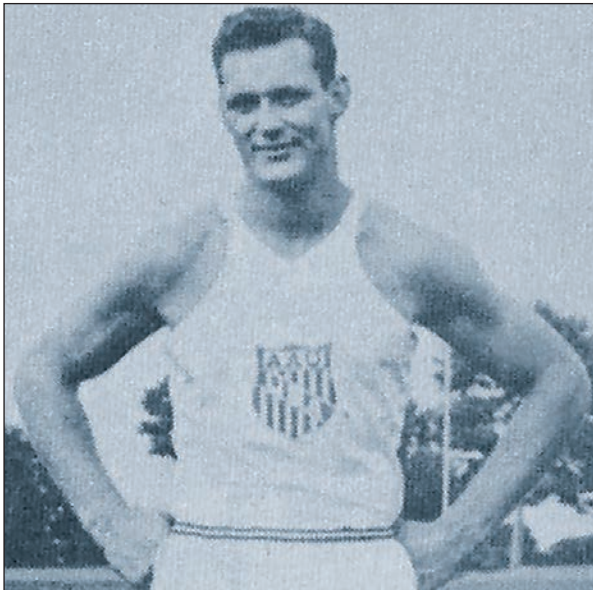

It wasn't until years later (with an Engineering degree that includes Steam Plant Design) that I developed and patented my John Ellis E5 home water machine that uses Faraday's method of heating and cooling with RESULTS GUARANTEED by a BLOOD TEST!

HOW CAN WE DO THAT?

MEASURABLE RESULTS

An annual physical includes a patient's BLOOD TEST and Dr. Guy Abraham, M.D. did Independent studies at UCLA with my water machine. Dr. Abraham taught at the UCLA Medical School. He proved the claims we made about our water machines were true. He used five E5s for the tests and he ended up doing hundreds of Blood Tests of text subjects:

"You can't argue with something you can measure... the results speak for themselves! We can measure the ability of blood (94% water) to go through a membrane and into the cells. NOTHING IS EVEN CLOSE TO YOUR WATER. You changed the properties of water. Your Hydrogen Bond Angle is 10 degrees greater than ordinary water. No wonder we get these results!"

JOHN ELLIS
1958 Discus Champ!

The ENERGY VIDEO at JohnEllis.com ("Can't be duplicated by ANY other water") and the Cancer Chart the FTC returned to us ALSO PROVE WHY MY WATER MACHINE PRODUCES RESULTS NEVER SEEN BEFORE.

WATER PROPERTIES are actually changed using Faraday's "MULTI PASS" method of "rapidly heating/cooling water" (three times per minute) hundreds of times per gallon... not ONCE!! 332 FDA Tests and 13 International Patents don't tell you the parameters we check ... even the vacuum created by the boiler before we ship a machine!

And here is a snippet about a soon-to-be-released book, THE FARADAY TWINS, which mentions John Ellis's achievements:

"THE FARADAY TWINS—'the impossible miracle that took 118 years to achieve'—is a thoroughly researched book by an author with 16 million followers that relates [John Ellis's] discovery to not only Faraday but also scientists like Davy, Bell, Edison and Tesla after interviewing top scientists even at the Los Alamos Nuclear Lab who said, 'It's a major discovery. We wish we owned his patents!' ... a fascinating read!"

Even with Faraday's help, I am amazed anyone would mention my discovery in the same breath with the most famous scientists the world has ever known!!

As always, the results speak for themselves.

WATER DISTILLERS

The home filter/distiller industry really started 50 years ago during Vietnam, when I owned Precision Switch Corp Port Chester, NY and my Resident Military Inspectors asked me about "SINGLE PASS" DISTILLATION that POISONED our SAILORS aboard the USS Buchanan (Internet) distilling highly diluted Agent Orange Dioxin in HUGE VOLUMES of SEAWATER!! I said:

"Filtering and distilling even SMALLER volumes of water using "single pass" distillers will CONCENTRATE chemicals even more and may cause cancer... like making tinctures, CONCENTRATING the very chemicals you want to remove!!"

As a result, the founder of a major "single pass" distiller company died of cancer in his early 50s just as I warned! After 9/11, Sloan Kettering treated thousands of victims with accolades from the head oncologist who retired after 30 years: “I don’t have access to your water anymore!” (name and order info on file) Note the chart the FTC returned to us after the Chairman of The Armed Services Committee called the head of the FTC and said: “Leave the man alone... This is the real deal!”

My Resident Military Inspectors also asked me about a company producing parts for nuclear submarines like the Thresher and Scorpion. I said: “They will sink to the bottom during sea trials!”... even using cold rolled steel instead of titanium for the torpedo launch tubes!!

I was proven correct but I couldn’t stop it because, after finding a blueprint error, I faced a Military Tribunal for breach of contract because I refused to put lives at risk until the fatal flaws were corrected.

POISONOUS PLASTICS

Also, in spite of the USS Buchanan disaster, even today they sell “single pass” filters and distillers resulting in my FTC Complaint C-3220 because even plastic phthalates known to cause cancer are in the water AFTER distillation. Short contact time is okay, unlike bottled water, water filters and food wrapped in plastic. Phthalates are in virtually everyone’s body including ALL TAP WATER.

Just as a BLOOD TEST tells you which water to drink, the American people listen to draft dodgers that went to Canada during Vietnam and a complicit news media that accepts these ads!

OPTIMIZING HEALTH

I AVOID HEART ATTACK or STROKE by maintaining a phenomenal Cholesterol/HDL Ratio of 2.6 (clears arteries at that level) using my water and an emulsifier (unless you are on blood thinners).

WHAT YOUR SKIN CAN TELL YOU

THE BODY HARVESTS HYDROGEN FROM FOOD (Albert Szentgyorgy Nobel Prize: “Hydrogen Is The Fuel Of Life!”). Energy is drawn directly from ATP (adenosine triphosphate) by combining WITH WATER! The Hydrogen and Oxygen atoms separate, releasing ENERGY for the body’s cells to use. (That’s why the energy video at JohnEllis.com is so important. With the camera on the ammeter, our water requires ONLY 1/30th of the ENERGY of ANY OTHER WATER to separate into Hydrogen and Oxygen...

AS A RESULT, USERS LOOK YOUNGER!! (Ref: TIME 11/7/2013.) This is also explained in THE FARADAY TWINS book.

In spite of the fortunes made selling skin products, most people’s skin doesn’t look too good when they reach old age. In addition, most have positively charged skin instead of negative (pace-maker/defibrillator: battery negative!). The watch I wear is supposed to have the battery changed every 1-2 years. I haven’t charged the battery in 22 years!

What Ever Happened to the Vaccine-Autism Commission?

By Donald Jeffries

Shortly before the inauguration of President Donald Trump, stories appeared all across the mainstream media about a proposed presidential commission to study the possible links between vaccines and autism. What made the story all the more intriguing was that Robert F. Kennedy Jr. told The Washington Post and other outlets that Trump had tapped him to chair the commission.

The article regarding this in the Jan. 10, 2017 issue of the Post epitomized the biased nature of the press. In the opening sentence, Kennedy was smeared for being “a proponent of a widely discredited theory that vaccines cause autism.”

Predictably, Trump appeared to immediately retreat in the midst of this media backlash, with a spokeswoman for the president-elect issuing a statement only hours later, which threw water on the idea. Trump, like Kennedy, has a history of being critical of vaccines, and had met with Kennedy at Trump Tower.

Following the meeting, Trump transition spokeswoman Hope Hicks issued the following statement: “The president-elect enjoyed his discussion with Robert Kennedy Jr. on a range of issues and appreciates his thoughts and ideas. The president-elect is exploring the possibility of forming a commission on autism, which affects so many families; however, no decisions have been made at this time.”

After meeting with the president-elect, Kennedy told reporters assembled in the lobby of New York’s Trump Tower: “President-elect Trump has some doubts about the current vaccine policies, and he has questions about it. His opinion doesn’t matter, but the science does matter, and we ought to be reading the science, and we ought to be debating the science.” Kennedy would later state that he’d met “many times” with members of Trump’s transition team.

The Post spoke for the entire Deep State when it closed this article with, “The announcement was met with alarm from health professionals who say that putting a proponent of a conspiracy theory in a position of authority on the issue is dangerous.”

The article quoted Peter Hotez, dean of the National School of Tropical Medicine at Baylor College of Medicine and president of the Sabin Vaccine Institute, as saying, “That’s very frightening; it’s difficult to imagine anyone less qualified to serve on a commission for vaccine science. . . . The science is clear: massive evidence showing no link between vaccines and autism. . . . Our nation’s public health will suffer if this nascent neo-anti-vaxxer movement is not stopped immediately.”

Kennedy had been highly critical of vaccines for years. “They get the shot. That night they have a fever of 103. They go to sleep, and three months later their brain is gone,” Kennedy said at the premiere of an anti-vaccination 2015 film screening. “This is a holocaust, what this is doing to our country.”

Kennedy has been labeled the iconic family’s most noted “conspiracy theorist.” In 2006, he wrote an article for Rolling Stone magazine, which was later taken off of their web site, alleging massive voter fraud in the 2004 election. He has also become the first member of the Kennedy family to openly question the lone-assassin conclusion in the assassinations of both his uncle and his father.

During one of the Republican presidential debates in 2015, Trump had clashed with fellow candidate Ben Carson on the issue.

“We had so many instances, people that work for me, just the other day, two years old, a beautiful child, went to have the vaccine and came back and a week later got a tremendous fever, got very, very sick, now is autistic,” Trump stated.

Critics of America’s vaccination policy have been disappointed by the lack of support from the Trump administration.

Trump continued to tweet about the subject, and before the election met with some prominent anti-vaccine activists, including Dr. Andrew Wakefield of Great Britain, widely considered the foremost expert on the links between vaccines and autism, before the establishment succeeded in getting him disbarred. The “Age of Autism” website, which looks at myriad causes for autism, was overjoyed at this, declaring that Trump “was extremely educated on our issues.”

Earlier this year, Kennedy boldly called the Centers for Disease Control “a subsidiary of the pharmaceutical industry.”

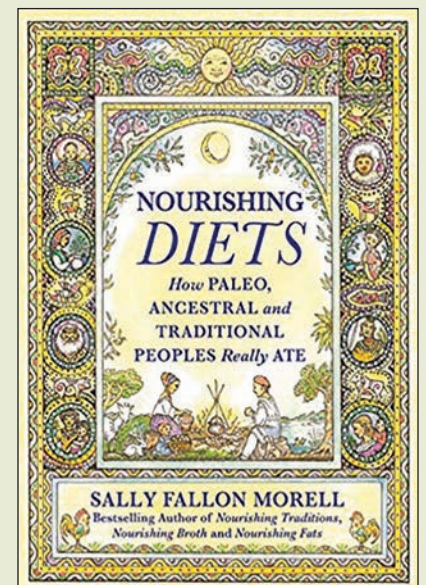

There was little updated news about the proposed commission until February 2018, when Kennedy said he’d had no contact with the White House for at least six months. “I would say there’s zero progress,” Kennedy explained to The Guardian. “We were told President Trump wanted to meet directly with us. Not only did nothing happen, they’ve cut off all communication with people who care about this issue. The administration [is going] in another direction.”

Kennedy added, “I’ve seen a tremendous deflation among a community of parents and children’s health advocates across the country who believed the promises that President Trump made to the campaign, who put tremendous faith in him and now are feeling enormous betrayal and disappointment.” ★

Nourishing Diets: How Paleo, Ancestral and Traditional Peoples Really Ate

NEW! Sally Fallon Morell, bestselling author of Nourishing Traditions, debunks diet myths to explore what our ancestors from around the globe really ate—and what we can learn from them to be healthy, fit, and better nourished, today. The Paleo craze has taken over the world. It asks curious dieters to look back to their ancestors’ eating habits to discover a “new” way to eat that shuns grains, most dairy, and processed foods. But, while diet books with Paleo in the title sell well, are they correct? Were paleolithic and ancestral diets really grain-free, low-carb, and based on all lean meat? This book explores the diets of our primitive ancestors from around the world—from pre-industrialized Europe to the inhabitants of “Blue Zones,” where many people live to be 100 years or more. In looking to the recipes and foods of the past, Fallon Morell points readers to what they should actually be eating—the key principles of traditional diets from across cultures—and offers recipes to help translate these ideas to the modern cook. Pentagon Fails Its First Audit—Badly

• Billion-dollar investigation reveals 90% failure rate, but neocons call for more spending

By Dr. Ron Paul

The Pentagon has finally completed its first-ever audit, and the results are as many of us expected. After spending nearly a billion dollars to find out what has happened to trillions in unaccounted-for spending, the long look through the books has concluded that only 10% of all Pentagon agencies pass muster. I am surprised any of them did.

Even the Pentagon is not surprised by the failure of the audit. “We failed the audit, but we never expected to pass it,” said Deputy Secretary of Defense Patrick Shanahan. Can we imagine any large U.S. company subject to the prying eyes of the IRS being so unfazed by the discovery that its books have been so mishandled?

As with all government programs, but especially when it comes to military spending, the failure of a program never leads to calls for funding reductions. The Pentagon’s failure to properly account for the trillions of taxpayer dollars shoveled in year after year only means, they say, that we need to send more money. Already they are claiming that with more resources—meaning money—they can fix some of the problems identified by the audit.

If you subsidize something you get much more of it, and in this case we are subsidizing Pentagon incompetence. Expect much more of it.

Outgoing chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Rep. Mac Thornberry (R-Texas), warned against concluding that this mishandling trillions of dollars should make us hesitant to continue sending trillions more to the Pentagon. The failed audit “should not be used as an excuse for arbitrary cuts that reverse the progress we have begun on rebuilding our strength and readiness,” he said.

Americans are subsidizing the Pentagon’s incompetence.

The neocons concur. Writing in the news and commentary website “Free Beacon,” editor Matthew Continetti, who happens to be Bill Kristol’s son-in-law, warns that now is “the wrong time to cut defense.”

But I agree with the young neoconservative Continetti. I would never support cutting a penny of defense, but the Pentagon’s lost trillions have nothing to do with defense. That is money propping up the high lifestyles of those connected to the military-industrial complex.

Continetti and the neocons love to throw out bogeymen like China and Russia as excuses for more military spending, but in fact they are hardly objective observers. Look at how much the military contractors spend funding the neocon publications and neocon think tanks telling us that we need more military spending. All this money is stolen from the productive economy and diverted to enrich neocon cheerleaders at our expense.

Of course, the real problem with the Pentagon and military spending in general is not waste, fraud, and abuse. It is not $10,000 toilet seats or coffee mugs. The problem with military spending is the philosophy that drives it. If the U.S. strategy is to maintain a global military empire, there will never be enough spending because there is never enough to control every corner of the globe. But if we are to return to a well-defended republic, military spending could easily be reduced by 75% while keeping us completely safe. The choice is ours. ★

The Biggest Collection of Conspiracies

The Parkland Puzzle

How the Pieces Fit Together: Florida Shooting Staged by Democrats for the 2018 Midterm Elections

Edited by Dr. James Fetzer. Our latest book explains how Debbie Wasserman-Schultz, former chair of the Democratic National Committee—had learned the lessons of the Sandy Hook staged shooting, which allowed Obama to sign no less than 23 executive orders to constrain our access to weapons under the Second Amendment—employed the services of Dancing with the Stars producer Deena Katz to pull off a similar scam in Florida. The gun control push that followed the “shooting” had all the makings of a Hollywood production, from the “March For Our Lives” event, that had to be planned at least 180 days in advance of the “shooting,” to using the son of an FBI expert on “crisis management” as the school spokesman. The march would garner billions of dollars in free publicity for what was a Democrat voter-registration drive. Softcover, 246 pages, 206 photos/images. $20 B&W. $30 Color. CODE: PARK.

Nobody Died at Sandy Hook

It was a FEMA Drill to Promote Gun Control (Second Edition—Expanded and Revised)

Edited by Dr. James Fetzer. The first edition of this book was banned by Amazon! This is the book that started it all! A 455-page (revised and updated) volume on the purported shooting incident at Sandy Hook in Newtown, Connecticut, alleged to have taken place on 14 December 2012, by 12 contributors, including six current or retired Ph.D. college professors, who have established through their research that the school had been abandoned by 2008. This second edition includes five new chapters on the more bizarre aspects of the “Sandy Hook experience,” including a chapter on missing witnesses (death, retirement, disappearance), surprising connections to China and on the role of The Chronicle of Higher Education in disseminating false info and propaganda about Sandy Hook. Copiously documented with photographs, records, and other proofs that make it so detailed, so thorough, and so compelling, that the U.S. government has resorted to extreme measures to suppress it, including having it banned by Amazon.com. It concludes with an Afterword by James Tracy, Ph.D., who was unjustly fired by Florida Atlantic Univ. Softcover, 455 pages, 280 photos/images. $20 B&W. $30 Color. CODE HOOK.

Chronicles of False Flag Terror

A European Perspective

By Nick Kollerstrom. This work includes more than a dozen “false flag” events, where the alleged perpetrators are patsies and the identity of those manipulating them behind the scene turn out to be governments themselves, which makes it all the more astonishing. The research is thorough, meticulous and detailed, and the most important theme emerging from this book is a pattern of activity revealing the State of Israel as by far the foremost practitioner of state-sponsored terrorism in the world today—followed by the U.S.—which conducts staged attacks to instill fear in the public to make citizens more amenable to manipulation in promoting the government’s political agenda. This has included restrictions on the right to bear arms under the Second Amendment to endless wars of aggression in the Middle East, motivated by the orchestrated attacks of 9/11—for the benefit of Israel—by taking out the modern Arab states that constrained its domination of the region by creating “Greater Israel,” from the Tigris-Euphrates to the Nile. Softcover, 364 pages, 73 photos/images. $20 B&W. $30 Color. The JFK Horsemen

Framing Lee, Altering the Altgens6 and Resolving Other Mysteries

By Larry Rivera. The definitive book that proves the innocence of Lee Oswald! Using unprecedented modern-day digital computer technology, the author presents irrefutable evidence which in any court of law would exonerate Lee of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Rivera meticulously takes the reader through the intricacies of forensic digital overlays which prove that Lee was standing in the TSBDD doorway while the assassination was taking place, that the backyard photos were cleverly manufactured to frame him, and how the 3D program Blender can re-create Dealey Plaza as it was originally on 22 November 1963, so that we can finally determine from where JFK was really shot that fateful day. As if this were not enough, Rivera reveals what really happened on Elm Street, as recently transcribed interviews with the motorcycle escort who were closest to JFK that day describe a heretofore unknown version of the event that shook this nation to its core and changed U.S. history forever. Softcover, 594 pages, 1,072 photos/images. $20 B&W. $30 Color. Political Theater in Charlottesville

Faux Terrorism in Three Acts Produced by Leftist Zealots

Edited by Dr. James Fetzer. The objective was to transform Donald Trump into a White supremacist, into a neo-Nazi, and to promote the unraveling of American culture by an assault upon our history through the removal of icons of the past and an excess of “political correctness.” The key players in this staged event turned out to be George Soros, who financed the event, Terry McAuliffe, Governor of Virginia, who controlled the National Guard and the VA State Police; Michael Signer, Mayor of Charlottesville, who ordered the local police to stand down; Richard Spencer and Jason Kessler, who impersonated White nationalist leaders to give the event a neo-Nazi flavor; Brennan Gilmore, a U.S. State Department operative who appears to have served with the CIA in Africa; and Antifa, Black Lives Matter and stuntmen as extras. Charlottesville was designed and continues to be promoted to change what it means to be an American and to subvert our rights under the U.S. Constitution. Softcover, 241 pages, 128 photos/images. $20 B&W. $30 Color. JFK—Who, How, and Why

Solving the World’s Greatest Murder Mystery

Edited by Dr. James Fetzer. You’ve heard the “official account” that JFK was killed by three shots fired by Lee Harvey Oswald from the sixth-floor window of the Texas School Book Depository. But did you know that Oswald was in the doorway watching the motorcade as it passed by, which means that he not only cannot have been “the lone gunman,” but couldn’t have even been one of the multiple shooters? And did you know that there are more than 15 indications of the Secret Service setting JFK up for the hit? That the driver, William Greer, pulled the limo to the left and to a halt after bullets had been fired to insure he would be killed? That he was hit at least twice in the head during that interval, which was so explosive it had to be removed from the Zapruder film? The body was stolen from Parkland Hospital, was physically altered by the Navy Medical Officer in charge of the autopsy, the X-rays and photos were manipulated to conceal the true causes of his death and the Zapruder film was massively revised. Softcover, 529 pages, 1,037 photos/images. $20 B&W. $30 Color. From Orlando to Dallas & Beyond Living in a False Reality where even Hillary is Played by Doubles

Edited by Dr. James Fetzer. Across the nation, Americans are being confronted with the recurrent use of photoshopped images and fabricated narratives of staged events, involving the use of "crisis actors" and even phony doctors playing roles to fool the public. The Orlando Regional Medical Center has now announced that it is not going to be charging for its services in response to "the greatest mass shooting in U.S. history" as though this were an altruistic act; but because the shooting was staged, and no one seems to have died, there was no one to bill. The fakery has gone international, where a sequence of events from Charlie Hebdo to Brussels to Paris and Nice are demonstrably fabricated, where the truck massacre in Nice has reached new depths of deception through the use of mannequins to impersonate victims of a nonexistent crime. The press is no more than an instrument of propaganda and disinformation. Softcover, 334 pages, 406 photos/images. $20 B&W. $30 Color. CODE: ORLANDO.

America Nuked on 9/11

Compliments of the CIA, the Neocons in the DoD & the Mossad

Edited by Dr. James Fetzer. If you want to know the WHO, the HOW and the WHY of 9/11, this book provides the answers. In 28 thorough and detailed studies, 14 authors contribute their expertise on different aspects of 9/11 to resolve the issues decisively. 9/11 was brought to us compliments of the CIA, the neocons in the Department of Defense and the Mossad in order to justify the transformation of U.S. foreign policy from one in which we never attacked any nation that had not attacked us first to one in which we became the greatest aggressor nation in the world, launching a series of invasions intended to take out seven governments over the next five years. Moreover, the Journal for 9/11 Studies perpetuates the false belief that a Boeing 757 hit the Pentagon. Because the Pentagon is our nation's military command-and-control center, it was this event that justified declaring a "War on Terror." But the proof that no plane hit the Pentagon is overwhelming. As surprising as it may seem, none of the official "9/11 aircraft" actually crashed on 9/11, as evidence from the "crash sites" and research by Pilots for 9/11 Truth has established. Edited by Dr. James Fetzer. A detailed investigation of the Boston Marathon bombing reveals it was another drill with Hollywood special effects, where none of the purported victims died and the two brothers were framed for a crime they did not commit. The Boston Police were calling out on bullhorns, "This is a drill!" The Boston Globe was tweeting that a demonstration bomb would be set off for the benefit of the bomb squad. There was noise and smoke but no blood, which only began to show up later. The smoke was produced by a smoke machine. It was done using amputee actors. The backpacks that blew up were black nylon, but neither brother was wearing a black nylon backpack. The older brother, Tamerlan, was killed after he was taken into police custody. Those who planted the bombs were exposed by the alternative media on the day of the bombing. Dzhokhar Tsarnaev was convicted in spite of a mountain of proof that it was a drill. It was a sham event to undermine the Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and posse comitatus, where the patsies were chosen to demonize Muslims, once again. Edited by Dr. James Fetzer. The first edition of this book was banned by Amazon! Unlike the government, none of us have any reason to lie. Some might say, "This may be the most dangerous book in the world!" And they just might be right! This book demonstrates—with scientific argument and empirical proof—that Man did not go to the Moon, that Paul McCartney was replaced after his death in 1966, and that the official narrative of the Holocaust cannot be sustained. It also explains how and why the U.S. hung one of his doubles, not the real Saddam Hussein, and that Osama bin Laden was not killed by U.S. Navy SEALs in Pakistan in 2011, but died from his medical conditions in 2001, where it was politically expedient for him to die a second time. Conspiracy Experts Gather in Dallas

• Sixth annual JFK Conference brings together top-notch researchers, stirs more debate

By S.T. Patrick

Fifty-five years after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the city of Dallas still serves as the annual hub for those who consider the 1963 murder of the president an open case. The Doubletree by Hilton Market Center was the location for the Sixth Annual JFK Assassination Conference. The three-day event featured over 40 speakers and hosted over 200 attendees, all determined to seek truth in the political assassinations of the 1960s. This year's theme, "The Big Picture," focused the speakers on establishing patterns when comparing the murders of JFK, Robert F. Kennedy, and Rev. Martin Luther King.

While author Phillip F. Nelson (Who Really Killed MLK?) and Paul Schrade, wounded in the attack on RFK, both presented compelling evidence in these cases, the crux of the conference was the assassination of JFK and the innocence of alleged assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

Highlights of the first day included Prof. David Denton's assessment of the recent document releases and Richard Bartholomew's presentation, "Texas and the Deep State." Denton is a founding member of the JFK Historical Group and teaches a college course on the assassinations of the 1960s. Bartholomew's book, The Deep State in the Heart of Texas, has been one of the most important works on the case in recent years. In it, he

The veracity of the Wallace fingerprints has been hotly contested over the last decade, with Bartholomew providing the best analysis thereof. Another issue confronted in Dallas was that of Zapruder film alteration. Abraham Zapruder, a Dallas clothing manufacturer, had captured the video of the assassination as he stood on a concrete pergola within what would later be termed the "Grassy Knoll." After the footage was developed—and before Robert Groden displayed it to the public on Geraldo Rivera's "Good Night America" in 1975—the film was handled by several entities. Alterationists believe it was tampered with to conceal a fist-sized exit wound on the back of Kennedy's head (thus proving a shot from the front and right). Those such as Groden, who still believe the government is hiding the truth about numerous events that drove U.S. history, do not believe the film was altered.

Thom Whitehead and Sydney Wilkinson are using super high-resolution photographic scans of the film to produce a new documentary claiming the Z-film was, indeed, altered. A preview video was shown to attendees and a Skype interview followed. The next day, Groden was given an opportunity to dispute the findings of Whitehead and Wilkinson. This remains one of the most divisive issues in the JFK research community, though the topic excited conference-goers who seemed to believe the new documentary could be a game-changer on how we view Zapruder's film.

book published by TrineDay. With an introduction by the widely respected author Dick Russell, The Inheritance by Christopher Fulton is an explosive work that, on its face, seems unbelievable. After the death of Evelyn Lincoln, JFK's personal secretary, in the mid-1990s, evidence that was passed to Lincoln from Robert Kennedy found its way to Fulton. It was that JFK assassination evidence that RFK had used to prevent World War III. In holding the secret evidence, Fulton experienced attack, imprisonment, extradition, and more. While the story seems like a vast reach, it has yet to face a significant challenge in a field of natural challengers. Some of the most skeptical researchers have not gone public to denounce Fulton's story. That tepid, general acceptance has The Inheritance on the reading list of many in the community.

Famed forensic pathologist Dr. Cyril Wecht made his annual appearance to plea for truth in the JFK medical evidence and a more honest self-assessment as Americans.

"It's about how facts get manipulated by politicians, by some governmental agencies, and it's worth noting," Wecht said. "It's one thing to be proud of who we are. It's another thing entirely to be blind, to not recognize that we have in our government . . . many of the same subterfuges that go on in any number of countries around the world."

While there has been criticism that these conferences turn a brutal, world-changing assassination into a social event, attendees argue that there is a value to the camaraderie and re-energization that happens when motivated citizens gather to discuss the truths and lies of American history. Next year in Dallas, the scene of the crime, that is what they will do once again. ★

THE DEEP STATE

How an Army of Bureaucrats Protected Barack Obama and Is Working to Destroy the Trump Agenda

Former Congressman and current Fox News contributor Jason Chaffetz explains how we ended up with a politicized federal bureaucracy that actively works to promote the Democrat party agenda and undermine Donald Trump. The liberal media loves to characterize the Obama years as free of scandal. They pretend this is true because virtually every office in the executive branch worked to withhold evidence of wrongdoing, silence witness testimony, destroy federal records, classify embarrassing information, and retaliate against truth tellers. Yet these same tight-lipped lifers leaked like a sieve once President Trump was sworn in, freely promoting the illusion that everything he does is the new Watergate.

Even conservatives portray the Deep State as nothing more than dumb inefficient bureaucracy. In fact, it's the opposite. The Deep State is intentional, unconstitutional, and organized. In Deep State, Jason Chaffetz reveals an entrenched leadership within the civil service that resists exposure, accountability, and responsibility. At the highest levels, they fight back, outlast, and work the system for their own advantage. And they certainly don't like disruptive forces such as Donald Trump. As chairman of the House Oversight Committee, Chaffetz was the tip of the spear challenging the Deep State and trying to hold them accountable. He and his colleagues took on the powerful forces at the IRS, the EPA, the DOJ, the Department of State, and more. The deeper he dove in, the more shocking he found the brazen approach by the power brokers. The balance of power has shifted. The Deep State has gotten used to operating anonymously and without consequence.

This is a problem bigger than we can even imagine and getting worse. Unless we do something dramatic to wrest back control, we risk losing the ability to successfully challenge wrongdoing by the most powerful bureaucracy in the world. In Deep State, Chaffetz highlights the Deep State's tactics, illuminates the problems, and offers a way to fight back and win. It is important to expose the stories, but if the American People are going to win, Congress is going to have to do things differently. This book helps the concerned citizen understand what must be done—so they can demand real change. Long-Lost Garrison Files to Be Released

• Famed New Orleans district attorney's info on JFK murder may finally become public

By Donald Jeffries

John Barbour, the Emmy award-winning journalist and show business veteran, has announced his intention to release long-suppressed files from the investigation conducted by New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison. The renegade district attorney drew the ire of the entire establishment with his investigation into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, which began in 1967 and inspired Oliver Stone's award-winning 1991 film "JFK." Barbour was granted the only interview Garrison gave after losing the Clay Shaw trial and would produce the documentaries "The Garrison Tapes" and the recent, groundbreaking "The American Media and the 2nd Assassination of President John F. Kennedy."

When Harry Connick took over as district attorney in New Orleans, he ordered a police officer to destroy all of Garrison's files. That officer felt the records were historically important and had them copied. Geno Munari, owner and proprietor of Houdini's Magic Shop in Las Vegas, found the Garrison files for sale on eBay and bought them. After viewing Barbour's new film on the media and the JFK assassination, he was so moved that he sent him $500. He followed that up by giving him the massive treasure trove of Garrison files—67 boxes in all.

Barbour was drawn in by the very first file he read, which was David Ferrie's admission that he was affiliated with the CIA. Barbour actually mentioned another one of these files in his film, which dealt with a 1967 CIA memorandum to its legal staff instructing them to render all possible aid to Shaw, the man Garrison was prosecuting.

Garrison was attacked relentlessly in the mainstream media, with a furor that was unmatched until the election of President Donald Trump. This included Johnny Carson dropping any pretense of impartiality during Garrison's appearance on "The Tonight Show" and an NBC special that was so overtly biased the network was forced to grant the embattled district attorney air time to respond. Garrison was left to try Shaw alone, after all his most important witnesses either died unnaturally or were protected by governors of other states (including California's Ronald Reagan and, ironically, Texas's John Connally), who denied Garrison's extradition orders. Garrison attempted to charge Shaw with perjury immediately after the trial, but a typically biased judge issued an injunction forbidding the district attorney and his office from further prosecution of him.

Barbour told this reporter that he felt a historical responsibility to release such important information to the public.

"Jim Garrison chose me, quite by accident, to give his only interview in all the years following the Shaw trial," Barbour said. "I was honored to be his Boswell, and to tell his whole story to the American people."

Barbour said he was pleasantly surprised by all the attention he garnered from a recent appearance on the popular "SGT Report" podcast, inspiring him to share the files.

Garrison had explained to Barbour that, while the Warren Commission files were sealed for 50 years following the release of the long-discredited Warren Report, his own files weren't scheduled for release until 20 years after that.

Barbour had a long career in the entertainment field, as a screenwriter for various 1960s television shows, as a standup comic, and as creator and co-host of the number one show "Real People." He has been called the "godfather of reality television." Barbour also was Frank Sinatra's personal writer, until their relationship ended over Barbour's support for beleaguered "coroner to the stars" Thomas Noguchi, whose findings had contradicted the official conclusions in the assassination of JFK's brother, Robert F. Kennedy. Barbour's interest in the assassination was initially piqued when he read Garrison's first book on the subject, Heritage of Stone, and he later attempted unsuccessfully to chronicle the actual story of his investigation on "Real People."

Barbour plans a gradual release of the files, be-

JIM GARRISON

Luckily, though he was asked to destroy the files of New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison, one concerned police officer made copies of the documents. They may now be released decades later by the current owner of those copies. Researchers believe Garrison's files are a treasure trove of heretofore unanalyzed historical information relating to the assassination of JFK.

ginning with all the information Garrison compiled on Shaw. While it is unlikely there is a "smoking gun" in Garrison's files, Barbour's announcement comes at a time when Trump has waffled back and forth on releasing the remaining classified government documents relating to the Kennedy assassination. Initially, Trump boasted about making all the files public but in April of this year was pressured by the intelligence agencies to withhold some of them until the year 2021.

"The continued withholdings are necessary to protect against identifiable harm to national security, law enforcement, or foreign affairs that is of such gravity that it outweighs the public interest in immediate disclosure," Trump declared.

Trump did not explain just what "national security" concerns there could be, if the government's long discredited theory that JFK was killed solely by minimum-wage loser Lee Harvey Oswald without any help from anyone connected to "national security," is correct. ★

Americans More Polarized Than Ever

• Elites have reason to cheer the expansion of the “presidential approval gap”

By S.T. Patrick

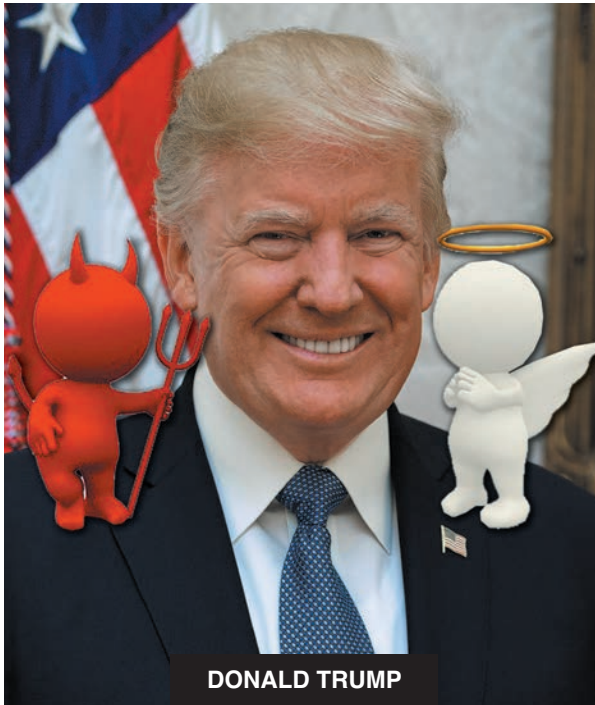

Are Americans more politically polarized than at any time in recent history? According to the work of the Pew Research Center, the answer is yes. While polarization statistics have hit an apex during and because of the Trump presidency, the trend is not brand new. A fuller divide began growing during both the George W. Bush and Barack Obama presidencies.

Political polarization is measured by the approval gap—the presidential approval rating difference between supporters of both parties. The Trump gap numbers are at an all-time high: Republicans overwhelmingly approve of the job he has done in office, while Democrats give him historically low approval numbers. The gap is, therefore, wider than it has been in modern polling history, which began in the 1950s.

At certain points, the approval gap has mirrored the gap on issues between genders, age groups, races, and income levels. Not today. In the Eighties, the approval gap was an anomaly. While Ronald Reagan was more polarizing toward the end of his presidency, Americans still shared similar views on certain issues, regardless of party identification. The gap between the GOP and Democrats on immigration in 1984 was a mere two points. Today, there is a 42-point difference between the way self-identifying Republicans and Democrats view immigration. The same can be said for more general issues. On the state of the national economy, Republicans and Democrats were within 10 points throughout the Clinton years. Today, the opinion gap between the two on the health of the economy is 37 points. For the first time in over five decades, the American opinion on issues directly correlates to the widening gap on presidential approval. Political polarization has become all-encompassing.

Were there any other factors that caused this divide? Could it only be the Trump effect? How does this cement the power of the elite class that controls the elections, the economy, and war?

First, we must look at the stratification of our entertainment options. The rise of talk radio and ideological cable news in the 1990s caused Americans to pitch a tent in one camp. There was no middle ground allowed. If you were a devotee of Rush Limbaugh, then liberals were “tree-huggers” or “Femi-Nazis.” Hosts on the now defunct left-leaning Air America classified conservatives as people who would harm the elderly or disregard children to put another buck into their own pockets. From the successes of talk radio came the divisions in cable news. Fox News has now become the “honest” news outlet for Republicans, and MSNBC has become the “dependable” source for Democratic political analysis. The disingenuous part of it is that both stations refuse to admit a tie to either party or ideology.

Because politics has now become a full-fledged sporting event, Americans are led to cheer anyone who wears the team colors. Debates are now gotcha-fests and speeches are now pep rallies, many replete with actual cheerleaders from local schools. A chorus of choreographed hisses are then propelled at the arch-rival—anyone from the other party. Each politician is turned into a caricature of a label that has been created by talking heads of the opposing party’s vast media machine. Polarization is now a billion-dollar industry combining public relations, personal vetting, image creation, news gathering, labelling, and advertising.

The losers in this political game are the American voters. As each presidential election approaches, those same talking heads begin banging the predictable drums that this election cycle is “the most consequential election in American history.” If you don’t vote for “our candidate,” then it’s as good as voting for the other dreadful candidate. Anyone questioning the monopoly that both parties have on the election process is told that they are wasting their vote and just helping to elect the more sinful candidate. Supporters of Bernie Sanders and Ron Paul are still questioning the legitimacy of their chosen party’s own internal processes.

President Trump is neither a devil nor an angel, though the ruling elite would like you to accept that he is one or the other, as presidential approval ratings are a good indicator of the gap between Republican and Democratic party voters. The bigger the gap, the easier it is for politicians on both sides to scare their followers into sticking by their party for fear of the other. In reality, neither party is really concerned about the American people, focusing instead on perpetual reelection.

For decades, there have been signs that the age of polarization was coming. Reagan used “the evil empire,” after all, in reference to the Russians, not the Democrats. But with Hillary Clinton’s accusation of a “vast right-wing conspiracy,” Bush’s claim that “you’re either with us or against us,” and Obama’s criticism that conservatives are “bitter” and “cling to their guns or religion or antipathy to people who aren’t like them,” the divisions grew. Has half of the country ever really been deplorable? Despite verbal foibles, Bill Clinton sought a working relationship with Newt Gingrich, Bush spoke of a conservatism that is compassionate, and Obama often discussed uniting the country. In Trump, we have the first president who embraces rather than distances himself from the trends of political entertainment. His nature demands that you love him or hate him. The moderate center that defines the true ideologies of most Americans is anathema to both the president and the current media.

If Americans remain habitually tied to the slash-and-burn politics of the new millennium, then the process wins, the status quo wins. Politicians continue to play the role of victorious, ruling winner or organized, critical loser, until voters cycle each to the other side for a so-called change. But in the end, the elites stay in power, forcing the populace to wear the t-shirt, buy the foam finger, and care about the future of political parties whose motivations show little concern for them. And it is for this that we are divided? ★

Trump's Tough Trade Talk Panning Out for Americans

By Robert Romano

While President Donald Trump continues to bring pressure on China—so far with 10% tariffs on $200 billion of Chinese goods shipped to the U.S., rising to 25% in January 2019, which comes atop another 25% tariffs on $50 billion of goods from China—he is dialing up new trade deals with traditional U.S. allies.

Trade agreements with South Korea, Mexico, and Canada are already going to Congress, accounting for a combined $1.4 trillion in trade with the U.S.

And now Trump has notified Congress of his intent to negotiate deals with the UK, Europe, and Japan, with whom the U.S. carried on a combined $1.7 trillion in trade.

These were supposed to be mutually exclusive agreements, according to all of the experts. Trump could either put up more trade barriers or lower them, but he could not do both. Instead, Trump is proving that the U.S. can walk and chew gum at the same time as it pursues the Trump trade agenda.

If nations act fairly and reciprocally with the U.S. to lower trade barriers, they can get a good deal. If not, like China, then they face tariffs.

“Under President Trump’s leadership, we will continue to expand U.S. trade and investment by negotiating trade agreements with Japan, the EU and the United Kingdom,” said U.S. Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer in a statement.

“Today’s announcement is an important milestone in that process. We are committed to concluding these negotiations with timely and substantive results for American workers, farmers, ranchers, and businesses,” Lighthizer added.

It’s the ultimate carrot and stick. By acting tough, and levying across-the-board tariffs, Trump gave the U.S. room to negotiate and provided incentives for other countries wishing to export to the U.S. to close a deal.

As for China, for now they get to feel the pain. China has retaliated with tariffs on $60 billion worth of goods, including agricultural products soybeans, and pork. On currency, China has devalued the yuan almost 10% since February.

Trump has warned that if China retaliates, another $267 billion of tariffs could be in the offing.

Speaking on CBS’s “60 Minutes” on Oct. 15, Trump said he might enact more tariffs on China but held out hope they want to do a deal, too.

“I have a great chemistry also with President Xi of China,” he said. “I don’t know that that’s necessarily going to continue. I told President Xi we cannot continue to have China take $500 billion a year out of the United States in the form of trade and other things.”

Trump added, “I want them to negotiate a fair deal with us. I want them to open their markets like our markets are open.”

As for the prospect of retaliation, Trump dared China to intervene, stating bluntly, “They can retaliate . . . they don’t have enough ammunition to retaliate. We do $100 billion [in trade] with them. They do $531 billion with us.”

In other words, China could rapidly run out of bullets to fight a trade war with the U.S.

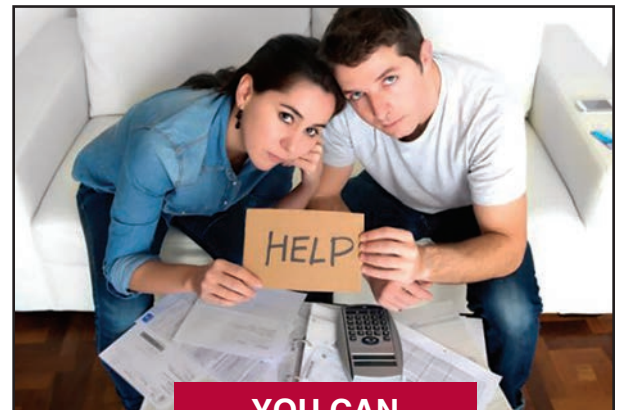

On Oct. 9, the president said, “Now, look, China wants to make a deal, and I say they’re not ready yet. I just say they’re not ready yet. And we’ve canceled a couple of meetings because I say they’re not ready to make a deal. We can’t have a one-way street. It’s got to be a two-way street. It’s been a one-way street for 25 years. We gotta make it a two-way street. We’ve got to benefit also.”

So, no deal yet.

In the meantime, Congress will have trade agreements with South Korea, Mexico, Canada, the UK, Europe, and Japan to consider later this year and, in 2019, the promise to lower trade barriers for U.S. exporters and get a better deal for American workers.

China will just have to sit back and watch. If it wants a good deal, too, then it’s time to talk about currency, intellectual property, dumping, and other trade barriers that it has erected. No more free lunches. ★

Why D.C. Hates This Whistleblower

By Paul Craig Roberts

Justice has disappeared in the West. In justice's place stands revenge. This fact is conclusively illustrated by WikiLeaks whistleblower Julian Assange's ongoing eight-year ordeal.

For eight years, Assange's life has been lived in a police state. He has been incarcerated first under British house arrest and then in the Ecuadorian embassy in London, despite the absence of any charges filed against him.

Meanwhile, the entirety of the Western world, with the exception of former Ecuadorian President Rafael Correa and a UN agency that examined the case and ruled Assange was being illegally detained by the UK government's refusal to honor his grant of political asylum, has turned its back to the injustice.

Assange is locked away in the Ecuadorian embassy, because to protect him from false arrest, Correa gave him political asylum. However, the corrupt and servile UK government that serves Washington, and not justice or law, refused to honor Assange's asylum. The U.S. vassal known as the UK stands ready to arrest Assange on Washington's orders if he steps outside the embassy and to hand him over to Washington, where a large number of both Democrats and Republicans in Congress have said he should be executed. The Trump regime, carrying on the illegal practices of its forebears, has a secret indictment waiting to be revealed once they have their hands on Assange.

The current president of Ecuador, a servant of Washington, Lenin Moreno is working a deal with Washington to rescind Assange's grant of asylum so that the Ecuadorian embassy in London has to expel Assange into the hands of Washington.

What has Assange done? He has done nothing but tell the truth. He is a journalist who heads WikiLeaks, a news organization that publishes leaked documents—exactly as The New York Times published the leaked “Pentagon Papers” from Daniel Ellsberg, which exposed the secret war in Vietnam and Cambodia. Just as the publication of the “Pentagon Papers” embarrassed the U.S. government and helped to bring about the end of the senseless Vietnam War, the documents leaked to WikiLeaks embarrassed the U.S. government by revealing Washington's war crimes, lies, and deception of the American people and U.S. allies.

The allies, of course, were bought off by Washington and remained silent, but Washington intends to crucify Assange for the embarrassment and payoff expense he caused the criminal government in Washington.

In order to assert authority over Assange, Washington is using the extra-territoriality of U.S. law, a claim that Washington bases not on law but on might alone and uses to violate the sovereignty of independent countries. Assange is a citizen of Australia and Ecuador. He is not subject to U.S. law. Even if he were, he has committed no espionage. The false equivalence Washington is trying to establish between the exercise of the First Amendment and treason shows how totally lost are the American people. The silence of the U.S. media demonstrates that the prostitutes don't mind losing the First Amendment's protection, as they have no intention of telling any truths.

Washington's secret indictment most likely accuses Assange of espionage. But it is not legally possible to accuse a non-citizen operating outside the country of espionage. All countries engage in espionage. Every country on Earth could accuse Washington of espionage and arrest the CIA. The CIA could, as it often has, accuse Israel of espionage. Of course, any Israeli, such as Jonathan

TEN MYTHS ABOUT ISRAEL

By Ilan Pappé, “Israel's Bravest Historian”

In this groundbreaking book, published on the 50th anniversary of the Occupation, the outspoken Israeli historian Ilan Pappé examines the most contested ideas concerning the origins and identity of the contemporary state of Israel. The “10 myths” that Pappé explores—repeated endlessly in the media, enforced by the military, accepted without question by the world's governments—reinforce the regional status quo. He explores the claim that Palestine was an empty land at the time of the Balfour Declaration, as well as the formation of Zionism and its role in the early decades of nation building. He asks whether the Palestinians voluntarily left their homeland in 1948, and whether June 1967 was a war of “no choice.” Turning to the myths surrounding the failures of the Camp David Accords and the official reasons for the attacks on Gaza, Pappé explains why the two-state solution is no longer viable. TEN

ILAN PAPPE

“Ilan Pappé is Israel's bravest, most principled, most incisive historian”
JOHN F. STARR

Pollard, who is convicted of espionage in the U.S. becomes a point of contention between Washington and Israel, and Israel always wins. The corrupt Obama regime released Pollard from his life sentence on orders and, no doubt, generous bribes, from Israel.

If Assange were Israeli, he would be home free, but he is a citizen of two countries whose governments place high value on being Washington's vassals.

There was a time in America, many decades ago, when the Democrats stood for justice and the Republicans stood for greed.

There was a time in America, prior to 9/11, when the media would have rushed to the defense of the freedom of the press and defended Assange from his mistreatment and false charges. To be sure that the reader understands the mistreatment of Assange, it is identical to the mistreatment of Cardinal Josef Mindszenty of Hungary whose asylum in the U.S. embassy in Budapest was not acknowledged by the Soviet government, forcing Mindszenty to live out all but three years of his remaining life in the U.S. embassy. President Richard Nixon negotiated his release in 1971, but the Nixon haters give Nixon no credit for his attention to one man locked away in an unjust part of the Earth.

Today there is no such attention to injustice except for the "victim" groups in identity politics. Where is the champion of Assange now that Correa has to live abroad to avoid persecution by Washington's puppet Moreno?

The weakness of the intellect in the West is scary. Journalist Caitlin Johnstone tells us about it: "Trump's despicable prosecution of Assange, and corporate liberalism's full-throated support for it, has fully discredited all of mainstream U.S. politics on both sides of the aisle. Nobody in that hot mess stands for anything. If you're still looking to Trump or the Democrats to protect you from the rising tide of fascism, the time to make your exit is now."

The entirety of the Western print and TV media—even Russia's RT—serves as a propaganda ministry for Washington against Assange. For example, we read over and over that Assange is hiding out in the Ecuadoran embassy in London to avoid rape charges in Sweden. That the pressites and the feminists can keep this bogus claim alive despite all the official repudiation of it shows the matrix in which Western peoples are corralled.

Assange has never been charged with rape. The two Swedish women who seduced him and brought him into their beds in their homes never said he raped them. Assange's tribulations began when one of the women who seduced him worried that he did not use a condom and that he might have HIV or AIDS. She asked Assange to take a test to see if he was sex-disease free, and Assange, offended, refused. This was his mistake. He should have said, "Of course, I understand your concern," and taken the test.

The woman went to the police to see if Assange could be forced to take the test. It was the police who turned this into a rape investigation. Charges were brought, and the Swedish prosecutorial office investigated and dropped all charges, as the sex was consensual.

Assange left Sweden legally, not in flight, as the story that Washington has planted has it. He went to England, another mistake, as England is Washington's playground. Washington and possibly feminists lusting for the conviction of a heterosexual male convinced a female Swedish prosecutor to reopen the closed case.

In an unprecedented act, the Swedish prosecutor issued an order to the UK for Assange to be handed over for questioning. Extradition orders are only valid for filed charges, and there were no filed charges, only dismissed charges. Never before had even the corrupt UK government granted an extradition order for questioning. The UK government, Washington's puppet, agreed to hand over Assange to Sweden. It was completely clear, as there was no case in Sweden against Assange, that the Swedish prosecutor, probably for a large sum, would turn Assange over to Washington, a place in which no legal protections exist for anyone, not even for those, such as whistleblowers, who are protected by U.S. law, but, despite the protection of law, nevertheless go to prison.

Seeing what was coming, Assange was granted political asylum by Correa and escaped house detention in the UK to make it to the Ecuadoran embassy in London, where he has been ever since, despite the Swedish government's dropping of all charges against Assange and again closing the investigation.

In the meantime, a U.S. attorney, corrupt as they all are—never believe any federal indictment, as they are created out of whole cloth without any need of evidence—managed to convince an incompetent American grand jury to indict Assange for what we do not yet know but most likely for espionage.

The U.S. grand jury that approved the secret indictment has no comprehension that they indicted a person for telling the truth precisely as protected—and required if government is to be controlled by the people—by the Constitution. All Assange did was to publish documents sent to WikiLeaks by a person with a moral conscience who was disturbed at the blatant criminality and inhumanity of the U.S. government.

There is no legal difference whatsoever between WikiLeaks publishing the documents leaked to WikiLeaks and The New York Times publishing the "Pentagon Papers" leaked to The New York Times.

The difference is the difference in time. When Daniel Ellsberg leaked the "Pentagon Papers" to The New York Times, the media had not been concentrated into a few hands by the corrupt Clinton regime, and 9/11—which was used by Dick Cheney to criminalize truth-telling—had not occurred. Therefore, in the 1970s, it was still possible that some important part of the media might tell the truth. Nevertheless, the only reason that the Times published the "Pentagon Papers" is that the newspaper hated Nixon, who the Democratic media blamed for the Vietnam War, even though it was Democratic President Lyndon Johnson's war and Nixon wanted to end it.

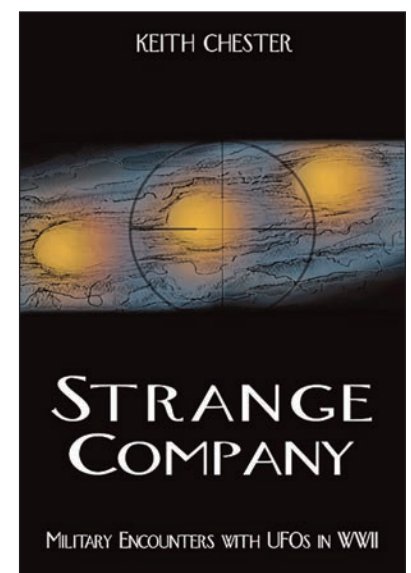

When the insouciant American and Western peoples accept their governments' lies, they accept their own demise and servitude. The willingness and abandon with which the Western peoples submit makes one conclude that they prefer servitude. They don't want to be free, because freedom has too many responsibilities, and they don't want the responsibilities. They want to go watch a movie or a TV program or play video games or have sex, go shopping, get drunk, have a drug high, or whatever form of amusement that they value far more than they value liberty, truth, and justice.

To a person of my disappearing generation, it is inexplicable that the nations of the world, much less Americans, would stand moot while the world's best, most trusted, and most honest journalist is set up by a totally corrupt U.S. government for destruction. The result of Assange's persecution will be to criminalize embarrassing the U.S. government. ★

Strange Company: Military Encounters with UFOs in WWII

NEW! By Keith Chester. Mankind had reached a threshold in the fourth decade of the 20th century. There were unprecedented scientific and technological achievements, but despite such progress, humanity was entering one of its darkest chapters. World War II would grip the world with terror for six years. During that time military personnel reported seeing numerous highly unconventional aircraft in all theaters of operation. These objects had extraordinary flight performance capabilities, came in a variety of shapes, sizes, and colors, and were able to travel at extraordinary speeds and avoid radar detection. Strange Company is the first in-depth account of unconventional aircraft observed and reported by the military during World War II. It includes the reactions by military commands, their viewpoints, and theories as they struggled to make sense of the observations. Strange Company presents one of the greatest wartime mysteries, one that has been shrouded in ignorance for more than 60 years. And it suggests that while an immense 20th-century war was raging on Earth, there appeared to be someone, or something, from somewhere else, watching us. Tide Turning Against Neo-Bolsheviks

• Arrest of top antifa terrorist sparks hope law enforcement will probe radical left

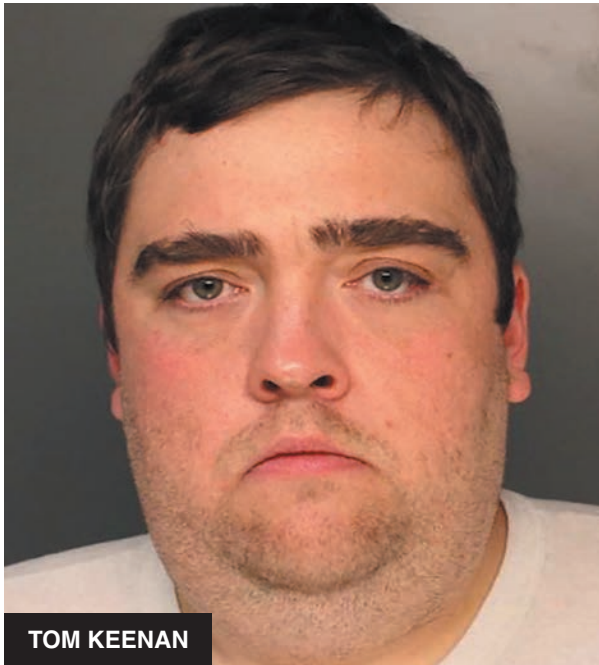

By John Friend

A prominent leader of the Philadelphia-based antifa movement was recently charged with crimes relating to an assault on a number of United States Marine Corps reservists that took place on the afternoon of Saturday, Nov. 17, near a “We the People” rally at Independence Mall in the City of Brotherly Love.

The rally, which was organized primarily on social media, attempted to bring together a variety of patriotic, pro-America organizations and individuals concerned about the future of the country. As is typical of conservative rallies, counterprotesters showed up to demonstrate against the rally, including a number of individuals affiliated with the antifa movement, which is known for violently confronting and assaulting its political opponents at public events.

According to the Philadelphia Police Department (PPD), a group of counterprotesters confronted and attacked multiple Marine Corps reservists near the “We the People” rally around 3:20 p.m., accusing the reservists of being “Nazis” and “white supremacists.” Following the verbal confrontation, the reservists were sprayed with mace and then violently assaulted with punches and kicks by the counterprotesters. One counterprotester allegedly stole a reservist’s cell phone during the violent assault before the entire group fled the scene following their unprovoked attack.

The PPD issued a call for help from the public in identifying the individuals responsible for the violent assault on the reservists, publishing a short video captured at the event that featured many of the attackers. Soon thereafter, Philadelphia police announced they had arrested one of the suspects: Tom Keenan, a man well-known for his involvement and leadership role in the antifa movement.

Keenan, a prominent 33-year-old activist and far-left-wing organizer who had counterprotested other right-wing events in the past, including the infamous Unite the Right rally in Charlottesville, Va. late last summer, turned himself in to police last week, Philly Mag reported. Keenan was charged with two counts each of criminal conspiracy, aggravated assault, terroristic threats, simple assault, and reckless endangerment. Keenan was not charged with robbery, and other suspects believed to have been involved in the violent assault are still at large. After posting bail, Tom Keenan is shown in his Philadelphia P.D. mugshot. Keenan is said to be the head of Philly Antifa, members of which attacked Marine reservists at a rally recently.

Keenan was released from police custody and is currently awaiting a preliminary hearing scheduled for Dec. 6.

Keenan was previously arrested in 2007 after counterprotesting a purported Ku Klux Klan rally at a city park near Philadelphia’s city hall. At the time, he was charged with criminal conspiracy, institutional vandalism, resisting arrest, and criminal mischief before entering into a plea deal. Keenan eventually pleaded guilty to one count of disorderly conduct, and the rest of the charges were dropped.

According to Christopher Cantwell, a popular libertarian-leaning radio host who attended and participated in the Unite the Right rally last summer, Keenan “was actively assaulting people” during the civil rights rally in Charlottesville, including pepper spraying rally-goers.

Keenan’s associate, Tom Massey, yet another prominent activist with the antifa movement in Philadelphia, is also allegedly connected with the assault on the Marine Corps reservists and is currently being investigated by police. Massey also attended the Unite the Right rally and, according to Cantwell, “threw the first punches that ignited all the violence of that weekend.”

Thus far, few if any of the far-left-wing counterprotesters who engaged in unprovoked violence against the right-wing rally goers at the Unite the Right rally have been investigated and prosecuted, while countless conservatives and

William Cooper, the Rise of Conspiracy, and the Fall of Trust in America

NEW BOOK! We are living in a time of unprecedented distrust in America: Faith in the government is at an all-time low, and political groups on both sides of the aisle are able to tout preposterous conspiracy theories as gospel, without much opposition. “Fake news” is the order of the day. This book is about a man to whom all of it points, the greatest conspiracist of this generation and a man you may not have heard of. A former U.S. naval intelligence worker, Milton William Cooper published his manifesto Behold a Pale Horse in 1991. Since then it has gone on to sell hundreds of thousands of copies. According to Behold a Pale Horse, JFK was assassinated by his driver, AIDS is a government conspiracy to kill “unwanted” Americans, and the Illuminati are secretly involved with the U.S. government to manage relationships with extraterrestrials. But he also predicted a rise in school shootings, orchestrated to bring about gun control and specific warnings about Osama bin Laden. Cooper died in a shootout with Apache County sheriff’s deputies in 2001, one month after September 11, in the year in which he had predicted catastrophe. Journalist Mark Jacobson not only tells the story of Cooper’s fascinating life but also provides the social and political context for American paranoia. right-wingers, including Cantwell himself, have been pursued and arrested by law enforcement authorities.

Cantwell and others have provided law enforcement officials, including the FBI, with detailed information relating to the far-left-wing political violence carried out during the Unite the Right rally, yet officials have largely refused to move forward with further investigations or prosecutions. Many people are hoping the recent assault in Philadelphia will finally bring at least some of the radical left-wing terrorists, who have been openly engaging in premeditated acts of political violence, to justice.

"This is a slam dunk case," Brad Griffin, an independent journalist, blogger, and activist with the League of the South, recently wrote. "He attacked a group of Marines. He was almost certainly behind the attack on Philadelphia police at the Blue Lives Matter rally in August. He is on video starting the violence in Charlottesville. He has attempted to intimidate people at their private homes. Undoubtedly, there are all kinds of other charges lurking in his criminal record."

"Keenan's arrest and prosecution will hopefully land him behind bars for several years, thus making Philly safer and creating space for free speech on Philly's streets, something that Keenan made it his personal mission to crush by any means necessary," Mike Peinovich, co-host of the popular radio program "The Daily Shoah," who also attended the Unite the Right rally in Charlottesville, stated on Twitter in reaction to Keenan's arrest.

Will some measure of justice finally be brought to the radical left? Their brazen acts of political violence and terrorism must be addressed in order to begin re-establishing the rule of law and traditional political norms in American society. ★

The Russia Hoax: The Illicit Scheme to Clear Hillary Clinton and Frame Donald Trump

Fox News legal analyst Gregg Jarrett reveals the real story behind Hillary Clinton’s deep state collaborators in government and exposes their nefarious actions during and after the 2016 election. The Russia Hoax reveals how persons within the FBI and Barack Obama’s Justice Department worked improperly to help elect Hillary Clinton and defeat Donald Trump in the 2016 presidential election. When this suspected effort failed, those same people appear to have pursued a contrived investigation of President Trump in an attempt to undo the election results and remove him as president.

The evidence suggests that partisans within the FBI and the Department of Justice, driven by personal animus and a misplaced sense of political righteousness, surreptitiously acted to subvert electoral democracy in our country. The book will examine:

How did Hillary Clinton manage to escape prosecution despite compelling evidence she violated the law? Did Peter Strzok, James Comey, Andrew McCabe, Loretta Lynch, and others obstruct justice by protecting Clinton? Why was there never a legitimate criminal investigation of Clinton in the Uranium One case? Are the text messages exchanged between Strzok and FBI lawyer Lisa Page evidence of a concerted effort to undermine the electoral process? Was there ever any real evidence of “collusion” between Trump and the Russians? Did Trump obstruct justice in the firing of Comey or was he legally exercising his constitutional authority? Did the FBI and DOJ improperly use a discredited “dossier” about Trump to obtain a FISA warrant to spy on Trump associates? Should Mueller have disqualified himself under the special counsel law based on glaring conflicts of interest? Was fired National Security Adviser Michael Flynn unfairly charged with making a false statement? With insightful analysis and a fact-filled narrative, The Russia Hoax delves deeply into Democrat wrongdoing. Narrated by Gregg Jarrett and Charles Constant. 8 hr. and 29 min.

Watergate Documentary Twists History

• History Channel's multi-part series is blatant anti-Trump Democrat propaganda

By S.T. Patrick

Those who forget history are doomed to repeat it. In that closing statement, director Charles Ferguson reminds us that “Watergate,” his six-part documentary, is not as much about reassessing the twilight of Richard Nixon’s presidency as it is a less-than-subtle commentary on President Donald Trump.

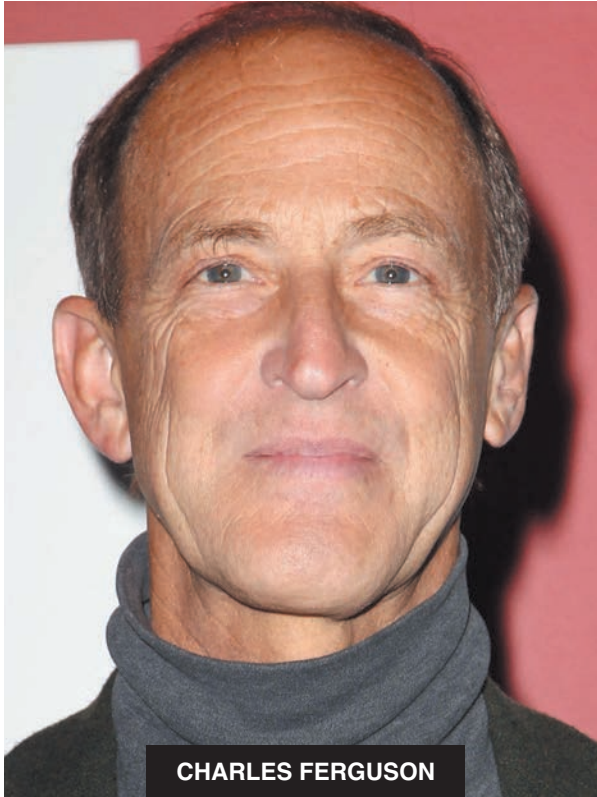

As further evidence, consider the documentary’s full title: “Watergate—Or, How We Learned to Stop an Out-of-Control President.” The phrase “learned to stop” implies that the roadmap has already been documented. It is the execution of the roadmap that must now commence. Also consider that its three-night airing on the History Channel occurred throughout the weekend before the mid-term elections. At that point, it also becomes a Democratic Party campaign ad.

Ferguson knows three categories of Republicans in the film. There are those Watergate Committee senators and FBI/Justice Department appointees who bravely stand up against Nixon’s tyrannical discretions. There are interviewees such as Pat Buchanan, who Ferguson “corrects” after most of Buchanan’s remarks. Lastly, there are the evil stalwarts of “Berlin Wall” loyalism who protect Nixon from the real world and continuously offer increasingly illegal advice. These are the Haldemans, Ehrlichmans, and Colsons of the White House. There were no good men who remained loyal, according to Ferguson’s premise, though this is probably the correct category in which Buchanan belongs. It may also be a veiled warning to those appointees, aids, and staffers within the Trump administration.

One figure that is left unjudged is John Dean, the White House counsel from 1970-1973. While the personality traits of Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman, domestic policy chief John Ehrlichman, National Security Advisor Henry Kissinger, and Nixon are all cartoonishly emphasized by laughable dramatizations, Dean is portrayed as offering the smart, if not always legal, advice. He is also someone whom Ferguson relies on heavily via interview.

Dean finally admitted to one count of conspiracy after having testified to the Senate Watergate Committee under “use immunity,” which meant that nothing he said could be used to prosecute him later. He was never given the full immunity he had desired, though MSNBC has done everything in its power to rehab Dean’s image.

Because Dean’s testimony before the committee, as well as in Ferguson’s treatment, drove the story, nothing was mentioned of his link to the break-in or the Heidi Rikan call-girl ring that was operating out of the Democratic National Committee (the ring for which author Phil Stanford has since provided photographic evidence). Gen.

CHARLES FERGUSON

Alexander Haig, Haldeman’s replacement as chief of staff, also goes unscathed throughout the four-plus hours. Ferguson received an immense amount of cooperation from Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein. Therefore, though Haig has been tied to Woodward, well before the Watergate years, by Chairman of the Joint Chiefs Adm. Thomas Moorer, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, and a Pentagon spokesman, it is never mentioned. Deep Throat is still identified as FBI Deputy Associate Director Mark Felt and is only briefly mentioned. Without Dean as a major factor in the break-ins and without Haig pushing the downfall, what we have in the film isn’t truth. Instead, it’s a glorification of textbook history, and it’s the kind of mainstream media mythology that continues to be pushed in order to maintain its elite political order.

It is Sen. Howard Baker (R-Tenn.) who performs the film’s face turn. He and Fred Thompson, minority counsel for the Republican senators, are labelled as moles on the committee. What the committee said, Nixon’s men heard through Baker and Thompson. It was Baker who would famously ask Dean what Nixon knew and when he knew it. But when Baker realized that Nixon had been involved in the cover-up, Baker jumped into the fray head-first, questioning Ehrlichman in what one reporter called a “hostile” interrogation. Baker, the way the filmmakers portray it, had finally joined the good guys. Is this a reminder to honest Trump loyalists that redemption is a possible and worthwhile endeavor?

In an attempt at seeming not wholly partisan, committee member Sen. Lowell Weicker (R-

Director Charles Ferguson has created a new six-part documentary vilifying President Richard Nixon while at the same time giving the left a playbook for removing a president, namely Donald Trump. Unfortunately, the documentary is nothing but fake news propaganda for the Democratic Party.

Conn.) was presented as someone who had to throw the most rancorous fish overboard to save the boat.

“The best thing I could do for the Republican Party’s point of view was to try and protect the Republican Party as being distinct and separate from Richard Nixon,” Weicker remembered in the documentary.

In the Nixon tapes, the president does point his finger at the man he fully believed, with all of the information given to him, was behind Watergate. “This is a Dean plot. Period,” Nixon said.

Critical Nixon biographer Richard Reeves also described Dean’s motivations vividly. “[Dean’s] loyalty was not to Richard Nixon,” Reeves said. “His loyalty was to John Dean.” Still yet, Dean comes across in the end as the affable, tough survivor rather than the co-conspirator or the instigator.

The obvious political nature of this historical documentary is supposed to tweak the erratic behaviors Never-Trumpers have embedded within them. That was an easy match to light for Ferguson. The deeper lesson of the documentary was aimed at Republicans, and it’s a lesson they were also supposed to learn from Woodward’s Fear: The ship is sinking. Abort. Even if you are a believer, you can’t save it. Get out with your integrity intact. But by all means, leak. Leak to the good mainstream journalists who are actively trying to unearth the evil that men do. Then you, too, could be a redeemed Baker, an honest partisan like Weicker, or even a Deep Throat.

Maybe, however, ignoring the truth of Dean, Haig, et al., will doom us to repeating it. ★

Here Are Two History Books That Get Their Facts Straight

• Stephen Goodson, Peter Hitchens should be commended

By Dr. Kevin Barrett

What is the difference between history and myth? Not much, according to University of Virginia history professor Philip Zelickow. The main author of The 9/11 Commission Report, Zelickow describes himself as “an expert on the creation and maintenance of public myths.” He defines public myths as: “beliefs (1) thought to be true (although not necessarily known with certainty) and (2) shared in common within the relevant political community.” As the fraudulent fabricator of the official story of 9/11—Zelickow wrote the report in chapter outline before the commission had even convened—his job was to make sure that the “bin Laden and 19 young Arabs” myth was seared into the collective consciousness of Americans, so it would be forever “shared within the relevant political community” even though it was a big lie.

Zelickow knows that to enshrine a public myth, you need vivid characters, including larger-than-life heroes and villains: “A history’s narrative power is typically linked to how readers relate to the actions of individuals in the history.” That is why textbook history highlights such memorably heroic figures as Winston Churchill, Abraham Lincoln, Woodrow Wilson, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, alongside the dastardly villains Hitler, Mussolini, Robert E. Lee, Muammar Qaddafi, Osama bin Laden, Guy Fawkes, and so on.

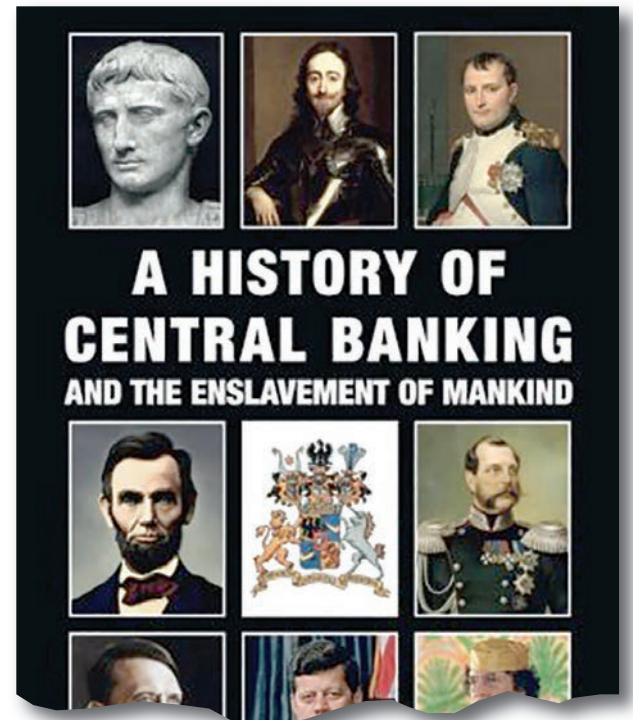

The 2017 third edition of Stephen Mitford Goodson’s A History of Central Banking and the Enslavement of Mankind features many larger-than-life figures on its cover. Lincoln, Hitler, Kennedy, and Qaddafi are pictured side-by-side. But in Goodson’s version of the past 2,500 years, the two canonical villains (Hitler and Qaddafi) like the canonical heroes (Lincoln and Kennedy) all waged heroic struggles against the real villains: the international bankers who are relentlessly degrading humanity, through the diabolical tool of usury, into abject debt slavery.

Goodson covers a lot of revisionist history in only 200 pages. Though I thought I knew my political assassinations, A History of Central Banking argues that big bankers have murdered more of their opponents than I had realized: not just Qaddafi, JFK, Lincoln, Charles I, and the Romanovs, but also Julius Caesar, Napoleon, British Prime Minister Spencer Perceval (d. 1812), many heirs and relations of the “Sun King” Louis XIV, President James Garfield, Rep. Louis Thomas McFadden (R-Pa.), and many more.

Perhaps the most controversial aspect of A History of Central Banking is its world war revisionism: Much of what we have been taught about World War I and World War II is wrong, beginning with the relative heroism and villainy of various larger-than-life leaders. Goodson argues that both wars were orchestrated by international bankers, and that the people our textbooks call heroes were actually stooges of those bankers, while many of the canonical villains were actually rather noble, at least in their willingness to defy the greatest and most diabolical powers on Earth.

Goodson, who died last August, was no conspiracy crank, but the director of the South African Reserve Bank from 2003 to 2012. Like economic hit man John Perkins and International Monetary Fund whistleblower Peter Koenig, Goodson was a banking insider who dared to tell the truth about his monumentally crooked profession.

Another author who has rubbed shoulders with the establishment yet tells heretical truths is Daily Mail columnist Peter Hitchens, whose new book The Phoney Victory supports Goodson’s case that our textbook histories of World War II lionize the real villains. The most egregious example of a villain-in-hero’s-clothing, Hitchens argues, is Winston Churchill, a bumbling drunken incompetent who stumbled into the wrong war at the wrong time, lost his country’s empire and wealth thanks to an endless chain of terrible decisions, committed some of the worst war crimes of his or any other era, yet is to this day lionized and mythologized by our ignorant and mendacious media.

Hitchens’s conclusion is that World War II must be demythologized or we will be condemned to repeat it: “Peace, precarious peace, depends now more than ever on casting off these fantasies of chivalry and benevolence and ceasing to hide the savage truth from ourselves.” Though he doesn’t state it outright, Hitchens must know that the most savage truth of all is the one exposed by Goodson’s History of Central Banking: The real villains are neither prime ministers nor presidents, neither general secretaries nor fuhrers. They are instead the hidden tyrants who dominate and devastate our planet: the international bankers, who orchestrate all our wars in order to tighten their psychopathic grip on our collective throats. Conclusion: The real hero’s journey of our time is the quest to abolish usury. ★

Kevin Barrett, Ph.D., is an Arabist-Islamologist scholar and one of America’s best-known critics of the War on Terror. From 1991 through 2006, Dr. Barrett taught at colleges and universities in San Francisco, Paris, and Wisconsin. In 2006, however, he was attacked by Republican state legislators who called for him to be fired from his job at the University of Wisconsin-Madison due to his political opinions.

Ship of Fools

NEW! In Ship of Fools, Tucker Carlson offers a blistering critique of our new overlords. Traditional liberals are gone, he writes. The patchouli-scented hand-wringers who worried about whales and defended free speech have been replaced by globalists who hide their hard-edged economic agenda behind the smoke-screen of identity politics. They’ll outsource your job while lecturing you about transgender bathrooms. Left and right, Carlson says, are no longer meaningful categories in America. “The rift is between those who benefit from the status quo, and those who don’t.” Our leaders are fools, Carlson concludes, “unaware that they are captains of a sinking ship.” But in the signature and witty style that viewers of Tucker Carlson Tonight have come to

Immigration Situation on Border Is Scary

In the “Personal from the Editor” [in the Nov. 5 & 12 issue], you at AMERICAN FREE PRESS say a lot about immigration, both in the U.S. and Canada, but as I carefully read every word of it, I saw nothing that would help matters one iota.

As for comparing Canada’s system with the U.S. system, well, it just seems like you’re comparing apples to oranges. Canada’s entire situation—geography, demographics, everything—is totally different from the U.S., as you pointed out.

It would be nice to know who we are allowing into our country, but how to do this in an efficient manner seems to elude us. With as many people as we have coming into the country, how could we examine each person that closely?

Something has to be done. We all know that. But what? And how? And now we have this avalanche of humanity stalled out at our border. It’s scary.

No Sympathy

We should feel no sympathy for the illegal invaders from Central America at our southern border. They were offered refuge in Mexico and refused it. Now, they are throwing stones at our border patrol officers and are attempting to climb the fences separating the United States from Mexico. They are demanding, not requesting, admission to the United States—on their terms, not ours.

If it is asylum and refuge they want, they certainly have a legal alternative to obtain that. The United States of America is our sovereign country, not theirs. Especially when they wave the flags of their home countries, they have no right to presume upon the United States of America.

The cynical use of women and children as political “shock troops” should neither impress nor sway us. The U.S. government’s first obligation is to the safety and security of all those of us already legally living upon American soil. We do not owe a living to the rest of the world. America annually gives away far too much foreign aid to be called “stingy,” “mean,” and “hateful” for our refusal to reward law-breakers.

America simply does not have the economic resources to feed, clothe, house, educate, and medically treat all the rest of the world. It must prioritize distribution of said resources, and legal American citizens have first priority here. This is not racism, as Democrats accuse. The American populace is already racially quite diverse, and charity simply begins at home.

Why should America be forced to surrender its sovereignty, when the same demand is not being placed upon other nations?

Children would not be separated from their parents, were said parents attempting to enter the United States legally. Foreigners have no innate birthright to American citizenship.

Lucky Man After All

The story of the Palestinian sailor [in AFP’s Nov. 5 & 12 issue] is interesting and personal for me in a couple of ways. First, as a sailor I had a similar adventure on a smaller scale in a smaller body of water and probably a smaller boat. Mine was 30 feet, and I imagine Amra’s was quite a bit bigger as an ocean racer. And I have similar views on Palestine, which I believe is the cause of what should be an international shame, of how crimes against it by Israel have been ignored.

I set out on one leg of my single-handed trip around Long Island Sound on a day when I should have turned back to port as soon as I reached open water. There were small craft warnings and not another boat visible in an area that has good recreational boat traffic. I did make it to the next port but after terrible conditions for eight hours where I could not leave the tiller. Conditions were too rough to let my simple auto pilot take over.

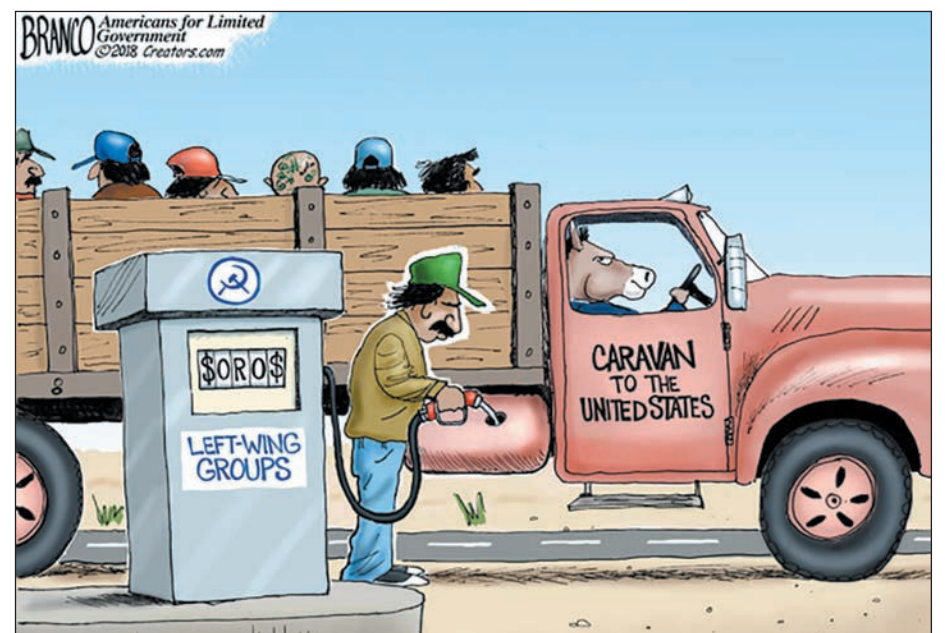

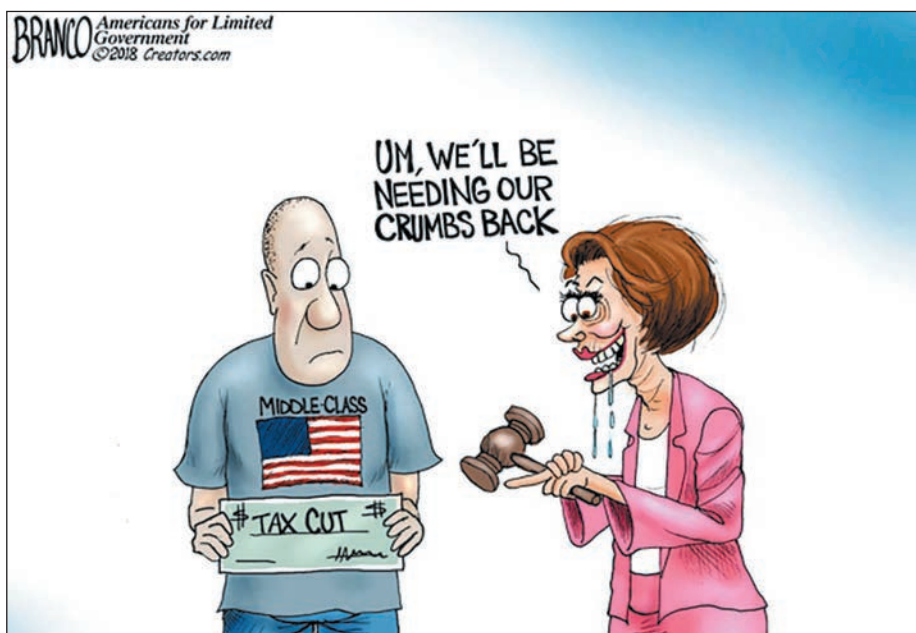

The other thing I was thinking was that it might have been a good thing that Amra did not complete his journey. It is improbable that the Israeli coast guard or navy would have allowed him to make port and publicize it. He would have been at the least arrested, if not worse, in the lonely waves of a location far out at sea, way beyond view of the shore or any possible witnesses. If they could have monitored his radio transmissions and determined nobody would know what happened, the worst could happen. So maybe Amra is a lucky man after all.

Where’s Justice?

John Friend’s article “Antifa Allegations Prompt FBI Charges” does indeed make one wonder “when the Justice Department will begin their investigation into left-wing violence.” And to also wonder, who is the real president? Actions of the so-called Justice Department reveal leftist control.

You may also call 202-544-5977 to speak to an AFP or FDFA representative or email chris@AmericanFreePress.net.
