FEDS FLOP

• TWO MORE BUNDY SUPPORTERS GO FREE

By Mark Anderson

In the ongoing “Bundy” trials, as they’ve come to be known, on Aug. 22, a jury was unable to convict four defendants who were retried this summer after prosecutors failed to get a conviction the first time around. Two of those four, Steven Stewart and Richard Lovelien, have been acquitted of all charges and are free men. O. Scott Drexler and Eric Parker, however, were acquitted on most but not all counts and are still in federal custody.

After languishing in federal prison for around 18 months like the rest of the defendants in this saga, Drexler and Parker have been released to home detention. Although their retrial saw them formally acquitted on some charges, it ended simply with “no verdict” on other charges: assault on a federal officer and related firearm charges stemming from their part in a protest against the attempted seizure of Cliven Bundy’s cattle during an April 12, 2014 “standoff” with armed U.S. Bureau of Land Management agents.

This means that Drexler and Parker will be retried on the remaining charges —for a third time. And the charges are rather serious.

Parker is still facing four counts of assaulting a federal officer, threatening a federal officer, using a firearm in a crime of violence while assaulting a federal officer, and the same firearm charge to threaten a federal officer.

Drexler’s remaining charges are assaulting a federal officer and using a firearm in a crime of violence to assault a federal officer.

More good news is that, amid the hard reality of having been imprisoned and denied a speedy trial as the Constitution requires, Cliven Bundy—the patriarch of a family synonymous with protesting often heavy-handed federal land policies—will finally be going to trial in the same federal court. He’ll be joined by several other defendants who backed him and his family at that April 2014 protest, where some protestors did carry firearms to exercise their Second Amendment rights in an open-carry state, yet no shots were fired in the encounter.

Judge Gloria Navarro of the U.S. District Court in Las Vegas set a date of Oct. 10 for jury selection to begin there for the trial of the second set of defendants, which includes Cliven and several others.

According to the original court schedule, there were to be three trials. Cliven, his sons Ammon and Ryan, Internet radio host Pete Santilli, and Ryan Payne have long been slated to be the second trial’s defendants. But due to the most recent developments, Drexler and Parker will join them in mid-October.

“This next trial involving Cliven is the so-called ‘leadership’ trial, as the government sees it,” said legal expert Roger Roots of Montana, who has attended nearly every day of the trial.

Cliven, his two sons, Santilli, and Payne each face 15 charges generally including conspiracy, assault and threats against federal officers, firearms counts, and obstruction and extortion. Though it seems unlikely at this juncture, conviction on all charges would ensure life imprisonment for all. ★

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FROM THE EXECUTIVE EDITOR

SUPPORT FREE SPEECH IN BOOK-BURNING AGE

What a world we're living in today. Since AFP's founding in August 2001, we have watched as a dark net has slowly been closing around free expression in this country. What are we talking about? We're referring to speeches being canceled across the country because of threats from radical groups, protesters being funneled into free-speech zones, book publishers getting banned by credit card processors, and websites being shut down because someone out there doesn't like what someone else might be saying.

Proponents of these forms of censorship claim that violence is the reason for these truly un-American actions. It seems pretty clear, however, that most of the violence is being perpetrated by a small group of radical activists—many of whom are probably on the U.S. government's payroll anyway.

To give a little perspective, we're talking about a country that waged war against the British—the most powerful nation at the time—booted them out, and formed a government for its people. It's the same country that saw hundreds of thousands of its own citizens fight and die in a bloody "civil war." It is the same country that, for half a century, stared down the Soviet Union, which was armed with thousands of nuclear weapons.

But, today, a few scruffy kids take to the Internet to complain about hurt feelings, and institutions of higher learning, government agencies, and billion-dollar corporations are falling over each other to clamp down on free speech.

So much for the land of the free and the home of the brave.

The truth is, in the United States, people should be able to dislike—and, yes, even hate—anyone and anything they want to. Just as it's okay to hate Donald Trump, it's perfectly fine to dislike anyone for any reason, whether they are white, black, Hispanic, tall, short, male, female, rich, poor, gay, straight, liberal or conservative. Moreover, a person should not be in fear of losing his livelihood or his health because he runs a website or publishes books about the kinds of people he hates.

In this week's issue, we focus on one of the worst groups out there that has been going after anyone who is not politically left of center. The organization in question has raised tens of millions of dollars and made its founders very wealthy by targeting individuals and groups that speak their minds and exaggerating the impact they have. Of course, we're talking about the Southern Poverty Law Center, the nonprofit foundation that was created by Morris Dees in 1971 to supposedly use the court system to combat racism. The SPLC pays no taxes and has raised over $300 million, yet it spends less than $50,000 to $60,000 a year on actual court cases. As we report in this edition, the SPLC's days may be numbered, as more and more targeted individuals and groups fight back.

Unlike groups like the SPLC, here at AFP, we want people to be able to speak and think freely. It's why we keep publishing this newspaper, no matter how many billion-dollar companies, anti-free speech groups, Hollywood actors, and politicians line up to try to shut us up and shout us down. But, as you know, it's hard for a small company like AFP, with limited resources, to keep printing the truth, given the kind of money our enemies have.

In the coming weeks, we will be initiating a new fundraising effort to raise the funds we need to stay in business. Keep your eye out for our letter, which will be arriving soon in your mailbox.

You can help us compete with the likes of the SPLC and other professional smear groups by continuing to support AFP. By making a donation to support this small, outspoken newspaper, you are in effect supporting free expression for all Americans, something we desperately need in this new American age of book burning and censorship. ★

News You May Have Missed

Fraudsters Slapped

Banking giant Wells Fargo seems to have “an almost limitless capacity to cheat its customers and shirk its regulatory responsibilities,” says Sen. Elizabeth Warren (D-Mass.). She’s calling on Federal Reserve Chairwoman Janet Yellen to crack down on the financial empire. In what Wells boasted showed the firm’s “commitment to refreshment” of the board, the company announced three of its board members will step down, taking early retirement, at the end of the year. But they’ll be using their golden parachutes, as Wells will not be asking for any of their salary, bonuses, or stock options back. All three served during Wells Fargo’s 10-year practice of sticking customers with fake accounts to goose the bank’s growth. Wells has also been cheating mortgage borrowers, auto loan customers, small business owners, and investors, it was recently revealed. Earlier this summer, Wells Fargo purchased the company that processed credit card payments for AFP, then canceled AFP’s account and added us to a blacklist, making it next to impossible for AFP to process credit card orders.

Silver Lining

While Confederate statues on public lands are being removed by the dozen, for lovers of history there is an upside—more and more new monuments are going up, on private land. For example, a new monument to unknown Confederate soldiers was unveiled recently in a private park in Crenshaw County, Ala., and in North Carolina folks have been very busy, putting up at least 36 monuments since 2000.

Bannon Speaks Out

Former Trump chief strategist Steve Bannon gave his first interview, after the White House announced a parting of the ways, to the conservative Weekly Standard. Bannon said the “presidency we fought for, and won, is over.” He predicted that the “moderates” who now are in power will steer Trump into a more conventional pathway, while his own absence from the White House will make it “much harder” for Trump to achieve his goals on such fronts as economic nationalism, immigration, and the wall.

Spy Scandal

They’re now calling it “a massive, massive scandal.” It started 16 months ago as a kerfuffle involving alleged theft of computer equipment from Congress and has ballooned “into a national security investigation involving FBI surveillance of the suspects,” reports the New York Post. G-men now suspect sensitive federal government data—possibly classified information—may have been sold to unfriendly governments that could use it to blackmail members of Congress or put lives at risk. Evidence pointed to five Pakistani-American computer staffers and the Democratic Congress members’ offices that employed them. The Democrats—including Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz (Fla.)—who hired the five suspects, did a poor job of vetting them. For example, one man had a rap sheet with multiple offenses, including a conviction for DWI a month before he was hired, and filed for bankruptcy in 2012.

No More Free Speech

Recent violence by left-wing Antifa rioters in Berkeley, Calif. has led to limitations on freedom of speech—but it’s not being directed at the radical leftist groups that are causing all of the trouble. Instead, the city is cancelling speaking events hosted by leading conservative figures. “We don’t want the moral, psychological, and fiscal expense of having these agents of hate coming to our town,” said city councilman Ben Bartlett. “We know the contest of ideas is at the very heart of freedom—but at the same time, when the ideas are certain to cause bloodshed, I’m inclined to err on the side of protecting the population, and I say that with a heavy heart.” Why don’t these politicians want to crack down on the violent leftists instead of their victims?

Condemning Antifa

Some far-left politicians are taking a stand against violent leftist groups like Antifa. House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) recently condemned the Antifa rioters, who clashed with conservatives in Berkeley, saying: “Our democracy has no room for inciting violence or endangering the public, no matter the ideology of those who commit such acts. The violent actions of people calling themselves Antifa in Berkeley . . . deserve unequivocal condemnation, and the perpetrators should be arrested and prosecuted.”

Free Speech in Danger

Using Charlottesville as a pretext, Internet service provider Cloudflare jumped onto the censorship bandwagon and terminated service to Cody Wilson’s website “GhostGunner.net.” GhostGunner describes itself as “a leading seller of 80% receivers and machine tools to complete AR-15 and AR-308 ghost guns.” Evidently they think Wilson is some kind of neo-nazi for being the inventor of the first successful 3-D printed gun.

FBI Busted

The parents of a mentally ill boy recently caught the FBI plotting to make their son into a “right-wing terrorist.” The federal agency, knowing the young man is a severely mentally disabled paranoid schizophrenic, decided to groom him into a “terrorist” so they could arrest him and claim to be lifesaving heroes. Jerry Drake Varnell, 23, a diagnosed schizophrenic, was accused of attempting to bomb a bank. The FBI set him up to drive what he believed was a stolen van containing a 1,000-pound ammonium nitrate bomb one Saturday morning to blow up an Oklahoma City bank. Varnell had joined a group created by the FBI and calling itself the “Three Percenters,” which posed as a right-wing militia group. Say the parents, “The FBI came and picked him up from our home; they gave him a vehicle, gave him a fake bomb and every means to make this happen—none of which he had access to on his own.”

Gun Grab in Oregon

Beaver State Gov. Kate Brown, a Democrat, signed into law the ERPO bill, SB 719A. The act to “Establish Extreme Risk Protection Orders” is a Democrat-backed piece of gun control legislation. ERPO is designed to force “subjects” to surrender their firearms. The bill passed the state Senate 17-11 and the state House 31-38, picking up only one Republican supporter. If an unfriendly neighbor deems you a dangerous dude, ERPO allows a judge to issue an order authorizing the police to search and seize your gun or guns, and you can be prohibited from buying any gun or ammo for a year. The act is like similar laws already on the books in California.

Fake News

Regnery announced recently that it will no longer promote or publicize the New York Times Best Seller list. In a press release, the conservative publisher said it will no longer add “New York Times best-seller” to book jackets or list authors as “New York Times best-selling authors” in marketing materials. The move was in response to seeing Regnery’s books ranked lower on the liberal newspaper list than they should have been, according to raw sales data.

About Time

According to Washington daily newspaper Politico, the Justice Department is finally getting around to winding down an Obama-era program that discourages banks from doing business with a wide range of companies the old administration didn’t like—from payday lenders to gun shops. The Big Brother initiative, called “Operation Choke Point,” was harming legitimate businesses—sort of like how the PayPal and credit card monopoly is hurting AMERICAN FREE PRESS and THE BARNES REVIEW.

Free Trade for the 1%

A new study reveals income inequality is so bad in Mexico that the richest 1% of the population owns roughly as much wealth as the bottom 95%. After 25 years of financial and trade liberalization through deals like the North American Free Trade Agreement, the lion’s share of economic benefits has flowed to a tiny minority.

Close Shaves

A gigantic asteroid shot past Earth on Sept. 5—at a distance of only 4.4 million miles. The space rock, named Florence, is almost three miles in diameter—far larger than the Rock of Gibraltar. Florence is the largest space object to make a close-Earth encounter since NASA began tracking such objects in the 1990s. If one like it ever hits Earth, we would face a global catastrophe. Get ready for a closer shave in October, when Asteroid 2012 TC4 buzzes past, a mere 31,100 miles from Earth.

Leftist Law Center Sued for Defamation

• Southern Poverty Law Center being taken to court by Muslim critics of radical Islam

By John Friend

Maajid Nawaz, a British Muslim politician and founder of Quilliam, an organization that bills itself as “the world’s first counter-extremism organization” dedicated to combating radical Islamic extremism in the United Kingdom and around the world, is suing the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC) for defamation after the subversive, leftist organization labeled the popular Muslim reformer as an “anti-Muslim extremist.”

“The SPLC, who made their money suing the KKK, were set up to defend people like me, but now they’ve become the monster that they claimed they wanted to defeat,” Nawaz boldly stated in a video announcing the lawsuit, which he aims to fund in part by soliciting donations from supporters.

“They have named me, alongside Ayaan Hirsi Ali, on a list of ‘anti-Muslim extremists,’” Nawaz went on to explain. “I am suing the SPLC for defamation, and I need your help to win.”

Ayaan Hirsi Ali is a Somali-born Dutch-American feminist activist, author, and politician who founded the AHA Foundation, a “leading organization working to end ‘honor violence’ that shames, hurts, or kills thousands of women and girls,” according to the organization’s official website. Ali is a critic of the barbaric practice of female genital mutilation, a practice common in some African and Islamic societies, and a fierce opponent of the traditional Islamic attitude toward women and young girls. Her critiques of radical Islam have drawn the ire of the SPLC in the past, and she, along with Nawaz, has been targeted by the radical leftist organization.

Nawaz charged that the SPLC has put him in danger by placing him on its “anti-Muslim extremist” list and has smeared his reputation and image. In the video, Nawaz also correctly argued that “the left has descended into violence, whether that’s punching people on the street, throwing explosives and attacking people in protests and riots, or assassination attempts on right-wing politicians by leftist fans of the SPLC.”

Nawaz was specifically referring to James Hodgkinson, a radical leftist activist who shot Rep. Steve Scalise (R-La.) in June of this year. Hodgkinson “liked” the SPLC’s Facebook page, and was likely influenced by the organization’s propaganda.

The SPLC has arguably inspired other radical leftist terrorists in the past as well, including Floyd Lee Corkins, a deranged man who broke into the Family Research Council’s headquarters in Washington, D.C. in August 2012 with the aim of killing as many people as possible. In early 2013, Corkins was sentenced to 25 years in prison for his crimes, which included a terrorism-related offense. During an FBI interrogation following his apprehension, Corkins admitted to targeting the Family Research Council partly because it was designated as an “anti-gay group” by the SPLC.

In addition to being sued, the SPLC is also facing public backlash after it was revealed that the non-profit organization, which constantly solicits donations by hyping the alleged threat of “hate,” “bigotry,” and “white supremacist violence,” has roughly $69 million of its total endowment in overseas accounts, including in the Cayman Islands, Bermuda, and the British Virgin Islands.

The SPLC has millions of dollars at its disposal, and boasts an endowment of nearly $320 million. According to an explosive report in online news outlet The Washington Free Beacon, the SPLC “pays lucrative six-figure salaries to its top directors and key employees while spending little on legal services despite its stated intent of ‘fighting hate and bigotry’ using litigation, educa-

Shocking Statistics About the SPLC

From the daring “FreeBeacon.com” investigation, some very disturbing facts were revealed about the SPLC:

“Richard Cohen, president and chief executive officer of the SPLC, was given $346,218 in base compensation in 2015, its tax forms show. Cohen received $20,000 more in other reportable compensation and non-taxable benefits. Morris Dees, SPLC’s chief trial counsel, received a salary of $329,560 with $42,000 in additional reportable compensation and non-taxable benefits.”

***

“The minimum amount paid to an officer, director, trustee, or key employee in 2015 was $140,000 in base salary, not including other compensation. The group spent $20 million on salaries throughout the year.”

***

“The SPLC, which claims to boast a staff of 75 lawyers who practice in the area of children’s rights, economic justice, immigrant justice, homosexual rights, transgender rights, and criminal justice reform, reported spending only $61,000 on legal services in 2015.”

tion, and other forms of advocacy.”

“I’ve never known a U.S.-based nonprofit dealing in human rights or social services to have any foreign bank accounts,” Amy Sterling Casil, CEO of Pacific Human Capital, a California-based nonprofit consulting firm, explained to The Washington Free Beacon. “My impression based on prior interactions is that they have a small, modestly paid staff, and were regarded by most in the industry as frugal and reliable. I am stunned to learn of transfers of millions to offshore bank accounts. It is a huge red flag and would have been completely unacceptable to any wealthy, responsible, experienced board member who was committed to a charitable mission who I ever worked with.”

The SPLC has raised millions of dollars in the wake of the Unite the Right rally in Charlottesville, Va. last month, including $1 million from Tim Cook, the CEO of Apple. JP Morgan Chase also pledged to donate $500,000 to the SPLC in the aftermath of Charlottesville, and many other top corporations and opinion leaders have pledged money to help the SPLC ostensibly fight “hate” and “discrimination.”

Fighting 'Hate,' Killing Free Speech

• Anti-Defamation League undercutting free expression by indoctrinating mayors, police

By John Friend

The Anti-Defamation League (ADL), an organization openly hostile to the First Amendment that seeks to advance pro-Israel interests and shut down free expression with often baseless charges of “anti-Semitism,” has partnered with the United States Conference of Mayors in the wake of the Unite the Right rally in Charlottesville, Va. in an effort to combat “hate” and “extremism,” Marxist buzzwords that are applied to patriotic Americans willing to buck the tyrannical system of political correctness plaguing the West.

The United States Conference of Mayors is an official, non-partisan organization representing American cities with populations exceeding 30,000.

More than 300 mayors from major American cities across the nation have collaborated with the ADL on the project, and have pledged to implement the 10-point Mayors' Compact to Combat Hate, Extremism, and Bigotry, developed almost entirely by the subversive, anti-American organization.

Some of the 10 key initiatives outlined in the compact include “rejecting extremism, white supremacy, and all forms of bigotry,” as well as prioritizing and promoting “anti-bias” and “anti-hate” programs—which are also developed by the ADL—in America’s public and private schools. Additionally, the compact encourages local residents and community members to report “hate incidents”; seeks to strengthen “hate crime” laws; and promotes training for law enforcement officials across the country to respond to and deal with “hate.”

The compact represents an attempt by the ADL to institutionalize its subversive, anti-free speech agenda, a major and long-running goal of the anti-American organization. The Unite the Right rally, which was legally organized by leading members of the alt-right, a burgeoning, loose-knit, right-wing movement that embraces racial identity and populism while rejecting globalism, multiculturalism, and massive non-white immigration to America and the wider Western world, has been used as an excuse to advance a number of blatantly anti-free speech agendas, including the censoring of some alt-right commentators on the Internet. The rally was legally permitted, yet faced enormous obstacles from local political leaders in Charlottesville.

The entirely distorted narrative spun by the political and media establishment portrayed the alt-right organizers and supporters as hateful, racist bigots who were determined to violently confront and attack the counterprotesters who showed up to peacefully demonstrate against the rally. The fake news media and establishment political and media pundits hysterically condemned everyone in the alt-right as violent extremists and terrorists, white supremacists, neo-nazis, and even Ku Klux Klansmen. Meanwhile, Antifa and other leftist extremists who engaged in physical confrontations and violence against the alt-right were portrayed as righteous and honorable protesters simply attempting to exercise their First Amendment rights.

Needless to say, the concept of “hate” will be defined by the ADL and will, of course, encompass any form of criticism or resistance to its subversive, anti-American agenda.

“What happened in Charlottesville . . . reminds us all that violent hate and racism are very much alive in America in 2017,” Tom Cochran, the CEO and executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said when the compact was announced. “For decades, America’s mayors have taken a strong position in support of civil rights and in opposition to racism and discrimination of all kinds. At this critical time mayors are doing so again through this compact in an effort to combat hate, extremism, and bigotry in their cities and in our nation.”

The ADL has played a key role in politicizing and militarizing law enforcement in the United States for decades, and routinely offers training courses for local, state, and federal law enforcement officials and entities across the country.

The ADL openly describes itself as “the foremost non-governmental organization in the United States that offers law enforcement training on terrorism, extremism, and hate crimes” and boasts that it has “trained well over 100,000 federal, state, local, and military law enforcement officers.”

Law enforcement officials at all levels of government also regularly travel to Israel to receive training and advice from their Israeli counterparts, particularly in the wake of the 9/11 attacks, which many prominent researchers believe the Zionist state played a central role in carrying out, further militarizing American law enforcement, as is the case in Israel. This often involves U.S. law enforcement working closely with the Israeli military and police, both of which have been accused of carrying out war crimes against Muslims and Christians in the Holy Land.

Interestingly, Anita Gray, a regional director for the ADL in Cleveland, Ohio, admitted in a revealing interview with Cleveland Jewish News shortly after the rally that her organization had been “working on the ground and behind the scenes leading up to, during, and after the rally” in Charlottesville.

“We remain in close contact with law enforcement, elected officials, community leaders, and others and continue to provide critical research, resources, and community support,” Ms. Gray went on to explain. “All of our offices have been working around the clock to respond, inform, and take action.” The insidious agenda of the ADL could not be clearer in the aftermath of the Unite the Right rally, i.e., to stamp out criticism of Israel. ★

Texas Blacks Back Rebel Monuments

• Many activists realize stone and marble not the worst problems facing blacks

By Dave Gahary

Following the government- and mainstream media-instigated violence in Charlottesville, Va. last month, various municipalities across this once-great nation are taking and considering taking preemptive steps to remove Confederate monuments from public land, so as not to invoke the wrath of the ascendant terrorist groups Black Lives Matter and the more loosely organized Antifa. In the halcyon days of these United States, if mask-wearing thugs arrived in any town or city intent on waging war in that community, they were met with the iron fist of law and order. No more.

On Aug. 14, Philip Kingston, who serves on the Dallas city council, took aim at a Robert E. Lee statue and other monuments in the city. Kingston believes “monuments to the Confederacy should not be on public land,” as reported in an article by the local CBS fake-news outlet. So biased and hateful have the fake-news media become that the caption under the photo of the Lee statue reads:

The Confederate War Memorial in Dallas, Texas, is a monument that attempts to glorify the treasonous acts of those who fought to defend slavery on the Confederate side of the American Civil War.

Kingston’s resolution requires action by Sept. 13, when, if passed, a citizen-based task force will be created to decide the fate of the monuments. Interestingly, the Southern heritage-destroying councilman made news in July when the city’s chief financial officer sent a memo to Kingston demanding he return $8,160 of his $60,000 salary because he missed too many council meetings. “I was just busy,” Kingston said, as reported by The Dallas Morning News.

Some Dallas residents are busy as well, but for a different reason.

A predominantly black group led by former city councilwoman Sandra Crenshaw is calling for Dallas’s Confederate monuments to remain standing, since removing them will not help alleviate media-alleged “racism.”

“I’m not intimidated by Robert E. Lee’s statue,” Ms. Crenshaw told the aforementioned newspaper. “It doesn’t scare me. We don’t want America to think that all African-Americans are supportive of this. Some people think that by taking a statue down, that’s going to erase racism. Misguided.”

Naturally, Kingston struck back.

“What we don’t do is leave up a monument that celebrates the very idea that some of us are not equal to the others,” he said. “These monuments distort history; they don’t teach history.”

On cue, Democratic mayor, former Pizza Hut CEO, and ad agency head Mike Rawlings chimed in by stating that the “white supremacists” in Charlottesville were “pure evil.”

AMERICAN FREE PRESS asked 69-year-old black Confederate supporter H.K. Edgerton for his views on the happenings in Dallas and across the country. “I applaud the fact that they’re coming together to oppose the removal of statues,” he began. “However, I don’t like the tone of this message. Instead of saying ‘not intimidated by Robert E. Lee,’ she should’ve been very proud of Gen. Robert E. Lee, probably one of the most admired and respected men of his time and this time.”

Edgerton commented on the culture destroyers.

“What we have now is a continuation of what these folks did after the war when they sent these Northern school teachers to the Southland of America,” he said, “trying to divide and separate black folks and white folks.

“The biggest problem I have is not with black folks, it’s with white folk guilt,” he said. “Most of the Black Lives Matter folks I see are young white folks. I’ve been all across this country and I’ll tell you right now most black folks don’t like being used as a weapon of choice to [enable] this destruction of our heritage and our history, [by] tearing down these monuments. This looks like Reconstruction all over again.”

He added: “I ran into Black Lives Matter and I’ve run into Antifa, in places where I was going to speak. These folks are domestic terrorists. If ‘black lives matter,’ they ought to be in Houston right now trying to help some black folks. If ‘black lives matter,’ they ought to be in Chicago trying to help those black folks who are killing each other in record numbers.” ★

The Occult Renaissance Church of Rome

NEW BOOK BY MICHAEL HOFFMAN

Revisionist historian Michael Hoffman's The Occult Renaissance Church of Rome represents a startling excavation of the sedimentary layers of the Renaissance papacy's concealed ideology and its public manifestation in the art and architecture of its sacred places. The Establishment would have us believe that the papacy of the past is synonymous with relentless inquisition of the occult, when in truth the occult took control of the papacy and from behind a wall of artifice and disguise, persecuted mainly those occultists who set themselves up as rivals to papal power, while shielding agents of the Neoplatonic-Hermetic and Kabbalistic conspiracy within the papal fold.

This book names the guilty conspirators including many pontiffs, including, but not limited to, Popes Alexander VI, Leo X, Clement VII and Sixtus V. The author demonstrates that much of what we've been told about the history of the Church since the Renaissance has been an ingeniously mounted illusion.

Take a look at the Table of Contents:

- The Serpent in the Garden of the Quattrocento
- The Priest and the Platonists
- Pope Alexander's Wizard
- Bonfire of the Verities
- The Sorcerer Abbott
- Reuchlin's Revolution
- Renaissance High Art: An Initiation
- The Grand Egyptian Lodge of Vatican City
- The Cabal's Co-conspirators
- Mental Reservation and Equivocation in the Church of Rome
- Ecclesiastical Sodomy and its Root
- Hermetic Prince of the Second Vatican Council
- Neoplatonic-Hermetic Kabbalism in the Modern Era
- The Breeders of Money Gain Dominion
- A Prophecy Fulfilled
- An Occult Miscellany
- Neoplatonic Thought and Freemasonry.

A sampling of sections and sub-headings:

The Papal Isis • Plato Hermeticised • The Magi: A Cautionary Tale • The Inquisition in Legend and Reality • Judaizing: Distinctions and Definitions • Origins of the Illuminati • Reincarnation. The Pyramid and Obelisk Men; Michelangelo's Conspiracy • Pornographic secrets of the Sistine Chapel; • Ritual Murder at Bernini's colonnade • Talmudic Oath-Breaking • A Pattern for the Church of Rome • The Patron Saint of Liars and Thieves; Secret Approval for Contraception • The Cremona Conspiracy • Child oblation • Sodomy and the Natural Law • Henri de Lubac's Renaissance-Kabbalist magus • The Hermetic "Traditional Catholic" movement • Tridentine Judaism • Contra the Money Power in the Arena Chapel • The Ten Lost Sermons of St. Anthony of Padua • The Scrovegni Penance • Brother Brandano's Prophecy • Much more.

For the first time we have a Revisionist history of the papacy since the 15th century, in a book that will inform, alarm and liberate Christians. Nothing like it has ever been published. The penetration of the mysteries revealed in its pages is a formidable challenge to centuries of entrenched myths and deceptions.

Dream Act Hypocrisy

Kids of illegals get benefits while needy U.S. students lose vouchers

By Allen B. West

President Donald Trump has announced he will be ending the Obama program called DACA, Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals. The program was established by Barack Obama in June 2012 and allows illegal immigrants who entered the United States as minors to receive renewable, two-year deferments from deportation as well as work permits.

First, we need to understand that the pertinent word is illegal. These are children born in the United States of illegal-immigrant parents who had violated and disregarded the sovereign laws of this nation. If we're to continue as a constitutional republic, and not a constitutional monarchy, we must adhere to and preserve our rule of law.

DACA is unconstitutional in every way. The Constitution states it clearly in Article I, Section 8, Clause 4, "To establish a uniform Rule of Naturalization." Article I denotes the enumerated powers of the legislative branch—the House and Senate, or Congress, and Article II denotes the enumerated powers of the executive branch.

A simple perusal will help the reader realize that we're to be governed by the rule of law, not ruled by edict from an executive. Article II consists of only four sections; the final section establishes the grounds for removal of the executive, the president.

If we wish to have a purely constitutional discussion about DACA, it's obvious Obama exceeded his enumerated powers and established an unconstitutional policy. Now, the question is, do we want to be ruled by edict based upon the ideological agenda of a ruler? If so, then let's go right ahead and continue on with DACA.

But the progressive socialist left then loses any grounds to complain about unconstitutional actions. They can't accomplish their goal of fundamentally transforming America outside the bounds of our rule of law.

It's not up to the president—any president—to decide that he or she wants to do something without the legislative branch. In essence, that's taking action without the consent of the governed. The American people elect representatives to be their voice, so any disregard of the legislative branch is a dismissal and disregard of the American people.

DACA is nothing more than a feel-good, ideological political tool based on identity politics. If anything, it advances the notion, which the left loves, that there are those above the rule of law. Just look at sanctuary cities, counties, and states—the left's agenda is apparently superior to our rule of law.

The hypocrisy of DACA is blatant. Who decides what constitutes being a "dreamer"? Yes, that

ALLEN WEST

Why do you think, in an election year (2012), President Obama refused to veto a bill taking away federal funding for school vouchers for deserving American children and kill their dreams of a better life and instead force through an unconstitutional act that guaranteed that children of illegal immigrants here in America could see their dreams furthered?

sounds so nice, and again, it tugs at hearts. But I seem to recall in April 2009 that the same Obama behind DACA ended the D.C. school voucher program for deserving young, black, minority kids, and not a peep came from the progressive socialist left and the liberal progressive media.

The deduction is simple: The left chooses based on their politicized agenda. Funny, DACA was enacted in 2012, a presidential election year. That should tell you everything. ★

A Rebel Born: A Defense of Nathan Bedford Forrest

Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest was a brave and ingenious Confederate officer who won all but one of the battles he led; a philanthropist who gave generously to family, friends and charities; and a humanitarian who not only spared the lives of numerous Yankees on the battlefield, but who freed his slaves years before Lincoln issued his fake Emancipation Proclamation. Additionally, Forrest crusaded to bring new African immigrants into the South—with full civil rights. No one would know any of this by reading the typical works on Forrest. In fact, according to most authors, Forrest was a violent redneck, a racist, a barbaric slave trader, a philandering husband, an illiterate hillbilly, the founder and grand wizard of the KKK, and "the butcher of Fort Pillow."

News flash: None of this is true.

In A Rebel Born: A Defense of Nathan Bedford Forrest—winner of the prestigious Jefferson Davis Historical Gold Medal—Lochlainn Seabrook, one of the South's most prolific and respected authors, reveals the truth about one of history's most fascinating, charismatic, complex, and romantic individuals. In this positive appraisal of Forrest, the author corrects the many falsehoods about "the Wizard of the Saddle" and, using well-researched documentation, shows that the modern negative image of the general derives solely from slanderous myths created 150 years ago by Lincoln's anti-South propaganda machine. The longest book ever written on Forrest, it contains 2,000 footnotes, hundreds of rare pictures, a list of Forrest's military engagements, an 800-book bibliography, a detailed index, and more! Softcover, 822 pages, #776, $35 minus 10% for TBR subscribers plus $5 S&H in the U.S. from THE BARNES REVIEW, 16000 Trade Zone Avenue, Unit 406, Upper Marlboro, MD 20774. # Who Gets to Define What's 'Hate'?

• Christian urban renewal activist says “alt-left” following an insidious path

By Star Parker

As if recent events don't give us enough to worry about, now we have a new mis-sive in The Atlantic magazine from former Vice President Joe Biden concerning the incident in Charlottesville.

Biden wants to declare America a hate-free zone. He says we should declare “no place for these hate groups in America. Hatred of blacks, Jews, immigrants—all who are seen as ‘the other’—won't be accepted or tolerated or given safe harbor anywhere in this nation.”

Biden articulates for us here the vision of the “alt-left.” America gets transformed from being about limited government, with laws to protect individual freedom, to sponsoring search and destroy missions for eliminating hatred. And, of course, Biden and his left-wing friends will define for us who the haters are.

As sickening as the “alt-right” racist bigots may be, at least we know where they're coming from. They make no claim to the high ground. Their racism is on the table, in the light of day.

But the “alt-left” is far more insidious.

Take, for instance, the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC). They are self-appointed mission control for identifying who and where are the haters in America.

They publish a “Hate Map” on their website, in which 917 “hate groups” are identified, ripe for elimination in the spirit of Biden's appeal.

Included are 101 anti-Muslim hate groups, but somehow not a single anti-Christian hate group is identified. Actually, Christian groups, in their map, turn out to be the haters.

SPLC identifies at least 19 Christian organizations as hate groups. Groups like the Alliance Defending

STAR PARKER

Freedom, which provides legal counsel to those whose religious freedom has been abrogated (e.g., a Christian baker being sued for refusing to create a cake for a same-sex wedding), or Family Research Council, which publishes research in support of public policy consistent with traditional Christian values, or D. James Kennedy Ministries, which, through its church and media, disseminates the Christian gospel and sermons of its founder, Dr. D. James Kennedy.

Peacefully preaching Christian gospel is, in the eyes of the SPLC, an act of hate because part of this gospel chastises homosexual behavior as sinful.

Unfortunately, in today's tortured culture, sources deemed by some authority like CNN or GuideStar, which provides data on evaluating nonprofit organizations, reference the SPLC “Hate Map” as a guide to hate in the country.

Two major corporations, JP Morgan and Apple, announced six-figure contributions to the SPLC after the events in Charlottesville.

In a memo to employees, JP Morgan's head of corporate responsibility noted that their contribution to SPLC is “to further their work in tracking, exposing, and fighting hate groups and other extremist organizations across the country.”

In 2012, a young man entered the office of the Family Research Council in Washington, D.C., and shot the building manager. He, fortunately, was caught and subsequently sentenced to 25 years in prison. He was a volunteer at a pro-gay organization and told the FBI that he used the SPLC hate map to find FRC and that his plan was to kill as many as he could.

D. James Kennedy Ministries recently filed a lawsuit against the SPLC for defamation.

In recent media appearances discussing Charlottesville, I noted the equivalency I see between the LGBT rainbow flag and the Confederate flag. Both stand, as I explained, for particular dogma and are statements of exclusion to those who don't fit their worldview. Those who don't agree with me are welcome to say so.

But, instead, the so-called advocates of tolerance shut down my office in Washington, D.C., with an avalanche of calls and threats.

We can't legislate what people feel. But we can and must recapture the American vision of freedom, where law protects individual life, liberty and property, so our large and diverse population can live together peacefully and productively. ★

VAXXED: THE MOVIE

FROM COVER-UP TO CATASTROPHE

In 2013, biologist Dr. Brian Hooker received a call from a senior scientist at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) who led the agency's 2004 study on the Measles-Mumps-Rubella (MMR) vaccine and its link to autism. The scientist, Dr. William Thompson, confessed that the CDC had omitted crucial data in their final report that revealed a causal relationship between the MMR vaccine and autism. Over several months, Dr. Hooker records the phone calls made to him by Dr. Thompson who provides the confidential data destroyed by his colleagues at the CDC.

Dr. Hooker enlisted the help of Dr. Andrew Wakefield, the British gastroenterologist falsely accused of starting the anti-vax movement when he first reported in 1998 that the MMR vaccine may cause autism. In his ongoing effort to advocate for children's health, Wakefield directs this documentary examining the evidence behind an appalling cover-up committed by the government agency charged with protecting the health of all American citizens. Interviews with pharmaceutical insiders, doctors, politicians, and parents of vaccine-injured children reveal an alarming deception that has contributed to the skyrocketing increase of autism and potentially the most catastrophic epidemic of our lifetime. # Which Water Should You Drink?

Nobel Prize Winner Albert Szentgyorgy: “The one that produces the most Hydrogen Energy . . . The Fuel of Life!”

The above statements inspired a patented method that gains HYDROGEN ENERGY each time water recycles . . . hundreds of times per gallon—NOT ONCE like ordinary purifiers and distillers! The results in the water reaching 30 TIMES THE MEASURABLE ENERGY of ANY other water!! (Watch our videos listed at www.johnellis.com and listed below.)

Just as food supplies energy, this is the only water that supplies the extra energy you may need to survive!

IS YOUR SKIN POSITIVELY OR NEGATIVELY CHARGED?

As positively charged Hydrogen Fuel is consumed, noted by Albert Szentgyorgy, even your skin becomes more negatively charged by oxygen electrons, i.e. a plain watch I wear on weekends (with a battery that usually lasts 2-3 years) hasn't had a battery change in 17 years!

INCREASE YOUR STRENGTH AND ENERGY

We have 13 International Patents, 332 FDA Tests. You've seen the ads for the elderly and/or feeble: “I've fallen, and I can't get up!” Why can't they get up? Because they lack the needed arm strength!

On the contrary, I am now in my 88th year and I warm up curling 50-lb. dumb bells in each hand even when strength starts to wane at 81 and a reverse curl over 200 pounds at 68 (witnesses said it's over the World Record).

THE HYDROGEN BOND ANGLE CAN BE CHANGED

With an Engineering Degree that includes Steam Plant Design, in college we were taught that ordinary distilled water with a Hydrogen Bond Angle (HBA) of only 101 degrees was worse than tap water with an HBA of 104.5 degrees. My water property change to 114 degrees was confirmed to The Washington Times by the Los Alamos Nuclear Lab: “He did change the hydrogen Bond Angle in water and we wish we owned his patents!” (See a video at JohnEllis.com created after a 1/27/92 Washington Post Investigative Article: “10,000 people a day said it cures anything, even cancer and diabetes.”)

SOMETHING YOU CAN MEASURE

That article also included an International Patent Description: “The curative power results from movements of water between two metal tanks,” producing results confirmed in another investigation by Guy Abraham, M.D. who taught at the UCLA Medical School doing Independent Blood Flow Studies on how to prevent a heart attack or stroke and FLUSH OUT THE BLOOD STREAM at the same time. He said, “You can't argue with something you can measure . . . the ability of blood

Left, John Ellis, founder of the E5 Water Machine, back in 1957 when he was a discus champion. Today he continues his dedication to health and human rights through his non-profit Living Water Foundation.

(94% water) to go through a membrane into the cells to the extremities. Nothing is even close to your water. Your HBA is 114 degrees!” Watch the two videos at JohnEllis.com PROVING you are drinking the wrong water . . . The results have been duplicated THOUSANDS of times, proving this water provides “BODY ELECTRIC” energy that powers your heart (defibrillator to stop a heart attack, pacemaker) because it takes less energy for the body to split water into Hydrogen and Oxygen. (Examples below, 31 amps to only 1 amp!!)

To stem the naysayers: My college engineering professor, Dr. John Weishampel, gave me the only grade of 100% in 30 years of teaching.

CONTROVERSY IS HEALTHY

Like THOMAS PAINE the author of Common Sense, anyone not generating controversy isn't doing much of anything . . . as true as God's accuracy revealed to me in the Power of a Perfect circle (360 degrees divided by Pi = 114 degrees almost exactly!).

Can atheists explain any of this?

Think about this:

- Eggs of each species always hatch at the same exact time divided by seven.
- Watermelons always have an even number of stripes.
- Oranges have an even number of segments

- Corn has an even number of rows.
- Waves of the sea roll 26 per minute in all kinds of weather.
- All grains have even numbers on the stalks.

The Lord specified: thirty, sixty and hundred-fold—all even numbers!

AND SOMETIMES CONTROVERSY IS DANGEROUS

We lived at the top of Paine Avenue in New Rochelle, NY for 70 years and a musket ball hole in the wall of the Thomas Paine Cottage reminded visitors he was embroiled in major controversy. Fortunately they missed.

And, like the people below, including my grandmother's sister (Google: Nursing Sisters Port Dover . . . a book by Harry B. Barrett), in spite of being repeatedly mentioned in wartime dispatches for her heroism and “valor in the face of the enemy,” was presented only a certificate by King George V because a woman was ineligible to receive the Victoria Cross!

As a result, my grandmother moved to Rochester, NY and befriended SUSAN B. ANTHONY and American Red Cross Founder CLARA BARTON who said to her male counterparts: “We nursed you back to health and now we need your help!” Unfortunately, some of her male counterparts made sure help never came! There are hundreds of letters and pictures, including one of the ambulances my grandmother donated (before we entered WWII), encouraged by her friend CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT, who moved around the corner from her in New Rochelle. As a youngster, I remember all the sewing machines and their many friends at my grandmother's house sewing thousands of pre-die cut clothes together to keep children warm during the brutally cold English winters.

Controversial Ideas Not Always Welcome

The rear room on the first floor of Thomas Paine's house (above) in New Rochelle, N.Y. is known as the “Paine Room.” On Christmas Eve 1805, a gun was fired into this room in an attempt on Paine's life. He described the incident in a letter: “Whatever the gun was charged with passed through about three or four inches below the window making a hole large enough [for] a finger to go through—the muzzle must have been very near as the place is black with powder, and the glass of the window is shattered to pieces.”

Gilbert Daunant
(Prince Rainier's cousin): "I just walked

THE POWER OF POSITIVE THINKING

As I listened to DR. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE eulogize my father to an overflowing congregation in New Rochelle, I thought about increasing the lifespan of people like my Godfather, DR. JAMES E. WEST, Chief Boy Scout Executive from 1907-37, who helped thousands of youngsters discover a positive direction in life along with Norman Rockwell, who we all knew and loved, hired by Dr. West for Boy's Life Magazine including friends that modeled for Saturday Evening Post covers with a humanitarian impact rarely seen today.

Dr. Peale always came to our family gatherings with his "Power of Positive Thinking" that has had a positive impact on millions of lives including Joel Osteen and President Donald Trump!

Arpaio Bypasses Fake Media

- Lawman tells AFP his investigation into Obama birth records spurred high-level retribution
- Says he might consider running for public office again if President Trump made the request

By Mark Anderson

On Friday, Aug. 25 President Donald Trump announced his plan to pardon “America’s sheriff,” Joe Arpaio. Recently, in an effort to bypass the fake news, AMERICAN FREE PRESS reached out to Arpaio to hear directly from the embattled lawman.

The hostile mainstream press has repeatedly piled on the false narrative that Arpaio had engaged in “racial profiling” when his deputies apprehended illegal alien suspects—of mainly Mexican extraction in a state that borders Mexico—thereby running afoul of the Fourth Amendment in the process. But Arpaio doesn’t see it that way, arguing that he was elected by the people of his county to enforce the law even when it was not the politically correct thing to do.

Arpaio, finally feeling free to speak out in the wake of the pardon, told this AFP writer that he has always considered himself a “constitutional sheriff” answerable to the people who elected him, not a bureaucratized police chief under the sway of a mayor or city council.

He recalls being actually sworn in to carry out the enforcement of federal immigration laws under Immigrations and Customs Enforcement’s (ICE) 287(g) program.

“I had the authority to enforce immigration laws . . . sworn in by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security,” he explained to AFP, specifying that his department exercised powers specifically granted to it to round up illegal aliens, detain them, and hand them over to federal authorities for processing.

Arpaio added that two state laws, one to combat human smuggling and another to sanction employers hiring those in the country illegally, provided an additional backstop.

“The 287(g) program, one of ICE’s top partnership initiatives, allows a state and local law enforcement entity to enter into a partnership with ICE, under a joint Memorandum of Agreement, in order to receive delegated authority for immigration enforcement within their jurisdictions,” states a passage on the DHS website.

“Just before I left the department, we had 10,000 detainees turned over [to the feds] but around 33% came back,” Arpaio continued, expressing his frustration over repeat offenders. “When the president pardoned me, he didn’t necessarily have all the facts,” the former Drug Enforcement Administration officer continued, “but I’m sure it was because [there was] no jury trial for me.”

Prior to the pardon, Arpaio was slated to be sentenced Oct. 5, likely for up to six months in jail. After a short trial, originally scheduled to start in early December 2016 but delayed, he was pronounced guilty on July 6 by Judge Susan Bolton of the U.S. District Court in Phoenix. Judge Bolton issued the verdict from the bench because Arpaio’s request for a jury trial was denied. But because no court hearing was convened to read Arpaio the verdict in open court, which his attorneys say also runs counter to legal constitutional interpretations, he learned of his verdict from the media.

THE OBAMA FACTOR

Tea party group members, frustrated because they could not find anyone with the temerity to probe Obama’s background, had approached Arpaio about their birth-certificate concerns. He accepted the challenge somewhat reluctantly, knowing the “heat” would soon come from the top, he said. Interestingly, Donald Trump raised the birth-certificate issue early on when he was considering running for president, prior to the 2012 election.

Arpaio went on to say that after his “Cold-Case Posse” was formed in 2011, at no cost to taxpayers, to explore the legitimacy of Obama’s Hawaiian birth certificate—which the posse maintained was fraudulent based on forensic research—things soon “went south” for Arpaio.

Arpaio was given a much-deserved pardon after his ridiculous conviction by Judge Susan Bolton, an appointee of President Barack Obama. Hopefully Sheriff Joe will run for public office in Arizona, where good public servants appear much needed.

In hindsight, Arpaio told AFP, “I don’t think it was so much the illegal roundups. . . I think it was the birth certificate issue they [the Obama administration] were mainly after me about.”

According to both Arpaio and his birth-certificate researcher Mike Zullo, notorious billionaire and cultural-political revolutionary George Soros financially fueled the “un-elect Joe” movement, reportedly to the tune of around $3 million, that resulted in Arpaio’s re-election defeat last November after 24 years as a highly popular sheriff.

Arpaio lamented that the mainstream media, while fixated on select constitutional questions since his pardon, to this day still “won’t even look into Obama’s birth certificate issue.”

Arpaio revealed for the first time something he discovered during his last re-election campaign. In accordance with applicable law, those behind the anti-Arpaio TV ads, used in a blitz that ran during early voting and right up to election day, were required to send him advance copies of those attack ads, which, he noted, were mailed to him from a New York office of the national Perkins Coie law firm.

What’s especially interesting about the sender’s return address is that this law firm is the same firm that represented Obama in the birth-certificate probe.

Even more interesting is that, according to Zullo, President Obama’s personal attorney, Judith Corley of Perkins Coie, is the one who flew to Hawaii to get the certificate and deliver it to the White House as the probe over the authenticity of the certificate continued. Soros has also been linked to Perkins Coie.

Zullo noted that Arpaio’s last official action—a press conference he held on Dec. 15, 2016, just before Democrat Paul Penzone officially assumed office—concluded the six-year birth-certificate probe by announcing to the incredulous press on hand that the so-called “birth certificate” was “an electronic file, not a birth certificate,” meaning it was a file “with no probative value”—in other words, fraudulent. That determination, said Zullo, is according to the independent, double-blind findings of two separate forensics entities that use different approaches to examining public documents for authenticity.

WILL ARPAIO RUN AGAIN?

Arpaio, now 85, told AFP that he’s received calls urging him to run for office, perhaps for Congress. While some press accounts have reported that the Arizona Senate seat currently occupied by Republican Jeff Flake has sparked Arpaio’s interest, he told AFP: “Originally, after I lost the sheriff’s race, I said, ‘I’m out of this.’ I actually don’t know what office I’d run for.”

Arpaio added that he feels the mainstream press, such as the Washington Examiner, may have presumed too much regarding his possible political plans. However, he told AFP, “I didn’t say no or never in a million years, either.”

According to the Examiner, “Flake is in a tenuous position. A recent poll found that the first-term senator has only a 22% approval rating among Trump supporters, as well as a 63% disapproval rating. (Among Arizonans overall, Flake has an 18% approval rating.)”

Arpaio also told AFP that he would not totally rule out running for sheriff again.

Meanwhile, Trump, who’s friends with Arpaio and supports his views, has to some extent encouraged candidates to run against Flake.

The president recently dubbed the senator “Flake Jeff Flake” and suggested he’s “weak” on border security and crime.

Arpaio rapped Flake and fellow Arizona Sen. John McCain for publicly opposing him, by saying Arpaio ignored the “rule of law” as sheriff, rather than getting together with the lawman to get the facts.

Arpaio concluded, “Now, if President Trump asked me to run [for whatever office], that’d be a ‘wild card’ to consider.” ★

Judge Moore Could Take Senate Seat

• Polling reveals “10 Commandments judge” is a good bet to win GOP run-off primary

By Mark Anderson

Not unlike former Arizona Sheriff Joe Arpaio (see pages 14-15), former Alabama Chief Justice Roy Moore has twice been put out to pasture, politically, for not goose-stepping to the twisted tune of modern political correctness. Yet the resilient champion of the Ten Commandments in the courtroom and in the public square has emerged as the lead candidate in internal polling for his state’s open Senate seat, according to several sources.

Richard Winger of “Ballot Access News,” a noted expert on state elections and their tangled laws designed in most cases to freeze out minor-party candidates, wrote that Quin Hilyer, an Alabama resident and an observer of Alabama politics and government, wrote a New York Times op-ed “that predicts that Roy Moore will win the Sept. 26 Republican run-off primary for U.S. Senate, and also the Dec. 12, 2017 special election. There won’t be anyone on the ballot in the general election except the Republican and Democrat nominees, because Alabama petition requirements for non-presidential office are so severe.”

While the polling numbers naturally are subject to shifts, the Washington daily Politico noted that internal polling, as of Aug. 31, showed Moore leading at 31%, with current Sen. Luther Strange second at 23%. Rep. Mo Brooks was coming in third at 21% as of this writing. The remaining dozen so-called lesser candidates were shy of 5%.

Moore’s candidacy came about because Sen. Jeff Sessions, a former Alabama state official, was named as attorney general by President Donald J.

Trump. Now-former Gov. Robert Bentley appointed Strange to Sessions’s vacated seat. But when Bentley was forced to step down earlier in 2017 amid scandal, his replacement, Gov. Kay Ivey, scheduled a special election.

“Moore,” wrote Daniel Strauss of Politico, “has

THE BAD WAR The Truth NEVER Taught About WWII

After years of strong sales and hundreds of five-star ratings, Jeff Bezos at Amazon finally caved in to pressure and banned Mike King’s The Bad War: The Truth Never Taught About World War 2. Why?

Americans today have an almost identical recollection of World War II as the “good war,” fought by their forebears against the “Krauts” and “Japs.” According to our mainstream history books, “the Good Guys” banded together to stop the worst scourge in global history. There is just one problem with this official version of the history-changing event known as World War II. It’s a lie!

So, how much do we really know about that crucial event and the decades of complex European history preceding it? Why, and for whom, were the 20th century’s worldwide wars actually waged?

Read the true version of World War II in this 8.5-by-11-inch photo-journalistic chronology of what really happened—approximately 300 of the most important events of the war briefly reinterpreted through the eyes of a Revisionist historian who eliminates the propaganda. Was the mainstream media as phony as it is now? Who was really to blame?

What about the events that happened but were never reported in the press? Or wrongly reported? Or purely fabricated?

relied on a solid base of conservative and religious supporters that grew during two stints on the state Supreme Court, which both ended when he was removed [from office] for defying federal orders to take down a statue of the Ten Commandments from government grounds and to issue same-sex marriage licenses.”

Meanwhile, the Republican machine’s backing of Strange has produced a rather strange set of circumstances. A super PAC called the Senate Leadership Fund, run by cohorts of Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.), is among those backing Strange. Even President Trump has endorsed Strange.

“But the super PAC’s main focus had been on preventing Brooks, a firebrand member of the House Freedom Caucus and avowed critic of McConnell, from overtaking Strange,” Strauss clarified. “Brooks’s congressional district will become a key swing region in the runoff between Moore and Strange, slated for Sept. 26.”

Moore first rose to national prominence as a county circuit judge, when he refused to remove a wooden plaque of the Ten Commandments and to cease prayers before his court sessions. After a successful race for state chief justice in 2000, Moore stuck to his pledge to install the Commandments at the state Supreme Court. A sculptor he hired created a 5,000-pound granite monument, and Moore had it placed in the Supreme Court building’s rotunda. His refusal to remove it got him removed from office in 2003, but he won again in 2012, so his mettle has been tested.

Moore, suspended in 2016 for refusing to follow the Supreme Court’s ruling allowing same-sex marriage, maintains he had the authority to order the state’s 67 county probate judges not to issue same-sex-couple “marriage” licenses. The suspension happened after the notorious Southern Poverty Law Center—which is based in Alabama and operates on the basis of cultural Marxism to advance political correctness and fight against Christian ideas of any kind, to any degree, in the public domain—filed an ethics complaint against Moore.

His suspension was issued by a judicial ethics committee one year ago, in September 2016, which barred Moore from serving as state chief justice for the rest of his term, which would have ended in 2019. He eventually resigned.

Moore had directed lower-court judges not to issue marriage licenses to same-sex couples because Alabama’s state constitution and laws defined marriage as between a man and a woman. Moore reasoned that states have the legal authority to define what marriage is under their laws, and that the federal government lacks such power—short of a constitutional amendment. This shows that Moore understands the often overlooked fact that the federal government, whenever it acts without first altering its Constitution to provide the authority it seeks, is acting unlawfully in the final analysis.

While he’s being outspent, Moore “could be an unusually strong obstacle for Strange in an age of unsettled Republican primaries,” Strauss wrote at Politico. “Moore is hoping his years of high-profile religious fights on the Alabama Supreme Court will fuel his run more than a high-budget campaign would have.” ★

THE CENTURY OF DECEPTION

The 20th century could accurately be called the century of deception. Most AFP readers are well aware of these historical errors starting with Pearl Harbor. Most of us know that Roosevelt, Gen. George Marshall and a few of his inner circle new long in advance that the Japanese armada was heading in the direction of Pearl Harbor, but failed to forewarn Gen. Short or Adm. Kimmel, who were stationed at Pearl Harbor. Then came the John F. Kennedy assassination, and his brother's, and still later his son who had to be eliminated to assure Hillary's chances of being senator of New York. We also had the holocaust, which Dr. Arthur Butz analyzed in his well-documented, 400-page book, The Hoax of the Twentieth Century. The one thing that has changed America forever, however, was the false flag attacks of 9/11. There have been many other false-flag operations since then. The world has been conditioned to accept government explanations of all of these, like the chairman of the Baptist church with a Ph.D. said just before I left it over 40 years ago, "Why would our government lie to us?"

MARTIN LUTHER

A few weeks ago I came across a quote from the greatest reformer of them all, Martin Luther, who said: "I am not bound by the opinions of others. These opinions turn into doctrines and then into dogma."

I went through this same process about 40 years ago when I realized how we Christians could be so unconcerned about what was happening to our nation, and the churches had no solutions for them, while some of them were unaware that we even had problems. Most of you would agree with me if I told you that the enemies within our gates have controlled our education from our universities down to the first grade. The great Christian history of the founding of our nation is not to be discussed in them. Our old history books have been destroyed and replaced by secular ones that removed God from being a part of early America and also the America of today.

CHANGING CHRISTIANITY

Few people today realize that the same enemies that destroyed our schools knew full well that they would have to destroy the Christianity of 1776 that founded our nation. They knew they could not make a bold frontal attack on us as that would only make us stronger and possibly throw them out. Instead, they decided to change Christianity to their benefit. It didn't take long for our old Christian history books and commentaries to disappear, never to be seen again—replaced with new and "improved" books. The only way you can change Christianity is from within.

INTENTIONAL DECEPTION

By now many of you are thinking, how can our people be so deceived? To those of you that attend Baptist, Fundamental or Evangelical churches, there has been an intentional deception on the part of our seminaries and theological schools that is passed down to our pastors, to make the enemies within our gates appear like they are one of us. The great Christian American, Henry Ford, who spent over $1 million on research for his four-volume book The International Jew said: "There was not a seminary in America that had not been penetrated by the Jews." A good example is Moody Bible Institute, the flagship of seminaries. It had Professor Goldberg as head of the prophesy courses.

THE WORDS OF THE RABBIS

One erroneous and deceptive term that has come on the scene a few decades ago is Judeo-Christian. It's better to take the words of the rabbis to better understand it's meaning than to take the words of a Christian who could be regarded as an anti-Semite, another term that makes no sense. Here the names and the dates will be listed for these quotes as it would take up too much space to list their biographies:

***

"There is no such thing as a Judeo-Christian religion. We consider the two religions so different that one excludes the other."

—RABBI MOSHE MAGGAL, 1961, when the term was relatively new.

***

"What are usually referred to as the Jewish-Christian traditions exist only in Christian or secular fantasy."

—Rabbi Eliezar Berkowitz, 1966

***

"The Communist soul is the soul of Judaism."

—RABBI HARRY WATON

RABBI STEPHEN WISE
Foreign-born American Zionist rabbi.

***

"I call this process the Judaization of Christianity because Christianity will be the vehicle through which this society becomes Jewish."

—RABBI MARTIN SIEGEL, 1972

***

"Some call it Marxism. I call it Judaism."

—RABBI STEPHEN WISE, America's leading Rabbi, spoken in 1936.

***

"Thanks to the power of our International banks, we have forced the Christians into wars without number. Wars have a special value for us Jews, since Christians massacre each other and make room for us Jews. Wars are the Jews' harvest: The Jew banks grow fat on Christian wars, and the end is not yet."

—RABBI REICHORN, 1869

One thing is certain: There is nothing Jewish about our heritage, our ethics, our morals, our values or our virtues. It makes the term Judeo-Christian an oxymoron, as they are as different as hot and cold or day and night.

Since He knows the end from the beginning, why would God Almighty choose these anti-Christ people to be His chosen people, above all people on Earth?

END FAR FROM OVER

No, the end was far from over. Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn (1918-2008), the Nobel-Prize-winning novelist and historian, estimated the number of Christian Russians tortured and murdered by the Jewish Bolsheviks between 1918 and 1957 as 66 million. The many means of torture were so brutal and painful that I hate to write about it or even think about it. For those who are not enlightened by their pastors, this sounds like a great tribulation. The above quotes, along with many others, are never made known to our young men attending the seminaries, and God forbid that they should ever be taught anything in or about the Talmud. They are taught to believe that the people called Jews today represent all 12 tribes and they are “God’s chosen people,” the greatest enemy of Christ and Christians for the last 2,000 years.

CHURCH DOCTRINE

A few months after leaving the church, I had coffee with the pastor, who I knew well. After talking for a while, I said that church doctrine now supersedes Bible doctrine. I was more than a little amazed when he agreed. We have been deceitfully told that the word Jew and Israel are synonymous, when the 1980 Jewish Almanac clearly states the following. “It is incorrect to call an ancient Israelite a Jew, and it is also incorrect to call a contemporary Jew an Israelite or a Hebrew.” We are also told that we believe in the same God, even after Christ told us, “He that hateth me, hateth my father also.” Virtually all Jews hate Christ and Christianity as it is a part of their religion and their Talmud. These are, by definition, God haters.

ALL ABOUT ABRAHAM

After leaving the church, I really had no idea of what the Bible was all about. It did not take long to find out that from Genesis 12:3 to the end of Revelation that the Bible was a story of one man’s family, Abraham and his descendants. That’s why Abraham’s name was mentioned 66 times in the NT. It did not take long to realize that about 75% of the Bible centers around government, a fact that is never mentioned in today’s churches, even when Isaiah tells us of a time when the government shall be upon His shoulder. Man (mamon) has done a miserable job on it for the last 4,000 years, and it just gets worse. In early America, only Christians were allowed to hold office or vote. It has now gotten to the point that a foreign-born alien Muslim stranger can become president—and even illegals can vote!

JACOB AND ESAU

The Bible also centers around an age-long fight between two brothers, Jacob/Israel and Esau/Edom, which also runs from Genesis to Revelation, and today most pastors are unaware of who these brothers’ descendants are. Christ referred to them as the wheat and the tares. The Bible is also a tale of two cities that runs through the entire Bible: The Old Jerusalem and the New Jerusalem, and Ancient Babylon and Mystery Babylon. The Old Jerusalem is not the New Jerusalem and Mystery Babylon is not a geographical place on Earth. Instead, it refers to the invisible beast system that’s in control now,

JUSTICE AN ILLUSION

Most pastors including Baptists and their people are not truth seekers, as they have been so programmed to automatically reject anything that is contrary to their paradigms. The people go to the pastors for answers and the pastors rely on their Zionist books and commentaries. They are not like the Behrens of old that searched the Scriptures to see if these things be so. Instead, this dissertation is written for the thousands that are questioning the reasons why these things are not mentioned in the churches they attend. God is not impressed with our religiosity, piety or self-righteousness. He wants righteousness and justice in the land. Our righteousness is now a thing of the past, and justice is just an illusion.

BELIEVERS AND UNBELIEVERS

Jesus said, “Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers.” We are now yoked together with the most brutal, racist and anti-Christ nation on Earth, while our media keeps telling us what a great ally they are. By attacking our USS Liberty ship in broad daylight, killing 34 and wounding and burning over 174 of our sailors, Israel became the only nation in the world that can attack us with impunity. President

Washington, in his historical farewell address, told us not to be involved in Europe’s wars. That could also apply to the Middle East today. There was a time when America was regarded by the world as the most God-blessed nation on Earth. Today we have become the most feared nation on Earth, with 150 air bases and over 1,000 military bases around the world. Most of our pastors see nothing wrong with that, and some of them approve of our empire building, the overthrowing of foreign leaders by demonizing them first in the media, and our endless wars.

TELEVISION “PROGRAMS”

A few years ago at a Democratic National Convention Reception celebrating Jewish Heritage Month, Joe Biden, our VP, said the following, “It wasn’t anything we legislatively did. It was ‘Will & Grace’ [an NBC television show], it was social media. Literally. That’s what changed people’s attitudes. That’s why I was so certain that the vast majority of people would embrace and rapidly embrace gay marriage.”

He then added, “The influence is immense.”

And I might add, it’s all to the good.” There’s a reason these TV shows are called “programs,” as they are used to program our minds to conform to their goals.

CHRISTIAN ZIONISM

Another term that has become popular is Christian Zionism. Many are deceived by its name as they think it is sourced from the Bible. Zionism is a political action coalition concerned only with the advancement of Jewish Zionist goals. They stand against our Christian heritage, morals, ethics, and our values. Unfortunately, there are millions more Christian Zionists than Jewish Zionists working for their goals.

* * *

For those of you reading this, I would like to ask the following question: “Do you think it’s right to take the Lord’s money and give it to a church that praises and forgives a nation and a people that are doing their best to destroy everything our 1776 Christian Americans fought and died for?”

CONFORMING TO THE PROGRAMMING

I have three Baptist pastors in my family including my brother, with a Divinity Degree, who has been preaching for over 55 years. None of them will accept a Bible verse that does not conform to their Zionist-programmed minds. One nationally known Baptist pastor that has taken the time to think outside the box is Dr. Chuck Baldwin. He is a life-long student of the Bible who started as soon as he could read. He has degrees from three Bible colleges and institutes, and attended a fourth. During his 40-plus years of ministry, he pastored a Baptist church for 35 years: the second, a non denominational fellowship for seven years. A few years ago, he and his extended family, along with some members of his church, left sunny Florida and moved to northern Montana. He has dropped the 501c3 tax exemption, and is now able to preach Bible truth, as well as what’s happening to America and who’s responsible. It’s been a pleasure to support him, even though it’s not tax deductible.

I urge you to go to ChuckBaldwinLive.com, and see what his ministry is all about. He emails, at no cost, a weekly and interesting newsletter every Thursday. I have many of them stored in my computer. If you would like to see a couple, just email sommerville76@msn.com or write me at Ed Sommerville, 291 Misty Meadows Lane, Menasha, WI 54952 if you care to discuss anything I have written in the ad, or want to learn more of what you haven’t been told. Email for the same purpose. I think it’s time for our Christian patriots to wake up and see how cunningly so many of us were and continue to be deceived. ❖

Company Wants Employees ‘Chipped’

• Wisconsin company says bio-chips can replace swipe cards, log in to computers, order food

By Dave Gahary

Five years ago this week, when AMERICAN FREE PRESS was the first national newspaper to break the story on a San Antonio, Texas school attempting to force all 4,200 students “to wear radio frequency identification (RFID) microchips embedded in the student IDs worn around their necks,” it may have seemed to most readers the stuff of science fiction. Not only is the technology more advanced today, however, it’s gaining acceptance as well.

Although the teenage heroine in AFP roving editor Mark Anderson’s 2012 report—Andrea Hernandez—eventually won her battle based on religious beliefs that opposed being “chipped,” having microchips voluntarily injected subcutaneously is now a growing fad.

Around two years after AFP’s report, the BBC reported on a company that’s perfecting the art of chipping. In Sweden, a high-technology office complex—Epicenter—is offering chipping to any employee who wants it, and many are jumping at the chance. Even BBC reporter Rory Cellan-Jones—who wrote the Jan. 29, 2015 article entitled “Office puts chips under staff’s skin”—volunteered to have the device, about the size of a grain of rice, implanted in his hand, between his thumb and index finger. He explained the process in the article.

First, he massaged the skin between my thumb and index finger and rubbed in some disinfectant. The[n] he told me to take a deep breath while he inserted the chip. There was a moment of pain—not much worse than any injection—and then he stuck a plaster [an adhesive bandage] over my hand.

Eventually, all 700 employees working in the complex were to be offered the “opportunity” to be chipped.

The man implanting the chips—Hannes Sjoblad, who works for the Swedish “biohacking” company BioNyfiken—told the reporter:

We already interact with technology all the time. Today it’s a bit messy—we need pin codes and passwords. Wouldn’t it be easy to just touch with your hand? That’s really intuitive. We want to be able to understand this technology before big corporates and big government come to us and say everyone should get chipped—the tax authority chip, the Google or Facebook chip.

An Associated Press (AP) article updating Epicenter’s “progress,” reported that of the “more than 100 companies and some 2,000 workers . . . about 150 workers have them.” The report notes a company in Belgium “also offers its employees such implants, and there are isolated cases around the world where tech enthusiasts have tried this out in recent years.”

“The implants have become so popular,” reports AP, “that Epicenter workers stage monthly events where attendees have the option of being ‘chipped’ for free.”

Now the chipping craze has crossed the pond.

As reported in the pages of USA Today on July 24, a “Wisconsin technology firm has begun offering employees microchip implants so they can [enter the company building without a swipe card] and purchase food at work.” The company, Three Square Market (32M)—which is partnering with BioNyfiken—“has over 50 employees who plan to have the devices implanted.”

According to a company press release, 32M “is offering implanted chip technology to all of their employees. Employees will be chipped at the 32M inaugural ‘chip party’ hosted at their headquarters in River Falls, Wisc. on Aug. 1, 2017. Employees will be implanted with a RFID chip allowing them to make purchases in their break room micro market, open doors, log in to computers, use the copy machine etc.”

CEO Todd Westby states: “We foresee the use of RFID technology to drive everything from making purchases in our office break room market, open-

Christmas Before Christianity

How the Birthday of the Sun Became the Birthday of the Son

Find out the truth behind why Jesus, Paul, and John, as well as many of the Church Fathers held that both Christ and His Church have existed from the beginning of time. This sensational 300-page work will not only provoke discussion, but will also inspire a renewed appreciation for both the religion of our Lord and for the sacred annual celebration of His birth. It’s no secret that Christianity did what all religions do. It evolved, growing from pagan roots and, even after having established its own identity as a stream of religious culture, continued to appropriate from surrounding and established pagan belief systems.

Even the most orthodox Christian theologians and fundamentalists admit that Jesus’s exact birth date is unknown. But it is hard to believe that “there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night,” as Luke tells us, when the weather would not have permitted it in December. Why then is His birthday observed between late December and early January around the world? As award-winning author and Bible scholar Lochlainn Seabrook reveals in this fascinating and exhaustively researched work, the answer is to be found in the Goddess-based vegetation religions of prehistory and their astrological reverence for our neighborhood star, the Sun.

Ten years in the making, Christmas Before Christianity explores the pre-Christian foundations of humanity’s most popular holiday, including the many pagan gods, god-esses, myths, rituals, legends, ceremonies, customs and beliefs that contributed to its creation and development. Special emphasis is placed on ancient Egypt, where a majority of our modern Christmas traditions can be traced.

From every major facet of the Nativity to the décor and traditions of Christmas celebrations, paganism permeates the Christian tradition and His messianic birthday celebration. Even Santa Claus and St. Nicholas were Christianizations of pagan ideas. Seabrook also discloses pagan-rooted celebrations practiced around the globe today.

But Christmas celebrations were not always so well received. Fourth-century church father Origen strenuously opposed the holiday exactly because of its pagan roots. He believed there were far too many obvious pagan rituals being incorporated into Christian celebrations. You’ll learn about that, too—and more.

ing doors, use of copy machines, logging into our office computers, unlocking phones, sharing business cards, storing medical/health information, and used as payment at other RFID terminals. Eventually, this technology will become standardized allowing you to use this as your passport, public transit, all purchasing opportunities etc."

Vice President of International Sales Tony Dana added, "We see chip technology as the next evolution in payment systems."

Fortunately for those neo-luddites among us, not everyone is as eager to step into this brave, new world. State lawmakers in Nevada heard testimony earlier this year regarding chipping.

Legislation introduced by state Sen. Becky Harris "would bar forcefully implanted tracking microchips," reported the Reno Gazette-Journal on Feb. 13. Sen. Harris believes "the chips pose serious ethical concerns, such as who owns the information stored on the chip and who owns the chip itself."

She's also concerned that the chips could be "hacked," allowing someone unauthorized access to the chip for an illegal purpose.

"There's no cryptology or protection measures that we're aware of that are placed on these chips, so it's possible to hack the information contained within the chips," she said. "It is possible that you could harass or stalk chipped individuals with the right type of reader."

Sen. Harris also claims "the chips also pose a potential health problem, citing studies that found fibrosarcoma and sarcoma, a malignant cancerous tumor, at injection sites in animal testing."

Humans morphing into cancerous cyborgs may have come to pass, but it's not fazing certain portions of the younger generation.

A 25-year-old employee who works for a company in the Epicenter complex, Sandra Haglof, is ready for the transformation.

Laughing, she told AP, "I want to be part of the future." ★

A South African's Warning

• Activist wraps up six-month tour of America to bring attention to genocide

By Dave Gahary

SPRINGTOWN, Pa.—To hear from a 46-year-old South African that his country is on the verge of complete collapse and the organization he represents exists solely to prepare for a civil war between blacks and whites, you may think Simon Roche (pronounced “rosh”) is a bit over the top. Once he makes his case, however, it’s apparent where his sense of alarm arises from and why he fears that America is careening toward the same fate.

In his last interview with this newspaper before heading back to his country after a six-month tour here, Roche discussed his background and what the organization he’s affiliated with, Suidlanders (pronounced “sightlahnders”), is attempting to do.

Suidlanders, as Roche told this reporter at the Aug. 26 conference of Don Wassall’s The Nationalist Times at the Springtown Rod & Gun Club, and in a Sept. 1 one-hour telephone interview, “is the world’s largest non-state civil defense organization . . . constituted under international law.” Roche and his compatriots are, as previously noted, “preparing for a civil war in South Africa, which is something that has been promised to the white people by black leaders in South Africa on many occasions.”

He explained, “Our leader, the founder of our organization, had the foresight, some years ago, to begin to prepare in this manner, in a legal, non-militant, non-militaristic, non-sectitious, non-insurrectionist manner, to protect civilian non-combatants . . . to provide a civil defense solution to non-combatants in the event of the civil war.”

That leader, Gustav Müller, was in the South African Defense Force in military intelligence, “so he has a background in risk analysis and scenario planning,” said Roche. “He was in the Defense Force at a time when we were fighting nine countries on the borders of South Africa and at a time when there was massive instability internally; the African National Congress’s armed wing was terrorizing people.”

“Gustav was in a situation where he was required—every day of his life—to think very hard, to analyze, and assist . . . how things were going to play out, what was happening next, what intelligence could be produced from the information on the ground,” explained Roche. “And that gave him an insight into how things might transpire in South Africa. He believed that things would end very badly once the African National Congress [ANC] took power, as they did on the 27th of April

SIMON ROCHE

Simon Roche is a member of the Suidlanders, a peaceful, non-sectitious civil defense organization independently founded but legally recognized by the government. The purpose of the Suidlanders is to ensure that whites have a chance to survive should a race war break out, which has been promised by South Africa’s black leaders on numerous occasions.

1994. Then he sort of bided his time for a while, observing how things were playing out, and it became clearer and clearer to him over time that the [ANC], as a communist entity, was leading South Africa down a path of destruction.”

Although a white man, Roche is not of Dutch ancestry, which were the original white settlers to South Africa. As the story goes, one of the Dutch East India Company’s ships had been stranded in 1648 and the castaways “were so impressed with the natural resources of the country” that they launched an expedition four years later for a permanent settlement.

“I come from Irish ancestry,” explained Roche, “so I’m not part of that portion of the white people of South Africa who have been there since April 6, 1652, when the first permanent [white] settlement was established in South Africa. I am fourth-generation Irish, of Irish stock, and my forebears came to South Africa in the late 1800s.”

Around 80% of South Africa’s 55 million inhabitants are black, while whites comprise a mere 8.1% of the total. The majority of the working population, however, is out of work.

“The official unemployment figures—which are generally regarded as understated—are 38.1%,” explained Roche. “In fact, an international firm has just released [a report] in the past couple of days that alludes to an unemployment rate of something like . . . 56.3%. We have recently been downgraded, that is to say, South Africa’s sovereign bond rating, has been downgraded by Moody’s, Fitch, and Standard & Poor’s, to junk status.”

The collapsing economy and the hate pouring from the lips of South Africa’s black “leaders” have created some horrendous fallout.

“We have amongst the highest rates of murder and rape in the world generally, across the board,” said Roche. “And the murder of white farmers by black people in South Africa is the highest rate of murder of any city, anywhere in the world, by a country mile. The murder of whites generally by black people is also a phenomenally high figure. It’s something like 1,370% greater than the murder rate of all Americans, regardless of what race they are and by which race they are murdered. And these indicators, coming as they do, in tandem, with the promises that we’ve received from black leaders, particularly over the past year, of a race-based civil war to wipe out all whites, is fairly persuasive.”

To highlight how stark the South African murder rate is, Roche provided a comparison.

“To give you an idea, the murders of whites between the first and the 14th of February this year, inclusive, was greater than the number of murders committed in the Republic of Ireland—which has a population of a similar size to the white population in South Africa—over the past 30 years,” he said. “Over 74,000 white people have been murdered by black people since the beginning of this new South African ‘rainbow nation’ multiracial democracy.”

Roche blames others—not just the blacks who have been incited to murder whites—for the damage done to his country.

“We had a certain dialectic rammed down our throats by the international news media, the globalist news media, the liberal elites, and the academic elites, for about 40 years, who’ve said that apartheid is bad; those who support apartheid, the white South Africans, are bad people; that the blacks are innocent victims who can do no wrong; that the [ANC] is without peer; that Nelson Mandela was a pure soul,” he said. “Many white people, many conservative white people—I count some in my own family in that group—began to believe that everything that they thought, every

Since the takeover of the black communists in South Africa 24 years ago, life for whites has deteriorated rapidly to the point where being a farmer in South Africa is now the world's most dangerous profession with hundreds being killed every year. Much of the blame for the epidemic of crimes against white South Africans can be placed at the feet of South Africa's black politicians, who have promised a genocide will inevitably be unleashed upon the whites still living there. Whites currently make up 8.1% of the population, with blacks comprising 80.7%. In response to the deteriorating situation, a group called the Suidlanders—the largest non-state civil defense organization in the world—has been formed to help whites survive should a civil war break out.

commonsense conclusion that they'd drawn by themselves in their lives, was false, and that it was time to be harmonious and integrated."

Roche touched on some of the parallels between South Africa and the U.S.

"We . . . have seen what happens when you put the liberals in charge," he said. "You guys—with all due respect—should know this yourselves, because you have certain litmus tests. You're able to see what happens when the liberals run a city like Chicago or Detroit or Baltimore or Atlanta into the ground for 40, 50, or 60 years."

"What happened in South Africa and what is happening in the U.S.A.," he continued, "are, for all intents and purposes, identical. The media, the liberal elites, and the academic elites are persuading Americans to adopt their views, which are completely anti-American. They've taken the U.S.A. and sort of twisted it, by five degrees at a time, to adopt values which were never part of the core identity of America. And they persuaded you that this is how you always thought. It's unbelievable." ★

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's The Great Boer War

By Arthur Conan Doyle. This book was one of the first complete histories of the Anglo-Boer War written as it happened. First published in 1902, Conan Doyle's book became the standard by which all other histories of that conflict were measured. Doyle longed to fight as a soldier. After writing about war in many of his books, he actually wanted to experience it firsthand. He was rejected for service as a soldier, but, due to his medical background, was accepted in the British army as a doctor. Though he saw a small portion of the war, he did go back and revise his book more than a dozen times to correct errors and add additional material.

Chapters include: The Boer Nations; The Cause of Quarrel; The Negotiations; The Eve of War; Talana Hill; Elandslaagte and Rietfontein; The Battle of Ladysmith; Lord Methuen's Advance; The Battle of Magersfontein; The Battle of Stormberg; The Battle of Colenso; The Dark Hour; The Siege of Ladysmith; The Colesberg Operations; Spioen Kop; Vaalkranz; Buller's Final Advance; The Siege and Relief of Kimberley; Paardeberg; Roberts' Advance on Bloemfontein; Strategic Effects of Lord Roberts' March; The Halt at Bloemfontein; The Clearing of the South-East; The Siege of Mafeking; The March On Pretoria; Diamond Hill—Rundle's Operations; The Lines of Communication; The Halt at Pretoria; The Advance to Komatipoort; The Campaign of De Wet; The Guerilla Warfare in the Transvaal: Nooitgedacht; The Second Invasion of Cape Colony; The Northern Operations from January to April 1901; The Winter Campaign From April to September 1901; The Guerilla Operations In Cape Colony; The Spring Campaign from September to December 1901; The Campaign of January to April 1902; and De la Rey's Campaign of 1902.

Killing Iran Nuke Deal Dangerous

• Russia, China, Europe warn they will not punish Iran for abiding by treaty

By Richard Walker

The White House may be planning to wreck the Iran nuclear deal in a move that many experts believe would have the potential to lead to a major war. Moscow, one of the signatories to the 2015 deal with Iran, has privately warned the White House that moves to undermine the deal or to wreck it could lead to a conflict that would set the Middle East on fire and have ramifications well beyond the region. China and the European Union (EU) have expressed similar sentiments in coded messages to Washington diplomats.

The 2015 deal, known as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), was negotiated by Russia, China, France, Germany, Russia, and Britain. It permitted regular inspections of Iran's nuclear sites by the UN's International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), to ensure Iran was not producing materials to make nuclear weapons. All parties to the deal, except the new Trump administration, agree that Iran has abided by the terms of the deal.

President Donald Trump said he "personally believes" Iran has not kept to its part of the bargain. However, he has offered no evidence to support his personal conjecture, a position hardly worthy of a U.S. president in respect to such a serious issue.

A British diplomat, who spoke to AFP on condition of anonymity this summer in Europe, expressed concern that a cabal within the Trump White House was aligning itself with pro-Israel and pro-Saudi elements on Capitol Hill and in Washington to scupper the Iran deal.

"The shocking part of this," he remarked, "is that if we could negotiate a similar deal with North Korea there would be celebrations in every major capital, and the world would be a safer place. The idea that a group that hates Iran wants to take us down this road is ridiculous."

A source with intimate knowledge of the Kremlin was more blunt when this writer asked about rumors that the Trump administration was bent on punishing Iran with more sanctions to kill the deal.

"The only outcome of such a policy is that Iran will no longer be constrained from pursuing a nuclear device. The only way to stop that will be to bomb its whole nuclear infrastructure. That's what some elements in Washington, Tel Aviv, and Riyadh are hoping for, but they might not like the outcome in the long term. In the short term, there is an effort to get access to Iranian military sites for so-called inspections with the plan to put them on a future Israeli targeting list."

The rumors about a White House plan to take down the Iran deal have not been merely speculative. Recently, Nikki Haley, U.S. ambassador to the UN, paid a private visit to IAEA headquarters in Geneva seeking information to confirm Trump's personal feeling that Iran was breaking the deal. By all accounts she came away from the visit with no incriminating data. Nevertheless, she confirmed what Moscow was seeing through its own sources.

Leading neoconservative John Bolton, who has campaigned against any rapprochement with Iran over the years, has made it clear publicly that he advised the president to abandon the nuclear deal and take a tougher line with Iran.

By Mary Louise Roberts

Ignore the lascivious subtitle: This is a serious book about how a conquering army—even if it be one of your "allies"—treats the host population, especially its womenfolk.

How do you convince men to charge across heavily mined beaches into deadly machine-gun fire? Do you appeal to their bonds with their fellow soldiers, their patriotism, their desire to end tyranny and mass murder? Certainly, but if you're the U.S. Army in 1944, you also try another tack: You dangle the lure of beautiful French women, waiting just on the other side of the wire, ready to reward their liberators in so many ways.

That's not the picture of the Greatest Generation that we've been given, but it's the one Roberts paints to devastating effect in What Soldiers Do. Drawing on an incredible range of sources, including news reports, propaganda and training materials, official planning documents, wartime diaries, and memoirs, Roberts tells the fascinating and troubling story of how the U.S. military command systematically spread—and then exploited—the myth of French women as sexually experienced and available. The resulting chaos—ranging from flagrant public acts with prostitutes to outright rape and rampant venereal disease—horrified the war-weary and demoralized French population. The sexual predation, and the blithe response of the American military leadership, also caused serious friction between the two nations just as they were attempting to settle questions of control over the liberated territories and the restoration of French sovereignty.

While never denying the achievement of D-Day, or the bravery of the soldiers who took part, What Soldiers Do reminds us that history is always more useful—and more interesting—when it is most honest, and when it goes beyond the burnished beauty of nostalgia to grapple with the real lives and real mistakes of the people who lived it.

Just about everybody in the world, including Russia, China, the EU, and the IAEA, believes that Iran is abiding by the nuclear agreement crafted and signed by the world's major powers—everyone except, it appears, Benjamin Netanyahu of Israel and some of his Saudi minions. They are concerned about Shiite Iran's growing influence in the region.

Hill. They talk about Iran being a clear and present danger, a view not shared by Russia, China or the EU, but very definitely by Israel and Saudi Arabia.

Kaveh Afrasiabi, who advised Iran during the nuclear negotiations, believes Washington is already in breach of the 2015 agreement by imposing new sanctions on Iran when all the other parties accept that Iran is compliant. He has pointed out something that is not mentioned by the mainstream media: Since the deal was struck, EU corporations have benefited tremendously by negotiating billion-dollar contracts with Iran whereas the Trump administration has “self-sanctioned” U.S. corporations that have been willing to sell everything from planes to cars to Iran. That, he says, is why the EU will not toe the Washington line on Iran and neither will China or Russia, leaving the U.S. potentially isolated if it goes it alone to destroy the agreement.

According to Afrasiaba, Washington had turned over its Iran policy to D.C. hardliners. His view is one shared in many Western capitals and especially in Moscow, where there is a growing fear that Trump will adopt an Israeli view of Iran that could drag Russia into a conflict on the side of Iran.

The growing antagonism toward Iran comes at a time when Iran has played a major role with Russia in defeating ISIS in Iraq and Syria. That has convinced some Israeli hardliners and the Saudis, along with neocons in Washington, that Iran has too much influence. But Russia's growing role in the region could well ensure that the hardliners in Washington, Tel Aviv, and Riyadh may not get their wish to see Iran bombed. ★

DEFENDING DIXIE

The idea that those with ancestors who fought on the Southern side of the War Between the States should be ashamed of their sacrifices or that the Southern flag displayed in any form is merely a symbol of bigotry, hatred and racial oppression is ridiculous. Perhaps for some it is. But not for the 99% of right-thinking Americans who relish true history.

The facts is, when most Southerners look at that flag they do not even think of slavery. They think about the courage it took to fight for self-determination and states' rights—something the Powers That Be hate you contemplating. The guilt trip the rabid, radical left is foisting on Southerners is the cornerstone of an effort to bring the people of the South to heel and into the New World Order.

But a good dose of the truth is what they all need!

In this special, expanded 112-page issue we have assembled as many interviews and Revisionist articles as we could jam in explaining these facts. (It could have been 500 pages.)

Articles in this issue cover:

- The real reasons behind the removal of monuments dedicated to Southern heroes;
- The truth about the Fort Pillow “massacre”;
- An honest appraisal of the Gray Ghost;
- Tariffs: The real cause of the war;
- Interviews with monument activists and historians Lochlainn Seabrook, Ed deVries and Charles Edward Lincoln III;
- Secret societies and the Civil War;
- Blockade-runners of the South;
- Sherman's annihilation policy;
- Dixie's dark secret: rich, black slaveholders;
- Memoirs of a Rebel private;

- The Cherokee general;
- The Missouri exodus;
- The cultural cleansing of the South;
- Maryland state song on the chopping block;
- The Jim Crow double-cross and more!

We need to get as many copies of this special expanded edition of THE BARNES REVIEW into the hands of as many people as possible, and you can help us in this endeavor for the sake of true history, our past and our future. Individual issues of this 112-page issue are available in bulk and are discounted: the more you buy, the lower the price.

NOTE HOWEVER:

We have only ordered an extra 400 of this issue, so, if you would like one for yourself and are not a subscriber, please pre-order now. The issue is at the printer now and will be in the hands of subscribers in several weeks as the Sept./Oct.2017 issue.

BULK PRICES: 1-5 copies are $10 each. 6-10 copies are $9 each. 11-25 are $8 each. 26 or more are $7 each. No further discounts. In the U.S. add $5 S&H on orders up to $50. ## Renew Your AFP Subscription Today & Get This Rare Thorn Book

Victor Thorn was indisputably one of the most prolific and accurate conspiracy researchers in modern history. It was he who composed the Hillary (And Bill) trilogy that no doubt helped send Hillary Clinton to defeat in the 2016 presidential election. He was praised by bestselling author Roger Stone in Stone's book The Clintons' War on Women. Thorn was also lauded by black nationalist leader Louis Farrakhan as the best source for information about the terror attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, which many agree was an inside job. Victor's book on the Holocaust is one of the most popular books on the subject ever written.

The list of the books Victor published comprises over 50 titles, some of which we are sure you have never even heard. But who did Victor think were the most avant garde conspiracy researchers in recent history? Who influenced his writings and worldview? What topics most interested those in his "conspiracy hall of fame"?

In Victor Thorn's Conspiracy Hall of Fame, Thorn chose those he thought were the most daring and important thinkers and researchers all in one volume—and provided a synopsis of their work and why he felt it was so important. These names include Bill Cooper, Gary Allen, Michael Collins Piper, Alex Constantine, Zecharia Sitchin, Texe Marrs, Ben Freedman, William Guy Carr, Jim Keith, Mike Hoffman, Des Griffin, John Coleman, Mae Brussell, Gary Webb, Adam Gorightly, Ralph Epperson, and many more. The book also includes a section on the strange circumstances surrounding the shooting of Arizona Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords. That incident also resulted in the death of a federal judge.

Now you can get this information-packed, cutting-edge 44-page book FREE just by renewing your AMERICAN FREE PRESS subscription at the low $53 renewal rate—that's 10% off plus you get Victor Thorn's Conspiracy Hall of Fame FREE!

Profit-Hungry Health Industry Has Made Healthcare Unaffordable for Americans

By James Spounias

For-profit versus non-profit healthcare is a crucial fact not properly addressed in the healthcare crisis discussion, especially when it relates to what contributed to the escalation of healthcare costs in the United States over the past few decades.

Prior to 1973, healthcare was “non-profit” until President Richard M. Nixon, along with Sen. Ted Kennedy (D-Mass.), promoted legislation to create health maintenance organizations (HMOs).

Urged by his friend Edgar Kaiser, head of Kaiser-Permanente, Nixon pushed for HMOs. Nixon’s taped words were replayed in Michael Moore’s documentary “Sicko.” Nixon said, “All the incentives are toward less care because the less they give them, the more money they make . . . and the incentives run the right way.”

While Moore and others seize upon Nixon as the cause of a for-profit healthcare system, ignored is that Kennedy then sponsored the for-profit legislation, making the “Republican versus Democrat” paradigm a mere distraction.

Americans need to be outraged no matter what happens with the debate over the Affordable Care Act, also known as Obamacare, because both political parties are beholden to big pharma and massive insurance interests that have no interest in cutting costs or seeing Americans in good health.

While some libertarian economists posit that Medicare, which was passed in 1965, caused market interference, bringing HMOs and other fixes to follow, it is difficult to argue that what is essentially “Medicare for all” works in most developed countries at much less expense than in the U.S. for-profit healthcare system.

Even single-payer France gives measurably better care than the U.S. for about half of what we spend, per capita.

The profit point has mettle, and HMOs may have been the watershed, sending healthcare costs spiraling out of control, but the fact that medicine—at all levels—is strongly regulated, which itself drives up costs, is not highlighted by those on the left side of the aisle.

It’s irritating to hear the healthcare debate framed as “free market versus socialism,” because neither is accurate.

A free-market healthcare system means no licensure of health professionals, no Food and Drug Administration approvals, and no restrictions, leaving anyone to practice medicine or sell drugs, and the consumer would have the burden to choose his own practitioner.

In this libertarian free-market rubric, doctors who are part of the private non-governmental American Medical Association would compete with those who don’t. It’s possible that the neighborhood butcher could do surgery better than an AMA graduate, but few Americans would want a full-blown, unregulated, free-enterprise system of medicine, in this writer’s opinion, even though many chafe against the state and federal regulations.

The current U.S. system is corporatist which benefits a tight group of business interests. Government is a tool of the elite in corporatism, rather than being protectors of the public interest.

If Americans are ready for a change, looking to Switzerland provides an example of the best model. In the Swiss healthcare system, insurance is mandated and basic care is run by competing non-profit institutions. Additional insurance can be purchased from for-profit companies.

Swiss premiums are much lower than in America, and some contracts offer lower premiums and even rebates for those who do not file claims, which actually rewards people for living healthy lives.

In 2016, the Swiss government allowed complementary therapies to be paid for. Homeopathy, wholistic medicine, herbal medicine, acupuncture, and Chinese medicine acquired the same status as conventional medicine when it came to health insurance by May 2017.

But unlike in the U.S., the Swiss don’t go bankrupt due to medical costs and actually have some choice and market reward for making good health choices.

Americans should drop the distracting corporatist rhetoric and push for something akin to the Swiss system. ★

Did The New York Times Really Say That?

By James Spounias

In a May 6 New York Times propaganda piece disguised as a “news” story, entitled “Health Act Repeal Could Threaten U.S. Job Engine,” writers pleaded to keep Obamacare, because of the jobs that will be lost if the act is repealed.

The writers seem to have missed the irony that red tape, sickness, and disease are required to sustain this sector of the economy, which provides 17.5% of U.S. GDP and 20% of all U.S. employment.

In an Orwellian comparison, the Times writes: “While manufacturing employment has fallen nearly 40% in northeastern Ohio since 2000, the number of healthcare jobs in the region has jumped more than 30% over the same period. In Akron, the onetime rubber capital of the world, only one of the city’s 10 largest employers still makes tires. Three are hospitals.”

How is losing a manufacturing base to servicing sick people a “good thing”?

This writer is not trying to be sarcastic or disparage meaningful attempts to find employment or help sick people, but the sniveling appeal to sustain a healthcare economy in our current for-profit system, which is breaking the bank, has a dark side that begs the question of how necessary it will be to have enough diseased people to sustain economic growth.

Let’s assume that 20% of Americans adopted healthy lifestyles by cutting the junk diet and minimizing exposure to environmental threats, thus preventing disease. Doing so would not only cut the profits of the healthcare sector but eliminate many jobs as well.

Does this explain the establishment’s relentless attack on alternative therapies and nutritional supplements? Does this explain why the mainstream media would rather spin the news cycle with endless racial and sexual-identity politics rather than spend days exposing environmental pollutants and solutions for better health?

These questions answer themselves. ★

GOP's Shotgun Wedding Dissolving?

• Spineless Republicans willing to trash president in return for media plaudits

By Patrick Buchanan

Wednesday morning, Nov. 9, 2016, Republicans awoke to learn they had won the lottery. Donald Trump had won the presidency by carrying Wisconsin, Michigan, and Pennsylvania. All three states had gone Democratic in the last six presidential elections.

The GOP had won both houses of Congress. Party control of governorships and state legislatures rivaled the halcyon years of the 1920s.

But not everyone was jubilant. Neocons and Never-Trumpers were appalled, and as morose as they had been since the primaries produced a populist slaughter of what GOP elites had boasted was the finest class of presidential candidates in memory. And there was this sobering fact: Hillary Clinton had won the popular vote. Her margin would rise to near 3 million, making this the sixth in seven presidential elections that the GOP lost the popular vote. Trump had cracked the Democrats' "blue wall," but a shift of 70,000 votes would have meant a third straight GOP defeat.

Seven months into the Trump presidency, the promise of a new Republican era has receded. It is not because Nancy Pelosi and Chuck Schumer have proven to be such formidable adversaries, but because the GOP coalition has gone to battle stations—against itself.

Trump has taken to disparaging Senate Leader Mitch McConnell for failing to pass healthcare reform, though the decisive vote to kill the bill came from John McCain, who, for his own motives and to media cheers, torpedoed McConnell's effort and humiliated his party.

And as Allan Ryskind writes in The Washington Times, McConnell is responsible for Neil Gorsuch being on the Supreme Court. Had Mitch not kept his troops in line to block a Senate vote on President Obama's election-year nominee, Judge Merrick Garland, there would have been no vacancy for Trump to fill with Gorsuch.

McConnell is also indispensable to the Trump-GOP effort to repopulate federal appellate courts with disciples of Antonin Scalia. What purpose is served by the coach trashing his quarterback—in midseason?

Undeniably, Congress, which the voters empowered to repeal Obamacare, reduce tax rates and rebuild America's infrastructure, has thus far failed. And if Congress fails to produce on tax reform, the GOP will have some serious explaining to do in 2018.

As for Trump, while public approval of his performance is at record lows for a president in his first year, he has fulfilled some major commitments and has had some major achievements.

The GOP has lost a chance to strengthen itself by uniting behind Trump's populist, nationalist message.

He put Neil Gorsuch on the court. He pulled out of the Trans-Pacific Partnership and the Paris Climate Accord. He persuaded NATO allies to put up more for defense. He approved the Keystone XL and Dakota Access pipelines.

Border security is markedly better. The economic news has been excellent: record run-ups in the stock market, near full employment, growth approaching the 3% he promised. The coal industry has been liberated, and Trump is renegotiating NAFTA.

Yet the divisions over policy and the persona of the president are widening. Trump is disliked and disrespected by many in his own party on Capitol Hill, and much of the Republican media proudly despise him. And that form of bribery so familiar to D.C.—trashing one's president at the coaxing of the press, in return for plaudits to one's "courage" and "independence"—is openly practiced.

More critically, there are disputes over policy that again seem irreconcilable.

- Free-trade Republicans remain irredeemably hostile to economic nationalism, though countries like China continue to eat our lunch. In July, the U.S. trade deficit in goods was $65 billion, an annual rate of more than $780 billion.

- Interventionists continue to push for confrontation with Russia in the Baltic states and Ukraine, for more U.S. troops in Syria, Iraq, and Afghanistan, for scrapping the Iran nuclear deal.

- On social issues, the GOP seems split, with many willing to soft-peddle opposition to same-sex marriage and abortion and wait on a Supreme Court that ignited the culture wars to reverse course with new Trump appointees.

- Even Cabinet members and Trump aides have let the media know they sharply dissent from Trump's stand in the Charlottesville brawl. And the coming clash over statues of Confederate soldiers and statesmen is likely to split Northern and Southern Republicans.

- The white working class that provided Trump his margins in the Midwest wonders why affirmative action—reverse discrimination at their expense—has not been abolished.

- As for Speaker Paul Ryan and others committed to entitlement reform—paring back Social Security and Medicare benefits, while raising the contributions of the well-to-do to ensure the long-term solvency of the programs—they have not been heard from lately.

What seems apparent is that the historic opportunity the party had in January, to forge a coalition of conservatives and populists who might find common ground on immigration, trade, border security, spending, culture, and foreign policy, is slipping away. And the battle for the soul and future of the GOP, thought to have been suspended until 2020, is on once again. ★

Both are available from the AFP Bookstore.

Follow SPLC Lead in Regard to Taking Down Radicals

In regard to AFP's front-page article titled "Cop Sues Radicals" [in the 33 & 34 issue], I am sure there is a legal precedent for actions like this. All one need do is look what the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC) did to the White Aryan Resistance and the Aryan Nations for actions perpetrated by members of those groups. I am also sure that the SPLC went after a lot more than $75,000.

Let's stay tuned to this to see if the living officer wins a judgment against Black Lives Matter and if the surviving family members of the slain officers follow suit and destroy this terrorist organization as the SPLC has destroyed groups it targeted.

Soros Is Trump's Enemy

Trump is correct when he says that the average American gets nothing for the trillions of taxpayer dollars spent in the Middle East. We may get nothing, but Big Oil, led by ExxonMobil, has now been positioned to exploit huge Iraqi oil reserves, considered to be the second largest in the world behind only Saudi Arabia.

As per the authoritative Oil and Gas Journal (Oct. 13, 2011, p. 104), Big Oil will control some 82.8% of future Iraqi crude oil production—ExxonMobil (22.7%), BP (20.6%), Lukoil (20%), and Shell (19.5%). This is just another transfer of wealth from the Americans, who shed blood and paid treasure to open Iraq for exploitation by the West, to the international, super-rich plutocrats, who run the world.

Kudos for Vaccine Story

Your story about vaccines in the Jan. 17 & 23 issue in AFP is great. It is about time the truth was told. Vaccines are the main reason early 2016 headlines claimed we are the sickest nation in the world. Vaccines caused AIDS, which was spread all over Africa by more vaccines. Doctors did not cure polio. It declined when they stopped giving polio shots. Also, because of vaccines, instead of having flu outbreaks only once in 15 years, we now have an epidemic after everyone is scared into being vaccinated. The insane practice of putting disease into our bodies to prevent disease is causing a lifetime of disease for our children by forcing them to be vaccinated. Keeping the nerves free so the brain can keep the immune system strong is a better way.

Congress, Trump Declaring War on WikiLeaks

By Rep. Ron Paul

The Senate Intelligence Committee recently passed its Intelligence Authorization Act for 2018 that contains a chilling attack on the First Amendment. Section 623 of the act expresses the "sense of Congress" that WikiLeaks resembles a "non-state hostile intelligence service often abetted by state actors and should be treated as such." This language is designed to delegitimize WikiLeaks, encourage the federal government to spy on individuals working with WikiLeaks, and block access to WikiLeaks's website. This provision could even justify sending U.S. forces abroad to arrest WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange or other WikiLeaks personnel.

WikiLeaks critics claim that the organization's leaks harm U.S. national security. However, these critics are unable to provide a single specific example of WikiLeaks actions harming the American people. WikiLeaks does harm the reputations of government agencies and politicians, however. For example, earlier this year WikiLeaks released information on the CIA's hacking program. The leaks did not reveal any details on operations against foreign targets, but they did let the American people know how easy it is for the government to hack into their electronic devices.

For the last year, most of the news surrounding WikiLeaks has centered on its leak of emails showing how prominent Democrats worked to undermine Sen. Bernie Sanders's presidential campaign. In order to deflect attention from these revelations, Democrats, aided by their allies in the media and even some Republicans, promulgated a conspiracy theory blaming the leaks on Russian hackers working to defeat Hillary Clinton. Even though there is no evidence the Russians were behind the leaks, many in both parties are still peddling the "Putin did it" narrative. This aids an effort by the Deep State and its allies in Congress and the media to delegitimize last year's election, advance a new Cold War with Russia, and criminalize WikiLeaks.

If the government is successful in shutting down WikiLeaks by labeling it a "hostile intelligence service," it will use this tactic to silence other organizations and websites as well. The goal will be to create a climate of fear to ensure no one dares publish the revelations of a future Edward Snowden or Chelsea Manning.

Some have suggested that criticizing police brutality, the surveillance state, the Federal Reserve, or even federal spending aids "hostile foreign powers" by weakening the people's "trust in government." This line of reasoning could be used to silence, in the name of "national security," websites critical of the welfare-warfare state.

By labeling WikiLeaks a "hostile intelligence service" and thus legitimizing government action against the organization, the Senate Intelligence Authorization Act threatens the ability of whistleblowers to inform the public about government misdeeds. It also sets a precedent that could be used to limit other types of free speech.

Trump should make it clear he will veto any bill giving government new powers to silence organizations like WikiLeaks. If Trump supports the war on WikiLeaks, after candidate Trump proclaimed his love for WikiLeaks, it will be further proof that he has outsourced his presidency to the Deep State. ★ the best. The connections that you printed were excellent.

I mention the monuments in my county and inform you that Chattanooga, Tenn. has the most beautiful and they are Yankee.

My rebel blood does not boil over the Communist removal of Confederate monuments around the U.S. I refer to Karl Marx, who said destroy the past and recreate it as the devil introduced to heaven and the Democrats bring us today.

“Alt-Right” Infiltrated

Why should we support the so-called alt-right after that mess in Charlottesville, Va.? After reading AFP for years, there is one thing I have learned, and that is that the government has infiltrators in almost all groups. No doubt there were agents on both sides among the alt-right and the radical leftist Antifa, beating each other bloody. The violent brawl was aired over and over again on the evening news, so much so that regular Americans now turn up their nose at both sides.

The truth is, we should be trying to unite America by bringing in good black and Hispanic Americans to our message of freedom.

One last thing: The trouble the alt-right caused for conservatives should not be forgotten any time soon. They handed the government a reason to crack down on all of us, and, when it happens, it's going to be very bad for all of us.

Media Assault on Trump

How can the mainstream media continue to smear President Donald Trump, saying he supports neo-Nazis? Trump's daughter is married to a Jewish man, and his son has a Jewish wife.

No one went after President Barack Obama for failing to condemn Black Lives Matter and other terrorist organizations.

Why was Obama treated differently than Trump? I think we all know the answer to that.

No National Outcry

One of the questions presented in John Friend's article “No National Outcry for White Victim” (AFP, issue 31 & 32) was, “Does anyone care when a white is killed?”

Here in America, sadly, the answer is, no, at least not enough to organize in a constructive manner and stand up for our community in a way that produces positive results.

Most, if not all, of the organizations that currently do exist for white Americans seem to be either fighting for group interests of other groups, some of which even work actively against the group interests of our community, or are busy wasting time and energy lashing out at others, while failing to come up with and produce solutions to the challenges which our own community faces.

So where is our National Association for the Advancement of White Americans, our White American Legal Defense and Education Fund, or our National Council for White Americans?

My response to the question, “Does anyone care when a white person is killed?” is a call on all white Americans to make white lives matter and organize.

Jeff Sessions Disappointing

After reading about Sheriff Joe Arpaio's escapade with Judge Susan Bolton and phony Attorney General Jeff Sessions, I have to say that I am shocked by Sessions's failure to shut down the case brought by federal attorneys in Arizona. What a coward he turned out to be. Judge Bolton and Sessions should be disbarred for what they did to Arpaio.

The Real Battle

I am glad to see AMERICAN FREE PRESS takes a neutral tone in its reporting of race relations. The truth is that those Black Lives Matter people (the ones who aren't infiltrators and paid to show up at rallies) are not the enemy. They only believe what they are told by their "leaders," namely ones like Al Sharpton (who sits in a million-dollar mansion, I am sure), and Morris Dees, whose only goal is to grow richer off invented racial dissension.

And these Ku Klux Klanners in Charlottesville are about as phoney as a $3 bill, no doubt just more infiltrators. I mean, who shows up in those getups anymore? Those days are gone.

There are good people—Americans—on both sides who are just too brainwashed to see that whites are not the enemies of blacks and vice versa.

No, the real battle is not between the races but between those of us fighting to survive on a day-to-day basis and those who control the corrupt money system, the banks and the media.

We must all band together to defeat the “one-percenters” who grow richer every day as bogus “causes” are used to divide us. This monuments pull-down is one of those issues. They are publicizing it to agitate both sides.

If it's between Uncle Sam and
my favorite charity, guess who my IRA is going to . . .

60% of your IRA down the drain?
Your IRA could cost your heirs?

Did you know your retirement plan can be subject to multiple taxes that can reduce by as much as 60% of what you plan to leave your family?

There is a charitable alternative that can benefit both your family and AMERICAN FREE PRESS. Make AFP's partner in freedom, the non-profit FOUNDATION TO DEFEND THE FIRST AMENDMENT, the beneficiary of all or part of your retirement plan. Any remaining balance will come to FDFA & AFP tax-free. Then leave other assets like cash, stock or real estate that is not subject to so many taxes to your heirs.
