A PERSONAL MESSAGE FROM THE EXECUTIVE EDITOR

A Focus on Immigration in This Issue of AFP

In this week's issue, immigration is topping our news. We know this is a critical issue to most good, patriotic Americans. In fact, repeated surveys of members of the AFP Readership Council (AFPRC) have, time and time again, shown us that this is the most important issue to readers.

The AFPRC is a select group of dedicated supporters, who take an active interest in this organization. In addition to an annual subscription, for just $76 a year, AFPRC members get a quarterly newsletter, "The Council Courier," that provides detailed information about AFP, our staff, and new books, DVDs, and other projects that are in the works.

In multiple polls, AFPRC members have told us that immigration is the most pressing matter facing this country. As readers will see this week, President Donald Trump has tried to get a grip on the chaotic state of immigration left behind by the Obama, Bush, and Clinton administrations wherein anyone can get into the country by simply sneaking across the border. Once here, rogue cities and states coddle these criminals. Calling themselves "sanctuary" cities and states, officials order their law enforcement agents to ignore U.S. laws and allow illegal aliens to remain—even when they break U.S. criminal laws while hiding out in the U.S. It is a well-established fact that tens of thousands of illegal aliens have committed crimes in the U.S. but are still allowed to stay here as part of the absurd policy practiced for nearly three decades by those who have been elected by U.S. taxpayers to follow the law.

In 2015 alone, according to the federal Immigration and Customs Enforcement agency's own statistics, the agency chose not to deport but release 19,723 criminal illegal immigrants, including 208 convicted of murder, over 900 convicted of sex crimes, and 12,307 convicted of drunk driving. Of course, this breaks U.S. federal law, which specifically states that anyone in the U.S. illegally should be immediately detained and deported back to his or her home country.

What kind of message does this send? We all know what happens if one of us regular, law-abiding, taxpaying Americans breaks the law by not paying our taxes, or driving without a license, or protesting unfair grazing rules in the Southwest U.S. Clearly, the message we are getting loud and clear is that laws are only meant for us rabble and are not for those in the country illegally—or even for the highly paid bureaucrats, who choose what laws they should and should not enforce.

A MESSAGE FOR BLACKS & WHITES

Also in this issue we have a refreshingly politically incorrect interview with an outspoken and charismatic Christian pastor—the Rev. David Manning of Harlem, or "Atlah," as he calls it. Rev. Manning may or may not be familiar to AFP readers, but the man pulls no punches in his critique of race relations in America today and black and white leadership.

A fierce critic of President Barack Obama, Manning was a leader of the "birther movement," which sought to prove that the previous president was not actually born on American soil. His negative statements about this "Long-Legged Mac Daddy," as he refers to Obama, are unique in many ways, coming from an African-American. Rev. Manning has thus received death threats and has been attacked by a host of detractors for speaking his honest opinion about race, the situation in Chicago, Obama, Donald Trump, religion and more.

You'll like much of what he has to say, but you might also be appalled by some of his utterances. But that, my friends, is the essence of free speech in America. Manning is a gutsy and intelligent man, and we'd like to hear what you think about what he has to say. See page 29.

TWO-VOLUME PIPER SET IS HERE

On a brighter note, as readers will see in this week's issue, we're happy to announce that AFP's production team has come through once again and is ahead of schedule on our latest publishing project. We are happy to announce that, as we go to press, Michael Collins Piper's celebrated book on the JFK assassination, Final Judgment, is at the printer and will be available for purchase in a new two-volume 2017 commemorative edition by the time you are reading this "Personal from the Editor."

You can learn more about the book in Dr. Kevin Barrett's column in this edition, and find a special deal we're offering that includes some of Mike's other works on pages 16-17.

News You May Have Missed

Support for Visa Ban

A Rasmussen Reports poll conducted in late January found that 57% of likely U.S. voters favor a temporary ban on refugees from Syria, Iraq, Iran, Libya, Somalia, Sudan, and Yemen until the federal government ensures its ability to screen out potential terrorists from being granted entry. Only 33% are opposed, while 10% are undecided. How anyone could be opposed to properly vetting immigrants coming into our nation is beyond us.

'Unilateral' Settlements

In a stunning move, President Donald Trump warned Israel against new settlement announcements, reported website "Smoloko." From Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz: "Trump's White House reportedly warned Israel against unilateral announcements of new settlements, saying they 'undermine' the new administration's desire to reach a peace deal along the lines of a two-state solution. If true, the statement could signal a major disappointment for . . . Benjamin Netanyahu's government"—and a breath of fresh air for America-first patriots. But is it only fine words? We'll be watching for something more in the nature of actions.

Praise for Travel Moratorium

Foreign Minister for the United Arab Emirates Sheikh Abdullah bin Zayed Al Nahyan recently came out in favor of the U.S. presidential moratorium on travel from seven terrorism-prone Mideast nations. "The United States," he said, "has taken a decision that is within the American sovereign decision." He said he agrees with Trump administration statements that the action "is not directed at a certain religion."

Censorship

On Feb. 7, a representative from Internet giant Google's advertising department informed AMERICAN FREE PRESS that they were terminating advertising on the AFP website. For several years now, AFP had been using Google ads to bring in extra revenue to fund our electronic operations. However, citing unspecified content on AFP's site "that incites hatred or promotes violence against individuals or groups based on race or ethnic origin, religion, disability, gender, age, veteran status, or sexual orientation/gender identity," Google abruptly claimed AFP had "violated its terms of service." Ironically, Google concluded its message to AFP with, "Google believes strongly in the freedom of expression." We would add that this only applies when we agree with liberal Internet corporations.

Stop the Brainwashing

Rep. Thomas Massie (R-Ky.) has introduced legislation to abolish the Department of Education by Dec. 31, 2018. In a Feb. 7 statement Massie said, "Neither Congress nor the president, through his appointees, has the constitutional authority to dictate how and what our children must learn. . . . Unelected bureaucrats in Washington, D.C. should not be in charge of our children's intellectual and moral development. . . . States and local communities are best positioned to shape curricula that meet the needs of their students. Schools should be accountable."

REP. THOMAS MASSIE

States should decide school curricula.

DEFENSE SECRETARY JAMES MATTIS

Not such a mad dog, after all.

Move Toward Peace

America has no national interest at stake in the South China Sea, where Obama nearly took us to war with China, so it was good news when Trump officials backed away from going to war with nuclear-armed Red China over the tiny islets in that sea. Defense Secretary James "Mad Dog" Mattis was not conciliatory but was praised recently by the Foreign Ministry of China for emphasizing the desirability of a diplomatic approach over a military solution to disputes over the South China Sea.

Fake Global Warming

A prominent whistleblower told the UK Daily Mail that the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) rushed a key study that claimed the Earth was warming much faster than expected in order to influence a major global climate negotiation. Dr. John Bates, the former top scientist at the National Climatic Data Center in Asheville, N.C., said the 2015 study was meant "to discredit the notion of a global warming hiatus and rush[ed] to time the publication of the paper to influence national and international deliberations on climate policy." Understand, by definition, the Earth is currently in an interglacial period—the Holocene—of the ice age that began at the start of the Pleistocene epoch, 2.6 million years ago. We are, however, due for a new ice age any "moment" now, according to statistics. The average interglacial period lasts about 11,500 years. There are then periods dominated by glacial advances that usually last about 100,000 years. Since our current interglacial period has lasted 12,000 years, some are predicting it's time for the glaciers to advance upon us again. So, would you rather have humans of the future living on man-made islands in a temperate climate or suffering through sub-zero temperatures? Take your pick.

Open Your Eyes, Sweden

In Sweden, an immigrant from Syria was recently sentenced to only two months in jail and a $2,800 fine after he was found guilty of raping a 13-year-old girl.

Riot Time

The Berkeley, Calif. campus that "incubated" the free-speech ideals of the 1960s dissolved in riots Feb. 1. The cross-dressing "conservative" Milo Yiannopoulos had been invited by Berkeley College Republicans to speak on campus that day, although more than 100 of the faculty signed letters of protest, urging the college to cancel his visit. The university ruled that the GOP students had a right to host the controversial speaker, but when Yiannopoulos came to the campus, 1,500 protesters showed up, claiming they were there to demonstrate peacefully. The protest soon turned violent, as some 150 communist terrorists clad in black and wearing masks, wielding clubs, shields, and Molotov cocktails, destroyed property, physically assaulted people, and looted local stores in their bid to deny Yiannopoulos the right to speak.

End Immigration

A poll carried out by the Royal Institute of International Affairs think tank in Europe asked 10,000 Europeans in 10 different countries if they agreed with the following statement: "All further migration from mainly Muslim countries should be stopped." Amazingly, 55% answered yes, 25% said they don't know, and just 20% said they disagreed with it.

Israel Caught Red-Handed in UK

• Israeli lobbyist busted by staffer for plotting to destroy critics of Zionist policy

How low can they go? An official with the Israeli embassy in England was recently outed by Arab media after he was caught soliciting the help of a staffer with a high-ranking member of Parliament to smear another PM who had a history of protesting Israel's illegal land thefts.

By Dave Gahary

A lot has been written over the years about the so-called Jewish—and since 1948 Israeli—plot to dominate the world's affairs by infiltrating the host countries in which they reside, a claim immediately branded as an “anti-Semitic canard” by not just Jewish organizations like the Anti-Defamation League (ADL), but also by the elite media, which has a clear pro-Israel bias. Now, however, a six-month undercover investigation conducted by Qatar's state-funded broadcaster al Jazeera has provided video proof that rather than a canard—a groundless rumor or belief—the attempt to influence countries, in this case Great Britain, is a clear conspiracy, directed by the Israeli government, which included plotting to destroy the careers of senior UK politicians, especially those considered “anti-settlement.”

The undercover reporter, whom al Jazeera referred to as “Robin,” met regularly with members of Britain's lobby network, which has a close relationship with the Israeli government via their embassy in London.

“Robin posed as a graduate activist with strong sympathies towards Israel who was eager to help combat the Boycott, Divestment, and Sanctions movement prominent in Britain,” reported al Jazeera.

One of those targeted by Israel was Sir Alan James Carter Duncan, the British Conservative Party member of Parliament, who currently serves as minister of state for Europe and the Americas.

During a secret filming at a French restaurant in London, Shai Masot, the then-senior political officer at the Israeli embassy, asked the then-chief of staff to the deputy chairman of the ruling Conservative Party, Maria Strizzolo, “Can I give you some MPs that I would suggest you take down?”

Strizzolo, “a British civil servant active with the Conservative Friends of Israel (CFI),” replied, “[I]f you look hard enough I'm sure that there is something that they're trying to hide.”

According to its website, CFI, a British parliamentary group affiliated with the Conservative Party, “is dedicated to strengthening business, cultural,

SHAI MASOT

ALAN DUNCAN

Masot, an enigmatic employee of the Israeli embassy in London, was caught on film by an undercover employee of an Arabic news outlet plotting to ruin the careers of any government officials who would dare speak out against Israel's repressive policies in Palestine. One of those targeted was Member of Parliament Alan James Carter Duncan.

and political ties between the UK and Israel” and seeks to strengthen ties between the party and Israel's Likud Party. “Yeah, I have some MPs,” Masot brazenly stated, looking at Robin. “[Strizzolo] knows which MPs I want to take down,” referring to Duncan. Strizzolo hinted that “a little scandal” could possibly ruin Duncan's career.

In 2014, Duncan said that, while he supports Israel's right to exist, he believes Israeli settlements on occupied Palestinian land represent an “ever-deepening stain on the face of the globe,” and he equated the longest military occupation in world history to apartheid.

Although Masot's exact role at the Israeli embassy is shrouded, he claims to be a former Israeli navy officer and an employee of the Israeli Defense Ministry. “His embassy business card describes him as a senior political officer, but the embassy says he is not a diplomat,” reports the UK's Guardian.

An online profile states that his work includes “founding several political support groups in the UK to maximize the Israeli ‘firewall,’” and that he helps secure “adjustments to legislation” in the UK.

Incredibly, Strizzolo revealed to Robin “that she had a strategy of manipulation to ensure Israel remains at the top of the UK's foreign policy agenda,” which provides insight into how public policy is influenced by, in this case, pro-Israel pressure groups.

“If at least you can get a small group of MPs that you know you can always rely on, when there is something coming to Parliament and you know you brief them, you say: ‘You don't have to do anything, we are going to give you the speech, we are going to give you all the information, we are going to do everything for you.’”

Strizzolo also advised trying to infiltrate a live-televised weekly session—called the “Prime Minister's Questions” (PMQ)—wherein the country's leader answers MP questions.

“If they already have the question to table for PMQ, it's harder to say: ‘No, no, no, I won't do it,’” al Jazeera revealed.

She then went on to boast about how she “once made an immediate impact on the national debate.”

While in Israel with the CFI in 2014, she persuaded her former boss to question the prime minister in public about three missing teenagers thought to be kidnapped and murdered. Her boss took the request and called on then-Prime Minister David Cameron to support Israel and do “everything possible to take out Hamas terrorist networks.” Cameron promised his country would “stand by Israel.”

After news of al Jazeera's Investigative Unit's series “The Lobby” was published by international media, an Israeli embassy spokesman in London tweeted a message saying that Masot would be “ending his term shortly,” adding that Mark Regev, ambassador of Israel to the UK, had apologized to Duncan “and made clear that the embassy considered the remarks to be unacceptable.”

Immediately following the airing of “The Lobby,” it was confirmed that Masot was forced to resign. It was also revealed by The Guardian that Masot had “set up a number of political organizations in the UK that operated as though entirely independent,” for the purpose of benefitting Israel. Strizzolo has since resigned from her post as well.

Although the Israeli ambassador to the UK apologized and claimed “the British government said it considered the matter closed,” the Scottish National Party's foreign affairs spokesman said this position was not acceptable. “I would expect the UK government to fully investigate this matter so that we can be confident our elected officials are free to carry out their jobs to the best of their ability and without fear of having their reputation smeared by embassy officials who do not agree with their views,” said Alex Salmond, apparently unafraid of Israel's heavy hand in UK politics.

The Guardian quoted a former minister in Cameron's government who wrote anonymously online, “British foreign policy is in hock to Israeli influence at the heart of our politics, and those in authority have ignored what is going on. For years the CFI and LFI [Labour Friends of Israel] have worked with—even for—the Israeli embassy to promote Israeli policy and thwart UK government policy and the actions of ministers who try to defend Palestinian rights.” ★

Baltimore Firm Reveals How to Earn “Work-Free” Retirement Income

Social Security Deficits Grow on Top of Federal Budget Deficits

Projected Federal Deficits, in Billions of Dollars

As U.S. Social Security dwindles, an estimated 31,527 Americans have discovered how to legally piggyback “Canadian Social Security”

Zach Scheidt is the chief-editor of three financial advisories: Lifetime Income Report, Contract Income Report and Income on Demand. Zach's work has appeared in Seeking Alpha, Motley Fool, and The Wall Street Journal. Zach managed a twenty-million dollar hedge fund before turning his attention to helping the American consumer make more money.

By Scott Bardelli, Agora Financial

The truth about “Canadian Social Security”

Fed up with a Social Security system teetering on the verge of bankruptcy... American seniors have begun looking to our friendly northern neighbors to help fund their retirement needs.

An initial survey — which was performed at one of the nation's largest independent financial research firms — confirmed back in April 2015 that dozens of U.S. citizens have managed to successfully (and legally) piggyback Canada's national “old-age” retirement plan.

According to Zachary Scheidt — the senior research analyst who headed up the survey — these savvy Americans are now collecting “work-free” income checks between $400–4,700 as a result.

For example, Sara Yaeger — a secretary from Texas — is collecting $2,900 per month... and Carol Alderman, a widow with two children, averages more than $1,200 in income.

Today, the number of Americans who have discovered how to piggyback “Canadian Social Security” has swelled to over 31,527 folks in all 50 states... a number that continues to grow steadily.

So the big question is what is “Canadian Social Security”? And why is it so alluring to American seniors?

Well, as pointed out in Zachary Scheidt's 25-page summary...

The Canada Pension Plan (as it's officially known) first began back in 1965 and was designed to work just like regular U.S. Social Security.

It was a “pay as you go” system... run by government bureaucrats and funded almost entirely through payroll taxes.

But by 1996, the Canadians realized the whole system was unsustainable... and the entire plan would slowly run dry and be completely bankrupt by 2015.

New and improved “Canadian Social Security” plan doubles in 7 years

The Canadian federal government took bold steps to fix the funding shortfall.

Just one year later — in 1997 — NEW legislation was passed replacing the old “pay as you go” system with something revolutionary...

Almost immediately, the new and improved Canada Pension Plan took off like gangbusters.

The program started with cash reserves of around $36 billion

By 2004, the program had a pool of resources totaling around $77 billion.

Today, that number has grown over $219 billion. That's more than SIX-FOLD increase.

And this trend isn't expected to slow down anytime soon. In fact, from the projections I've seen, funding for the Canada Pension Plan is expected to reach $3 billion by 2020... $518 billion by 2030 and over $800 billion by 2040.

In other words, the money should continue to grow and grow... for decades to come.

The chart below is showing the future projections for the plan...

Now compare that with the projections for U.S. Social Security... which is expected to run increasing deficits through get worse with each passing year.

History and Projections of the Canadian Pension Plan Fund

It's quite a difference! (See chart at beginning of article)

How are you able to piggyback "Canadian Social Security"?

You see, the same landmark legislation that was introduced in 1997 also created a loophole that allows American seniors backdoor access.

According to the details in Zachary Scheidt's 25-page letter... you don't need to live or work in or even visit Canada to begin earning income by piggybacking the program.

And you can collect thousands in additional retirement income without affecting your U.S. Social Security benefits.

One of the U.S. seniors profiled in the survey is a former high school teacher from Baltimore named Anne Monahan.

Anne began piggybacking "Canadian Social Security" almost 20 years ago.

According to her tax returns (which she included in the study), she's been LEGALLY earning thousands of dollars in "benefits" for nearly two decades.

Anne has never lived or worked in or even visited Canada before... and she collects this money ON TOP of her U.S. Social Security benefits.

This opportunity is available to just about anyone. There are no restrictions based on age, income or job status.

Zachary Scheidt has logged close to 900 man hours reading countless books, obscure newspaper articles and business publications... everything he could get his hands on. Most importantly he obtained the necessary forms and documents required for you to set up the type of account that's needed to piggyback "Canadian Social Security".

Zachary took everything he uncovered during his investigation and built a simple-to-use website that will show you EXACTLY how to piggyback the Canada Pension Plan. It's www.PiggybackRetirement.com

Immigrants Will Overwhelm America

• Whether legal or illegal, the U.S. cannot handle millions more immigrants

By Frosty Wooldridge

Every morning, noon, and night, you hear the weather report forecast in your specific area. Meteorologists warn you of approaching tornados, rainsqualls, or blizzards. They warn you of breezes or high winds. You know the temperatures in order to dress correctly or not to drive that day. Because of those forecasts, you make daily choices with knowledge and understanding. You protect yourself and your family.

Do you ever notice the evening news with cars piled up in 20-car crashes because they drove into a blinding snow storm? What about a cluster of 18-wheelers that drove into a fog bank only to create multiple deaths? As you look at the traffic standing still in your city, why did all those people drive their cars into such a gridlocked mess?

As you sit there watching the evening news, you wonder, “Why did so many people make such stupid choices? Why did they drive into a blinding snow storm? Why didn’t they pull over and park? Why didn’t they stay home?”

But what about your future, the future of your community, the future of your state, and ultimately, the future of your country—if you don’t get to see a forecast about a gathering storm across America in the form of endless immigration?

If immigration into the United States continues at the pace we are experiencing now, our nation will be overwhelmed. All facets of life could be affected: healthcare, infrastructure, the economy, food supplies, etc.

“As a forecaster, I can tell you this: Once this immigration storm hits, no one escapes its consequences.”

means New York City jumps from 8.3 million to 16.6 million, Los Angeles increases from 11 million to 22 million, Chicago from 5 million to 10 million, and on down the line.

Florida is expected to jump from 18 million to 36 million. Texas increases from 26 million to 36 million. California accelerates from 38 million to 58 million.

How do you water, feed, warm, transport, house, employ in an increasingly robotic world, and provide resources for in excess of another 154.5 million people?

With all the problems we face today—47 million Americans subsisting on food stamps, 8.7 million unemployed, our inner cities rotting into chaos, our air pollution rates exploding off the charts, our gridlock traffic immobilizing our cities, our water pollution in places like Flint, Mich. and dozens of other U.S. cities—how in the living daylights will we survive the first part of this storm?

My long-time colleague, Dr. Albert Bartlett, said, “Can you think of any problem in any area of human endeavor on any scale from microscopic to global, whose long-term solution is in any demonstrable way aided, assisted or advanced by further increases of population, locally, nationally or globally?” (Bartlett manages “AlBartlett.org,” which is his own website.)

The answer: Nothing will get better. Everything will get worse. No one will be immune. Everyone will suffer.

500,000 illegal aliens violate our borders annually. If you multiply 33 years times 500,000 people, that adds another 16.5 million people.

IMMIGRATION STORM

While no one can change the weather, each of us can change the future of our country by stopping the “immigration tsunami” bearing down on our 50 states.

As a forecaster, I can tell you this: Once this immigration storm hits, no one escapes its consequences.

The 1965 Immigration Reform Act drives this “perfect storm” bearing down on the U.S. At that time, Congress increased legal immigration to 1.2 million annually. That single act added 100 million people to the U.S. in 40 years. If allowed to continue, it will add 138 million more people within 33 years. We stand 28 million into that 138 million in 2017.

According to the Pew Research Center, Num-bersUSA.org, the U.S. Census Bureau, and the Fogel/Martin Population Projections, legal immigration is expected to jump the U.S. population by 100 million people, net gain, by 2045 or sooner. That includes immigrants, their births, and their chain-migrated relatives. The other 38 million will be U.S. births by U.S. mothers at two children per woman on average. The baseline population was 300 million in 2006.

Dr. Steven Camarota of the Center for Immigration Studies, tells us that 500,000 illegal aliens violate our borders annually. If you multiply 33 years times 500,000 people, that adds another 16.5 million people. That would take us from the projected 438 million to 454.5 million in 2050. You can find more from the Center for Immigration Studies at “CIS.org.”

That equates to doubling the size of our 40 most populated cities within the United States. This

Corporate Control, Abuse of Water

• Lead poisoning, fracking, corporatocracy destroying our vital water supplies

By Ronald L. Ray

The days of low-cost, clean, safe drinking water are numbered—or gone. Years of upwardly spiraling water prices, shrinking fresh water supplies, increasing pollution, and even bloody wars for life's greatest physical necessity have arrived. The major catastrophe of lead poisoning of water in Flint, Mich. and its ongoing consequences are only the barest fragment of a monstrous problem, which, if it is not dealt with properly very soon, threatens the lives of most Americans and most people the world over.

In January 2016, then-President Barack Obama declared a state of emergency in Flint due to the highly toxic lead poisoning which was found to exist in that city's water supply. The crisis resulted from bad decision-making at all levels—local, state, and federal—and from repeated failures to address warnings. Although Flint has reduced lead levels significantly by returning to its previous Detroit water supply, the infrastructural and health problems caused by the use of Flint River water will continue for years.

General Motors succeeded in obtaining clean water to build automobiles through its wealth and influence, but the soonest residents may be able to use their own water again is 2019, if the city's lead pipes can be replaced by then. The expensive bottled water they must now use may only substitute one set of potential health problems for another.

The problem of lead-poisoned water is not unique to Flint, however. A 2016 investigation by Reuters found “nearly 3,000 areas [in the U.S.] with recently recorded lead poisoning rates at least double those in Flint during the peak of that city's contamination crisis. And more than 1,100 of these communities had a rate of elevated [lead in children's] blood tests at least four times higher.”

To be fair, many of those communities experience lead poisoning from other sources, including house paint and industrial waste—which is not to excuse it—but industrial waste also often leaches into the water supply through the ground. And to give an idea of the extent of America's water problems, it has been estimated that replacement of aging lead pipes installed in countless localities 70 years ago or more will cost over $1 trillion during the next 25 years.

Far from solving such issues, the New World Order bureaucrats who promote Agenda 21 and similar “sustainability” programs will exacerbate the troubles, if they succeed in herding ever more people into increasingly crowded cities, away from a traditional agrarian lifestyle.

Ogallala Aquifer and Keystone Pipeline

This U.S. Geological Survey map shows the Ogallala Aquifer (center, circled). It holds as much water as Lake Huron (circled, top). BLUE: Unconsolidated sand and gravel aquifers near the land surface. YELLOW: Semiconsolidated sand and gravel aquifers. GRAY: Sand and gravel aquifers of alluvial and glacial origin. RED: Projected Keystone XL routes.

Americans' water is further threatened in some places by other heavy metals, run-off of highly toxic agricultural fertilizers and pesticides, fracking for oil and gas—and greedy multinational corporations. That is in addition to the more than a dozen chemicals used to “treat” water to make it “safe” for human consumption.

Given President Donald Trump's efforts to resurrect the misbegotten Keystone XL pipeline, the transcontinental project raises significantly the danger from pipeline leaks of tar sands and chemicals to one of the largest underground water sources in the world, the Ogallala Aquifer. That aquifer lies beneath parts of eight High Plains states and provides over 80% of drinking water to the region's inhabitants, along with 30% of the farm irrigation water used throughout the U.S.

The Ogallala Aquifer is likewise in danger from fracking waste, as AFP reported in March 2015, and from oil billionaire T. Boone Pickens, who, from his Texas ranch, gradually is pumping the aquifer dry. While he claims it is only “excess” water, wells as far away as Kansas have experienced significant level drops due in part to Pickens's avarice. He believes people will be “irresponsible” with free water, so he bottles or transports it elsewhere to sell for his own massive profits.

Pickens is the largest “owner” of water in the country—but should life's greatest physical necessity be private property? Or should governments protect the common man from water profiteers and administer the provision of water as a public trust, not a commodity?

Pickens is not alone, however, in the privatization of the world's water supply. Three companies control the vast majority of the 3% of Earth's water—including in the U.S.—that is sweet, not salty: Suez, Veolia, and RWE Thames. They are joined by General Electric, Procter & Gamble, and Dow Chemical, among others.

Coca-Cola controls much of Mexico's and Africa's water—where Coke is sold for less than Dasani water. Nestlé Waters is drying up the Great Lakes—in an end-around of longstanding U.S. Supreme Court case law—by pumping out Michigan aquifers and rivers to sell under the Ice Mountain label. Before many years, the lakes could look like the mud puddle formerly known as the Aral Sea in Eurasia.

Water is now traded on the stock market, and the commoditization process is exacerbated by irresponsible “free trade” policies, which create false “needs” to export and import goods—instead of producing them close to home—so that a ruthless few can control and profit from control of distribution.

If the Earth is not to become a desert, stewardship of water resources must again become something we all do, primarily at the local level. We must leave the cities and return to life from the land. We must respect, not exploit, the gifts God has given us. ★

helps protect your eyes against

'Man-made' Blue Light

—a new environmental threat—
as well as Dry Eye Syndrome and it also provides support for the macula

INTERNAL SUNGLASSES
EYES!

By 2020, 90% of all “commercial lighting” will be man-made “blue light”. And, we stare more at computer monitors, smart phones and tablets, as well as “high tech” television which contain man-made blue light rays than ever.

The consequences of repeated exposure to high energy blue light are immediate: 1. Photo-cellular damage in as little as 3 hours! 2. Damage to the photoreceptor layer in as little as 18 hours! 3. Retinal damage and cell death in as little as 9 days!

Does this mean that a major eye health crisis will hit us in 10-20 years? We don't know but we're not taking any chances. Eye Nourish Plus is the most advanced eye support formula on the market for three key reasons:

First, Eye Nourish Plus has vital macular carotenoids—lutein, zeaxanthin and meso-zeaxanthin—which are the only carotenoids found in the eye that provide us with protection—they are our own internal sunglasses!

Jeffrey Anshel, OD, FAAO, President Ocular Nutrition Society said:

“Lutein and the zeaxanthin isomers (RR-zeaxanthin and meso-zeaxanthin), collectively referred to as macular pigment, individually and in combination play a critical role in ocular health. Because of the presence and placement of each of these carotenoids in the eye tissue, we should not underplay the importance of any one of these three macular pigments.”

You need all three carotenoids for optimal macular health:

- Lutein is the dominant carotenoid in the pe-

The amazing Maqui Berry

ripheral macula;

- Zeaxanthin (RR-zeaxanthin) is in the mid-peripheral macula; and

- Meso-zeaxanthin is at the center of the macula.

Eye Nourish Plus has all three fractions! Clinical studies with our ingredients demonstrate lutein, zeaxanthin and meso-zeaxanthin not only help eye health, they do it fast—usually 6-8 weeks versus 4-6 months.

Second, Eye Nourish Plus also has MaquiBright®, an extract from Peruvian maqui berries which in pre-clinical studies shows great promise for helping dry eye syndrome. Can you moisten eyes without eye drops? Yes, you can, without drops.

Clinical investigations with MaquiBright® demonstrate a profound restoration of natural tear-fluid production from tear glands, causing a dramatic reduction of dry eye-related symptoms because MaquiBright® is absorbed into lachrymal gland cells which oxidative stress inside cells and naturally restore tear fluid generation.

Increased tear production was achieved with 30 mg of MaquiBright® (two soft gels of Eye Nourish Plus) and more so with 60 mg (four soft gels of Eye Nourish Plus) within 30 and 60 days in clinical trials.

Third, Eye Nourish Plus' ingredients are formulated in organic coconut oil and medium chain triglycerides. Our organic coconut oil is made by a chilled centrifuge process, using only the “core” of carefully selected coconuts; and our medium chain triglycerides, too, are made as purely as possible, without chemical contaminants.

EYE NOURISH PLUS

Each bottle of Carotec's Eye Nourish Plus has 60 soft gels. Two soft gels a day provide: 20 mg lutein derived from marigold, 7 mg zeaxanthin and 30 mg MaquiBright® derived from the amazing maqui berry.

Rejection of EO on Immigration by Fed Court Is President Donald Trump's First Big Challenge

The globalists and the mainstream media are in a tizzy over President Donald Trump's new executive order that halts U.S. immigration for two to three months while officials work on ways to vet potential terrorists. While they claim his policies are un-American, to the man-in-the-street, they look like they'd rather have Paris-style killings than stop a future act of terrorism in the U.S.

By Patrick J. Buchanan

That hysterical reaction to the travel ban announced on Jan. 27 is a portent of what is to come if President Donald Trump carries out the mandate given to him by those who elected him.

The travel ban bars refugees for 120 days. From Syria, refugees are banned indefinitely. And a 90-day ban has been imposed on travel here from Iraq, Syria, Iran, Libya, Sudan, Somalia, and Yemen.

Was that weekend-long primal scream really justified? As of early February, shortly before a judge put a stop to the program, no one was being detained at a U.S. airport.

Yet the shrieking had not stopped. All five sto-

The media outcry against President Trump's alleged "Muslim ban" is way out of proportion to the reality of the order. The six largest Muslim nations in the world are not even named, yet the controlled media continues to stoke the fires of outrage against this common-sense attempt to prevent "another Paris."

ries on page one of the Jan. 30 edition of The Washington Post were about the abomination. The New York Times's editorial, "Trashing American Ideals and Security," called it bigoted, cowardly, xenophobic, Islamophobic, un-American, unrighteous.

This ban, went the weekend wail, is the "Muslim ban" of the Trump campaign. But how so, when not one of the six largest Muslim countries—Indonesia, India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Egypt, Turkey—was on the list? Missing also were three dozen other Muslim countries.

Of the seven countries facing a 90-day ban, three are U.S.-designated state sponsors of terror, and the other four are war zones. Clearly, this is about homeland security, not religious discrimination.

The criterion for being included in the travel ban appears to be that these places do not have adequate vetting systems in place.

Yet there are lessons for the Trump White House in the media-stoked panic and outrage at the end of his first week in office.

First, Steve Bannon's observation that the media are "the opposition party," is obviously on target. While Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-N.Y.) was crying on camera that the ban was "un-American," the media were into the more serious business of stampeding and driving the protesters.

A second lesson is one every White House learns. Before a major decision is announced, if possible, get everyone's input and everyone on board to provide what Pat Moynihan called the "second and third echelons of advocacy." Those left out tend to leak.

A third lesson Trump should learn is that the establishment he routed and the city he humiliated are out to break him as they broke LBJ on Vietnam, Nixon on Watergate, and almost broke Reagan on the Iran-Contra affair.

FACT vs. FICTION: Bohemian Grove: Cult of Conspiracy

They secretly meet for 17 days each July in a remote "sacred grove" of ancient redwood trees in the deep forests surrounding San Francisco.

Some 1,500 in number, their membership roll is kept secret, but includes the super-rich, blood dynasty member families of the Illuminati, heavy-hitting corporate chieftains and high government officials. Mingling among them are a number of Hollywood movie stars, Broadway producers, famous entertainers, musicians, authors, painters, and poets. Great statesmen and—so we're told—gentlemen. The names you'll recognize: Former U.S. Presidents William Howard Taft, Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover, Dwight Eisenhower, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan, George H.W. Bush, and George W. Bush, former FBI and CIA directors; former secretaries of State, Henry Kissinger; international bankers; heads of big oil companies, and corporate CEOs frolic in the redwoods. Some of the most famous creative people in history—Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Jack London, Will Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, and Art Linkletter—all "let their hair down" here. There are stories . . . some of them too strange to believe. Tales of global leaders plotting the world's destiny there in secret "war rooms," hand-picking presidents and future leaders from the Bohemian Grove. Reports of occult rituals being conducted by these same powerful men, clad only in hooded red, black, and white robes, offering an effigy of a human being to be sacrificed by fire to a towering 45-foot stone owl god. Sometimes, they discard the robes, don women's clothing and parade around onstage in theatrical productions or—if the spirit so moves them—they wear no clothes! But is any of it true? This book proposes to answer many of the most frequently asked questions about Bohemian Grove, investigate the rumors, fully document what is known to be true, and destroy a few misconceptions.

Now the truth can finally be revealed. Mike Hanson is a first-hand eyewitness who has been inside the Bohemian Grove. In the summer of 2000, Mike secretly "infiltrated" the grove. He filmed several hours of footage, including the entire "Cremation of Care" ritual, which is published in full here for the first time. He peers behind the moss-covered limbs and trunks of ancient, gnarled trees to discover what really goes on at Bohemian Grove. Bohemian Grove: Cult of Conspiracy promises to expose the secrets of the redwoods. Foreword by Texe Marrs.

While the establishment may no longer be capable of inspiring and leading the nation, so detested is it, it has not lost its appetite or its ability to break and bring down presidents.

And Trump is vulnerable, not only because he is an envied outsider who seized the highest prize politics has on offer, but because his agenda would cancel out that of the elites.

They believe in open borders, free trade, globalization. Trump believes in securing the southern border, bringing U.S. industry home, economic nationalism, "America First."

They want endless immigration from the Third World to remake America into the polyglot "universal nation" of Ben Wattenberg's utopian vision. Trump's followers want back the America they knew.

Our foreign policy elites see democratization as a vocation and an autocratic Russia as an implacable enemy. Trump instead sees Moscow as a potential ally against real enemies like al Qaeda and ISIS.

There is another reason for the reflexive howl at Trump's travel ban. The establishment views it, probably correctly, as the first move toward a new immigration policy, built on pre-1965 foundations, and rooted in a preference for Western-Christian immigrants first.

When the Times rages that "American ideals" or "traditional American values" are under attack by Trump, what they really mean is that their ideology and agenda are threatened by Trump.

We are headed for a series of collisions and crises, and what has happened in Europe will likely happen here. As the Third World invasion and growing Islamization of the Old Continent—which the EU has proven unable to stop—has discredited centrist parties and continuously fed a populist-nationalist uprising there, so may it here also.

And Trump not only appears to have no desire to yield to his enemies in politics and the media, he has no choice, as he is now the personification of a surging Middle American counterrevolution.

Undeniably, there are great numbers of Americans who agree with the libels the Times showered on Trump and, by extension, his backers whom Hillary Clinton designated "the racist, sexist, homophobic, xenophobic, Islamophobic . . . deplorables."

But by whatever slurs they are called, Middle Americans seem prepared to fight. And history shows that such people do not calmly accept the loss of what is most precious to them—the country they grew up in, the country they love.

They have turned to Trump to lead them. Why should he not, having been raised up by them, and knowing in his own heart what the establishment and the media think of him and would do to him?

A Dedication to Health & Human Rights

American Red Cross Founder CLARA BARTON said to her male counterparts: “We nursed you back to health and now we need your help!” But unfortunately some of her counterparts made sure help never came . . . even after thousands of women like my grandmother (Google: Nursing Sisters Port Dover) and Clara Barton went to Rochester, N.Y. and descended on the home of woman suffragist SUSAN B. ANTHONY (Clara Barton’s 6th cousin) to offer their support for a woman’s right to vote! What follows is a brief history of my family’s efforts to make lives better for men and women across the globe . . .

By John Ellis

If you Google: Nursing Sisters Port Dover, you’ll see a book by Harry B. Barrett. In that book are pictures of my grandmother and her heroic nursing sisters during WWI, including one sister who was mentioned in wartime dispatches for her heroism along with a certificate presented to her by King George V. (In spite of her “valor in the face of the enemy,” a woman was ineligible to receive the Victoria Cross!)

There are hundreds of letters and pictures, including one of the ambulances my grandmother donated (before we entered WWII) encouraged by her friend, suffragist CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT, who moved around the corner from my grandmother in New Rochelle, N.Y. As a youngster, I remember all the sewing machines and their many friends at my grandmother’s house sewing thousands of pre-die cut clothes together to keep children warm during the brutally cold English winters. Carrie Chapman Catt also founded the League of Woman Voters and is most famous for her Congressional speech resulting in the 19th Constitutional Amendment that gave woman the right to vote in 1920!

All this took place after Susan B. Anthony died in 1906 in Rochester, N.Y. where my grandfather baked his first loaf of BOND BREAD in 1915, resulting in 50 factories producing over 1.5 million loaves of bread a day . . . a Horatio Alger success story which enabled my grandmother to help further woman’s rights. She was inculcated with a sense of moral responsibility by her family who emigrated here in 1720 and then moved to Canada because they were Loyalists to the King and the Church of England.

BESET WITH MODERN AILMENTS

Now, history repeats itself, except this time their counterparts have problems with clogged arteries, heart attacks, prostate problems and cancer by stonewalling a Man’s right and a Woman’s right to flush DEUTERIUM (a major cause of Aging and Cancer) and Pathogens out of their bloodstreams . . . so these diseases aren’t handed down to generations of our unborn children and grandchildren!!

NEW VIDEO SHOWS E5 MACHINE AT WORK

Go to www.JohnEllis.com/NIH and you can watch an informative video which explains just how our E5 Water Machine works. And, just below the video, there is a green link to multiple NIH.Gov studies demonstrating the adverse health effects of deuterium in your water.

The video shows that by changing water properties, small amounts of this water can treat vast quantities of ordinary water (even an aquifer or lake) so Municipalities can supply this healing water right at the tap!! Go to our website JohnEllis.com/NIH with a link to the National Institutes of Health. (Deuterium is found in every bottle or glass of water you drink!)

However, DDW (Deuterium Depleted Water) is only part of the battle for better health as noted by Nobel Prize Winner Albert Szentgyorgy: “Hydrogen is the Fuel of Life” because, unlike ordinary DDW, by also changing Water Properties and increasing the Hydrogen Bond Angle between atoms (so it has more room to hold viruses and environmental contaminants in suspension) they can be eliminated from the bloodstream with almost immediate results (note typical cancer charts)!

Small amounts of this water can treat millions of gallons of ordinary water (as the Municipal Video shows) including markers for disease, so they can be flushed from a human waste lagoon or the blood stream along with heavy metals (Flint, MI: thousands of children have irreversible brain damage)!!

VIOLATING FARADAY’S LAW?

Here’s what a man in Zurich said: “I have had your E5 Water Machine for only 24 hours. I had gross swelling in my legs and hadn’t worn ordinary shoes in years. Your water immediately destroyed the markers for elephantiasis in my blood stream!! I lost all the water weight in my legs and I bought a pair of shoes size 10 ½. Also unlike ordinary DDW, using electrolysis (a battery and two thin pieces of stainless steel, anode and cathode, not a stack that negates power) your water produces so much Hydrogen it violates Faraday's Law... producing the energy needed to stop disease!!"

AMAZING POWER PROPERTIES

A company that produces hydrogen generators for trucks found the required power slowly went down over 24 hours (a cascading effect that is immediate once it has been treated) from 31 amps to less than 1 amp making the same amount of hydrogen by adding only 20 drops of this water to ordinary water in their hydrogen generator (another website video)! Using this technology, you can power your car, heat your home and produce electricity for pennies. Watch the Video that shows examples PROVING you are drinking the wrong water . . . just as food supplies energy, this water provides the "BODY ELECTRIC" energy that powers your heart (defibrillator to stop a heart attack, pacemaker)!

COOK WITH THIS WATER!

Since it's made by boiling and cooling, this energy is imparted to your food, unlike ordinary water that absorbs energy (from your food and body) to reach equilibrium! Also, since DEUTERIUM studies (150 ppm) show it kills fruit flies and disease carrying mosquitoes, you don't want to remove all the Deuterium!! Instead, INCREASE the Hydrogen Bond Angle (so it holds more contaminants in suspension along with Deuterium) and flush Deuterium along with viral diseases from the bloodstream with almost IMMEDIATE results!! Note the typical cancer charts: The "purest water" is USELESS because it doesn't do the above. They still have cancer!

MAKING DDW YOURSELF

Using our E5 Water Machine, you can make two types of DDW for PENNIES per GALLON . . . not $300 for a small bottle! This is done by heating and cooling water hundreds of times per gallon (not just once!) to change the properties of that water. We have 13 International Patents and 332 FDA Tests. You can judge the blatant dishonesty in the water industry using simple electrolysis. A child in science class could do that!

Soros Behind Lawsuits Designed to Keep Borders Porous, Unsafe

By John Friend

On Jan. 27, President Donald Trump signed what has proved to be an extremely controversial executive order that temporarily bans visas and entry to the United States for individuals from seven predominantly Muslim countries that are vulnerable to terrorism. The countries, which include Iraq, Iran, Syria, Libya, Somalia, Sudan, and Yemen, had previously been identified by the Obama administration as countries whose citizens deserved closer scrutiny and a stronger vetting process before being granted a visa and entry into the United States.

The hostile mass media and leftist activists were quick to denounce Trump's rational and commonsense executive order as a blanket "Muslim ban," stirring up echoes of racism and oppression. Protests were organized across the country at numerous major airports, while political leaders of both parties as well as some government bureaucrats and officials voiced their opposition and attempted to set up roadblocks to implementing and complying with Trump's executive order.

Trump's order has also run into countless legal and political obstacles, as federal judges have ruled the order is unconstitutional, while lawyers representing the Trump administration argue the order is well within the rights and duties of the executive branch.

Dozens of state attorneys general, mostly from states run by Democrats, as well as countless private legal organizations, including the ACLU, have brought lawsuits against the Trump administration relating to the executive order.

As was the case with many of the leading organizations that planned and organized the high-profile protests against Trump's inauguration, it appears many of the legal challenges currently facing the Trump administration have been funded and instigated by left-wing billionaire agitator George Soros and other radical leftist activists.

"It shouldn't surprise anyone that pressure groups funded by George Soros are litigating to keep U.S. ports-of-entry wide open to terrorists and other people who hate America," Matthew Vadum, who serves as senior vice president of Capitol Research Center, a D.C.-based think tank, recently stated. "Soros has said he wants to bring America down. Flooding the country with Muslim aliens who won't assimilate is one way to do that."

The uproar actually began only days after Trump signed the order.

On Jan. 30, Trump fired Sally Yates, the acting U.S. attorney general who had been appointed by former President Obama and was set to serve in the position until Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-Ala.), Trump's pick to head the Justice Department, was officially confirmed. Ms. Yates openly defied the president and refused to enforce his order. What did she think was going to happen? Did she believe the White House would back down?

Following Ms. Yates's dismissal, the Trump team chose Dana Boente, U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia, to replace the disgraced former acting attorney general, who Trump argued had "betrayed" the U.S. government and American people. Boente served as attorney general until Sessions was officially confirmed by the Senate on Feb. 8.

"Ms. Yates is an Obama administration appointee who is weak on borders and very weak on illegal immigration," the Trump administration declared in a statement released following Ms. Yates's termination. "It is time to get serious about protecting our country."

The hysteria and mindless fury generated as a result of Trump's executive order demonstrates once again the extreme hostility the mass media and political establishment have toward the Trump administration and its America-first mindset. Trump's executive order is essentially following a proposal originally put forth and implemented by the Obama administration, which did not generate nearly as much controversy as Trump has with his recent order.

"My policy is similar to what President Obama did in 2011 when he banned visas for refugees from Iraq for six months," Trump said in an official White House statement. "The seven countries named in the executive order are the same countries previously identified by the Obama administration as sources of terror."

Trump went on to emphasize that his order is "not a Muslim ban, as the media is falsely reporting."

"This is not about religion. This is about terror and keeping our country safe," Trump stated. "There are over 40 different countries worldwide that are majority Muslim that are not affected by this order. We will again be issuing visas to all countries once we are sure we have reviewed and implemented the most secure policies over the next 90 days." ★

BABYLON'S BANKSTERS THE ALCHEMY OF DEEP PHYSICS, HIGH FINANCE & ANCIENT RELIGION

The modern-day financial crisis is nothing really new, reveals master researcher Joseph P. Farrell in Babylon's Banksters. Banking has been tinkered with and controlled for the past thousand years of human history. See how a seductively simple formula devised by a large and powerful Chinese family led to the "credit default swaps" bust. Read how astrology and a fascination for gemstones played into the banking operations of the super-rich. What are the long-term goals of the most powerful international cabals? In this latest installment of his remarkable series of books on alternative science and history, Farrell outlines the consistent pattern and strategy of bankers in ancient and modern times, and their desire to suppress the public development of alternative physics and energy technologies, usurp the money creating and issuing power of the state, and substitute a facsimile of money-as-debt. Here, Farrell peels back the layers of deception to reveal the possible deep physics that the "banksters" have used to aid them in their financial policies. Trump's Flurry of Executive Orders

By John Friend

Since taking office roughly three weeks ago, President Donald Trump has demonstrated his willingness and eagerness to fulfill nearly all of his major campaign promises and pledges. The populist businessman-turned-president has signed 19 executive orders and memoranda thus far, many of them dealing with some of his most controversial—yet critical—pledges.

Trump has signed a memorandum designed to restructure the National Security Council and Homeland Security Council—two bodies that advise the president on national security—as well as a memorandum calling for a 30-day review of military preparedness. Additionally, he has instructed his secretary of defense to create a plan within 30 days for defeating ISIS.

Other executive orders and memoranda deal with easing federal regulatory burdens imposed by Obamacare and limiting federal regulations in general.

He has also pledged to shrink the size of the federal government, ordering a hiring freeze on some government workers, and aims to restrict government officials from working as lobbyists following their government service.

Trump, a fierce critic of the various “free trade” deals championed and implemented by globalist politicians and plutocrats for decades now, has also signed a pledge to withdraw the U.S. from the Trans-Pacific Partnership trade deal, which he has correctly argued would be devastating for the American worker and economy.

In his most controversial move yet, Trump has ordered a temporary halt to immigration from seven countries prone to terrorism: Syria, Iraq, Iran, Yemen, Libya, Somalia, and Sudan. This particular executive order has run into major political and legal obstacles, and is currently tied up in court.

Trump has also vowed to introduce a stronger vetting process for prospective visitors and visa applicants, particularly from Middle Eastern countries.

Additionally, Trump has doubled down on his pledge to build a wall along the southern border, has vowed to crack down on sanctuary cities, end “catch-and-release” policies for illegal aliens, hire more Border Patrol agents, and increase cooperation between federal immigration and law enforcement officials and local and state officials.

Also worthy of note are Trump's orders to fast track final decisions on the Keystone XL and Dakota Access pipelines and his reinstatement of the “Mexico City Policy” relating to abortion, which restricts federal funds to international organizations that perform, support, or promote abortion.

Surprising no one, Trump has faced countless obstacles to his straightforward, commonsense “America-first” agenda, including protests across the country as well as an obstinate Democratic Party that is seeking to undermine and sabotage him at every possible opportunity. ★

Killing of JFK Gave Israel Free Rein

- More than two decades later, prominent researchers agree: Mossad killed JFK

By Kevin Barrett

I am not by nature a political kind of guy. In fact, I might have lived a normal life had I not discovered, at the tender age of 16, some disturbing facts about the JFK assassination. It was in 1975 that I saw Mark Lane show the Zapruder film. Lane also showed a Life magazine photo in which the relevant frames had been printed backward, reversing the direction of the head snap to make it look like the president had been shot from behind. Those two visuals, plus the famous clip of mob hitman Jack Rubenstein parting a sea of Dallas police officers to execute patsy Lee Harvey Oswald on live television, were enough to turn my world upside-down.

I went on to read dozens of books on the assassination. The one that affected me the most was David Lifton's Best Evidence, which proved that the president's autopsy was a ghoulish farce. Kennedy's body was kidnapped at gunpoint, spirited out of Texas aboard LBJ's Air Force One, and secretly brought to Bethesda Naval Hospital in a body bag (while the empty ceremonial casket snaked through the streets on parade) to be mutilated and butchered to make bullet entry wounds look like exit wounds.

Michael Collins Piper was undoubtedly one of the most prolific writers and astute observers of politics to grace the populist scene. During his all-too-short life he wrote thousands of newspaper articles, dozens of books, and scores of special reports for LIBERTY LOBBY, The Spotlight and AMERICAN FREE PRESS.

Piper's thesis is that the state of Israel, using its U.S. assets and partners in the mob, orchestrated JFK's murder.

Bottom line: I have spent my entire adult life knowing that my country is ruled by the sickest, most perverted people who ever walked the Earth.

But who, precisely, were the criminals of Nov. 22, 1963? Who sent them? What guiding force lay behind them?

These are the questions addressed by the late Michael Collins Piper in his book Final Judgment: The Missing Link in the JFK Assassination Conspiracy.

Piper's thesis is that the state of Israel, using its American assets and partners in organized crime, orchestrated JFK's murder.

That thesis is controversial, even in (or especially in) the JFK research community. But it has been steadily gaining adherents, including among highly credentialed historians and scholars. Two recent examples are French historian Laurent Guyénot and Pakistani physics professor Mujahid Kamran.

Guyénot is a historian with a Ph.D. from the Sorbonne. He is the author of JFK-9/11: 50 Years of Deep State and the forthcoming From Yahweh to Zion, which I recently finished translating. Both books examine the context of the 1963 coup d'état and consider the case for Israel's involvement. Guyénot's conclusion, in brief, is that Mike Piper was right.

Guyénot writes of the JFK assassination, "The quest for the real culprits must logically start by investigating the man who shot Oswald to death at point-blank range two days later, while Oswald was being transferred from the Dallas Police station (where he had been interrogated for two days while no one made a recording or took notes) to the Dallas County Jail."

He continues: "Oswald's assassin is known as Jack Ruby, but few people know that his real name was Jacob Leon Rubenstein, that he was the son of Jewish Polish immigrants, that he had introduced himself into the Dallas Police station by pretending to translate for Israeli reporters, and that he was a member of the Jewish underworld. He was a friend of Los Angeles gangster Mickey Cohen, whom he had known and idolized since 1946. Cohen was the successor of the famed Benjamin Siegelbaum, aka Bugsy Siegel, one of the bosses of Murder Incorporated. Cohen was infatuated with the Zionist cause, to which he had been introduced by Hollywood script writer Ben Hecht.”

Readers of Final Judgment will not be surprised by this information.

Physics professor Mujahid Kamran, like Laurent Guyénot, is following the trail blazed by Michael Collins Piper. The author of numerous volumes on subjects including Albert Einstein, quantum mechanics, and the new world order, Kamran is currently working on a new book on the JFK assassination.

In a January 2017 article entitled “Did Israel assassinate JFK?” published in Daily Pakistan, Kamran writes: “I had only been vaguely aware of the possible Mossad role in the assassination of JFK. However, when I looked at the actual literature on the subject, it has become obvious that it was a job in which Mossad collaborated with sections of the CIA. Both Israel and the CIA leadership work for the secretive, freemasonic Zionist international banking families. JFK had run onto a collision course with these families.”

Kamran, like Guyénot, agrees with Michael Collins Piper’s thesis that Israel took out JFK to remove the main impediment to its nuclear weapons program. Under JFK’s successor, Lyndon Johnson, Israel was allowed to do essentially anything it wanted: build nuclear bombs, wage a war of aggression to steal territory, even attempt to sink the unarmed spy ship the USS Liberty in a failed false flag that killed 34 sailors.

As more and more reputable scholars follow the line of inquiry he pioneered, Michael Collins Piper’s reputation will continue to grow. ★

Whistleblower Dies Suddenly

• Udo Ulfkotte exposed CIA control of media, “refugee” violence against Germans

By Ronald L. Ray

In October 2014, AMERICAN FREE PRESS was the only member of the U.S. news media to which world-renowned German former journalist Dr. Udo Ulfkotte granted an interview about his book, Gekaufte Journalisten (Journalists for Hire). In it, he revealed how the CIA, Mossad, other intelligence agencies, corporations, and billionaires “buy” reporters to control the news. On Jan. 13, Ulfkotte, 57, died suddenly of a heart attack, just four days before his new book, Grenzenlos kriminell, appeared for sale.

Grenzenlos kriminell translates approximately to Criminal Without Borders or Boundlessly Criminal. Ulfkotte’s last work, co-authored with Stefan Schubert, is subtitled, What Politics and the Media Silence About Migrants’ Criminal Deeds, and is available at present only in German. It is a provocative work, intended to explode the official government conspiracy of silence surrounding the staggering numbers of violent crimes, particularly rapes and sexual assaults, perpetrated by “refugees” invading Germany.

In December 2016, Ulfkotte wrote to this author and a few others in the international media, announcing the upcoming release of his new work.

Author and investigative journalist Udo Ulfkotte produced several extremely important books before his untimely death just a month ago. Though he did have heart problems, conspiracy-minded people are suspicious about the timing of his death—just before the American release of the book, Journalists for Hire: How the CIA Buys the News (due to be available for sale in English in May), and also his book in German What Politics and the Media Silence About Migrants’ Criminal Deeds.

He requested our help in exposing his fate, should he be imprisoned for telling the truth about the foreign invasion of Germany and the brutal offenses against its native citizens.

Ulfkotte stated: “I want you to know that under heavy pressure I have written a book about refugees in Germany and all the (publicly not known) cases of their raping and sexually assaulting German women and children in 2016. The prosecutor of Baden-Wuerttemberg is threatening me with punishment and trial if I do publicly speak out about this issue. . . .”

“I have not only written [about] EVERY single case of rape and sexual assault against women and children in Germany done by refugees in 2016. I, too, have quoted secret papers from our government and police stations in this book that clearly say that it is no more allowed to inform the German public about these cases as long as the government does not agree. And the police [are] no more allowed to use the expression ‘refugee’ in context with rape or sexual assault. This is Germany 2016. Our freedom has gone thanks to Angela Merkel and her open borders. . . .”

When Ulfkotte failed uncharacteristically to respond to interview questions we sent on Jan. 17, his book’s publication date, an Internet search for the new volume turned up the surprising fact of his death. The timing of that death raises serious questions.

Hidden History: An Exposé of Modern Crimes, Conspiracies, and Cover-Ups in American Politics

from
AFP

The U.S. government has spent as much time covering up conspiracies as it has helping the American people. In Hidden History, you will see the amount of effort that our government has dedicated over the past 50 years to lying and covering up the truth to the world.

Starting with the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, author Don Jeffries chronicles a wide variety of issues that have plagued our country’s history. Whether it is the assassinations of MLK and RFK, Iran-Contra, the Oklahoma City bombing, TWA Flight 800, voting fraud, or 9/11, every major disaster or war that we’ve witnessed has somehow been distorted by those who are supposed to be protecting us. Jeffries also delves into extensive research on a host of other important topics that will shock many conspiratologists and laymen alike.

Whether you’ve only heard bits and pieces of these stories or you’ve read several books on the topics, Hidden History is the book that belongs in every conspiracy truther’s library, as the information included here has never been collected together in any other published work available.

So sit down, strap in, and get ready to be shocked and awed by how much has been hidden by our “free and open” government over the past 50 years. Updated for 2017, this version features a new introduction by AFP reader favorite Roger Stone.

Softcover, 392 pages, $23 plus $4 S&H inside the U.S. (Outside the U.S. email bookstore@americanfreepress.net for foreign S&H.) Mail payment with request to AFP, 16000 Trade Zone Avenue, Unit 406, Upper Marlboro, MD 20774. To charge, call 1-888-699-6397 toll free, Mon.-Thu 9-5. Purchase online at www.AmericanFreePress.net.

“Heart attack” is a method of assassination frequently employed by intelligence services, and those agencies certainly had motive for murder, given Ulfkotte’s exposure of their control of the mass media. The German government and European Union also had motive, because his new book threatened the official “refugee” narrative being used to promote the genocide of Germans and other Europeans by means of millions of invading foreigners.

Strangely, German authorities apparently did not carry out an autopsy, and the body was cremated almost immediately. Cover-up? Possibly. However, Ulfkotte had already suffered three heart attacks by 2014 and undergone heart surgery, so his death could have been from natural causes. But now we will never know.

That does not exonerate the spy agencies, the German government—or the “anti-fascists” and Islamists who had issued death threats against Ulfkotte in the past. The former journalist was fearless in exposing the dangers he saw threatening his countrymen and Europe, and he was active in PEGIDA, a German political movement that opposes the Islamization of the West. But he was a sensitive man, and the vicious harassment he suffered weakened his health, which was damaged already while reporting in the Middle East and Africa.

In Ulfkotte’s earlier book, Journalists for Hire, a penitent former spy revealed that, as we reported in 2014, “there are many quid-pro-quo exchanges between news correspondents and intelligence agencies. Large sums of money, gifts, public recognition, and significant career advancement go to those journalists who provide useful information on people they meet or know, or on places to which they travel. Many times, the reporter, like Ulfkotte, need only put his name on an article written for him by some spy agency or financial institution.”

That is a key method by which the internationalist warmongers of the New World Order control and direct the narrative of world events for their deadly purposes. Ulfkotte revealed their nefarious deeds—he was among the first to expose incipient

White World Awake!*
Stopping the Planned
Extermination of Our Volk

Western civilization is in desperate peril. White people—our volk—are in trouble. The question of the day—and very likely the question of the millennium—is whether Europe will survive—and with it its American, Canadian, Australian and South African cousins—and, if so, how? Seeking to answer those questions is a very important new book, White World Awake! Stopping the Planned Extermination of Our Volk. Those who seek the truth will find the truth in the pages of this book, and those looking for a practical plan of action will find that as well. This is a book that needs and deserves to be in the hands of every concerned person who cares about the future of the Western world. The book was penned by Swiss Revisionist scholar Jürgen Graf who has been the target of the thought police for his writings on taboo historical topics. Made available to AFP through our friends at TBR magazine. Softcover, 540 pages, $35 from THE BARNES REVIEW, 16000 Trade Zone Avenue, Unit 406, Upper Marlboro, MD 20774.

efforts to incite war against Russia—and for that he earned their undying enmity.

But when the German whistleblower spoke out against the Islamic invasion of Europe, because of his own Middle Eastern experiences, the globalists’ full wrath fell upon him. He was, for example, denounced as a “conspiracy theorist” for telling the truth. And the German state prosecutor appeared set for a show trial to send Ulfkotte to prison.

Did “the powers that be” fear the public attention such a trial would have garnered against them and determine a “final solution” would be better, instead? It is a question deserving of an answer.

Our sincerest condolences to Ulfkotte’s surviving family and friends. The world has lost a courageous voice for the truth. ★

Judge Drops Key Gun Charge Against Dissident Ranchers

• Trial of Bundys, compatriots begins with important victory for defendants who protested federal claims on grazing rights

By Mark Anderson

LAS VEGAS, Nev.—A federal judge in a pretrial hearing on Feb. 2 dismissed the third count, related to firearms, in the 16-count indictment against rancher Cliven Bundy and 17 others stemming from their April 2014 resistance of a crackdown carried out by federal agents in Bunkerville, located in southern Nevada.

The “standoff” happened when federal agents unsuccessfully tried to seize Bundy’s cattle following a decades-long dispute that, according to the government, was over unpaid grazing fees. The event is widely seen as a collision of two world-views—emblematic of Western landowners’ long-time efforts to resist and turn back what they see as heavy-handed federal micro-management of vast stretches of Western lands.

While the Las Vegas Review Journal online called U.S. District Judge Gloria Navarro’s decision to drop count three as a “minor victory” for the men “accused of organizing a mass assault on law enforcement,” other observers have insisted that federal agents, especially those from the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), were the assailants.

Judge Navarro ruled to drop that count amid requests by the defense for several of the charges contained in the federal indictment to be dismissed, according to the Review Journal.

Paralegal Tatum Wehr, assistant to Bret Whipple, attorney for Cliven Bundy, told this AFP writer Feb. 3 that Navarro’s decision applies to all the defendants awaiting trial. That was seconded by Roger Roots, an astute Montanan who’s a legal adviser to both Cliven Bundy and his son, Ryan.

Roots explained to AFP in a phone interview that, while the dropped count has to do with the alleged use of a gun to “impede” federal officers, the three other similar gun counts that weren’t dropped allege the use of a gun to “assault,” “threaten,” and “interfere” with federal officers. In his view, those are just three ways of saying the same basic thing and that such wording is a deliberate way for the feds to get something to stick.

Roots added that a motion to dismiss the case was filed on Feb. 2.

“That will be ruled on in a couple weeks. Unless that succeeds, this thing is definitely going to trial,” he said, adding, “This case is a big exposure for these guys. We’re talking high stakes.”

The federal government has been withholding critically important evidence from the defense, amid severe moral and ethical breaches.

According to Roots, the three remaining gun counts carry mandatory minimum sentences of several years each under what he described as an “evil” statute [USC 18, Sect. 924 (c)]. It carries stiff sentences (especially for second offenses) and mandates that the sentences be served consecutively, instead of the usual concurrent approach. The defendants could be looking at 25 years to life, depending on how many counts stick, as Roots understands it.

Roots also said the federal government has been withholding critically important evidence from the defense, amid severe moral and ethical breaches and enormously wasteful and improper spending of tax dollars during the standoff by BLM agent Dan Love, a key figure in this saga.

And with Love’s testimony being the only thing the grand jury heard in the Bundy case before issuing its indictment—meaning that the grand jury’s inherent right to do its own investigation was never exercised—the federal case evidently is far weaker than many people assume.

An insightful overview of Love’s behavior concerning the Bunkerville standoff and related matters can be heard in an interview with Brianna Bundy, wife of defendant Mel Bundy, conducted by KSDZ-FM “The Twister” in Nebraska.

“They [BLM agents] laugh and joke about shooting women, shooting children, and dogs and horses,” Brianna told KSDZ, referring to evidence in the form of body-cam footage evidently being withheld from public knowledge. Love is accused of egging other agents on to aggressively view Cliven Bundy and his supporters as an allegedly mortal threat. The discovery process could bring this matter to light, but that has yet to happen.

Cliven Bundy, the Nevada rancher who had had enough of government bureaucrats telling him he couldn’t graze his cattle on land his family had been using for a century, spurred a massive protest against federal tyranny.

Navarro’s ruling stems from a 2015 Supreme Court decision that addressed how those accused of being violent criminals are prosecuted. The high court’s majority, in Johnson v. United States, invalidated the “residual clause” criminal statute, striking it down as unconstitutionally vague. The clause allowed federal prosecutors broad discretion in arguing to a judge what sorts of crimes constitute violent felonies, which carry mandatory minimum sentences.

Prosecutors late last year decided to try the case in three separate trials. Jury selection began in the first case on Feb. 6 in Las Vegas. This trial of “lesser offenders” was moved up, while the second and third more high-profile trials are expected to start in mid-to-latter April and in the summer, respectively.

According to the court’s schedule, there will be a 30-day break after the end of the first trial before starting the second tier consisting of key defendants Cliven Bundy, his sons Ammon and Ryan, Ryan Payne, and Internet journalist Pete Santilli. The men (not including Cliven) were acquitted in the Oregon trial regarding their participation in civil disobedience to protest federal land policies and other matters at the Malheur National Wildlife Refuge that ended in early 2015, only to be kept in custody and transferred to Nevada for another trial.

After another approximately 30-day break at the second trial’s end, tier three will commence, involving Cliven’s sons Mel and Dave, along with Joseph O’Shaughnessy, Brian Cavalier, Jason Woods, and Micah McGuire. ★

It's the Far Left That's Killing Free Speech

By Dave Gahary

The attacks by the far left on free speech and U.S. President Donald J. Trump are becoming bolder and more obvious by the minute. From the elite media's twisting of the president's words and agenda, to the "disinvitation" of two women's right-to-life groups to take part in the Women's March on Washington, to the ongoing machinations of Hungarian-American George Soros, to the attempts to stifle discussion of the "Holocaust," the liberal left, it seems, has never been more vociferous in its attacks on traditional values.

Take the Women's March on Washington, which took place the day after Trump was inaugurated as the 45th president of this once-great nation. After the group New Wave Feminists announced on their Facebook page that they had been chosen as an official partner of the March, a hit piece in The Atlantic magazine on the pro-life group quoted from their mission statement:

"Sometime before we were born our womanhood was traded for a handful of birth control pills, the 'privilege' to degrade ourselves in Playboy, and the 'right' to abort our children."

The reaction was swift. A statement issued by the organizers said:

"The Women's March platform is pro-choice and has been from day one. We look forward to marching on behalf of individuals who share the view that women deserve the right to make their own reproductive decisions. The anti-choice organization in question is not a partner of the Women's March on Washington. We apologize for the error."

Another group, a ministry that helps abortion clinic workers leave the industry, was also "disinvited." The ministry's founder said she received a call from someone with the Women's March who told her that her group's application was rejected, since participating groups must support "reproductive rights."

Abby Johnson, the ministry's founder, told "The Blaze," "They've always said everybody's invited, this is an inclusive march, but now, what they're doing to pro-life groups by kicking us out is basically saying it's not inclusive, it's exclusive just to pro-choice organizations."

In another example, the newspaper you're reading now was recently attacked by the radical left.

Google, Inc. pulled their ads from the AFP website, citing books that offer an alternative view of the historical event known as the Holocaust.

"For such powerful interests to try to stifle free and honest debate about such an important subject—handled in a scientific and scholarly way as we have—means that, despite protestations to the contrary, Google and other big outfits, though combined they're worth billions of dollars, obviously answer to higher authorities. It's appalling that they have such little regard for freedom of speech and thought—one of the very cornerstones of our free republic," Paul Angel of THE BARNES REVIEW history magazine told AFP.

A review of Democratic president Bill Clinton's speech from 1995 on illegal immigration—in which he received a standing ovation—sheds light on how far the left has moved their narrative to, uh, the left.

From 1995:

All Americans, not only in the states most heavily affected, but in every place in this country, are rightly disturbed by the large numbers of illegal aliens entering our country. The jobs they hold might otherwise be held by citizens or legal immigrants. The public services they use impose burdens on our taxpayers. That's why our administration has moved aggressively to secure our borders more, by hiring a record number of new border guards, by deporting twice as many criminal aliens as ever before, by cracking down on illegal hiring, by barring welfare benefits to illegal aliens. . . . We are a nation of immigrants. But we are also a nation of laws. It is wrong and ultimately self-defeating for a nation of immigrants to permit the kind of abuse of our immigration laws we have seen in recent years, and we must do more to stop it.

What a difference 22 years make. ★

Rule by Brute Force: The New America

• Will Donald Trump expand global police state . . . or protect us from it?

Corrupt government rules by brute force. Multiple presidential administrations have been grabbing power and control. While Trump may wield this power for good, the concern is that giving anyone that much power will lead to tyranny. Whoever is president, Americans need to act now to rein in executive power.

By John W. Whitehead

All of the imperial powers amassed by Barack Obama and George W. Bush—to kill American citizens without due process, to detain suspects indefinitely, to strip Americans of their citizenship rights, to carry out mass surveillance on Americans without probable cause, to suspend laws during wartime, to disregard laws with which the president might disagree, to conduct secret wars and convene secret courts, to sanction torture, to sidestep the legislatures and courts with executive orders and signing statements, to direct the military to operate beyond the reach of the law, to act as a dictator and a tyrant, above the law and beyond any real accountability—have been inherited by Donald Trump.

Whatever kind of president Trump chooses to be, he now has the power to completely alter the landscape of this country for good or for ill.

He has this power because every successive occupant of the Oval Office has been allowed to expand the reach and power of the presidency through the use of executive orders, decrees, memorandums, proclamations, national security directives, and legislative signing statements that can be activated by any sitting president.

Those of us who saw this eventuality coming have been warning for years about the growing danger of the executive branch with its presidential toolbox of terror that could be used—and abused—by future presidents.

The groundwork, we warned, was being laid for a new kind of government where it won't matter if you're innocent or guilty, whether you're a threat to the nation or even if you're a citizen. What will matter is what the president—or whoever happens to be occupying the Oval Office at the time—thinks. And if he or she thinks you're a threat to the nation and should be locked up, then you'll be locked up with no access to the protections our Constitution provides. In effect, you will disappear.

Our warnings went largely unheeded.

First, we sounded the alarm over George W. Bush's attempts to gut the Constitution, suspend habeas corpus, carry out warrantless surveillance on Americans, and generally undermine the Fourth Amendment, but the Republicans didn't want to listen because Bush was a Republican.

PRESIDENT DONALD TRUMP

Has the chance to scale back executive power abuses.

Then we sounded the alarm over Barack Obama's prosecution of whistleblowers, targeted drone killings, assassinations of American citizens, mass surveillance, and militarization of the police, but the Democrats didn't want to listen because Obama was a Democrat, and he talked a really good game.

It well may be that by the time Americans—Republicans and Democrats alike—stop playing partisan games and start putting some safeguards in place, it will be too late.

Already, Trump has indicated that he will pick up where his predecessors left off: He will continue to wage war, he will continue to federalize the police, and he will operate as if the Constitution does not apply to him.

Still, as tempting as it may be, don't blame Trump for what is to come.

If this nation eventually locks down, if Americans are rounded up and detained based on the color of their skin, their religious beliefs, or their political views, if law and order takes precedence over constitutional principles . . .

If martial law is eventually declared, if we find that there really is nowhere to run and nowhere to hide from the surveillance state's prying eyes and ears, and if our constitutional republic finally plunges headlong over the cliff and leaves us in the iron grip of totalitarianism . . .

Please, resist the urge to lay all the blame at Trump's feet. After all, Trump didn't create the police state. He merely inherited it. Frankly, there's more than enough blame to go around. So blame Obama. Blame Bush. Blame Bill Clinton. Blame the Republicans and Democrats who justified every power grab, every expansion of presidential powers, and every attack on the Constitution as long as it was a member of their own party leading the charge.

Blame Congress for being a weak, inept body that spends more time running for office and pandering to the interests of the moneyed elite than representing the citizenry.

Blame the courts for caring more about order than justice, and for failing to hold government officials accountable to the rule of law.

Blame corporate America for taking control of the government and calling the shots behind the scenes.

Most of all, blame the American people for not having objected louder, sooner, and more vehemently when Obama, Bush, and their predecessors laid the groundwork for this state of tyranny.

But wait, you say. Americans are mobilizing. They are engaged. They are actively expressing their discontent with the government. They are demanding change. They are marching in the streets, picketing, protesting, and engaging in acts of civil disobedience. This is a good development, right? Isn't this what we've been calling on Americans to do for so long: Stand up and push back and say "enough is enough"?

Perhaps you're right. Perhaps Americans have finally had enough. At least, some Americans have finally had enough. That is to say, some Americans have finally had enough of certain government practices that are illegal, immoral, and inhumane. Although, to be quite fair, it might be more accurate to state that some Americans have finally had enough of certain government practices that are illegal, immoral, and inhumane provided that the ruling political party responsible for those actions is not their own.

Yes, that sounds about right. Except that it's all wrong. We still haven't learned a thing.

Imagine: After more than eight years in which Americans remained largely silent while the United States military (directed by the Obama administration) bombed parts of the Middle East to smithereens—dropping nearly three bombs an hour, and left a trail of innocent civilian deaths in its wake—suddenly, Americans are outraged by programs introduced by the Trump administration that could discriminate against Muslim refugees. Never mind that we've been killing those same refugees for close to a decade.

Certainly, there was little outcry when the U.S. military under Obama carried out an air strike against a Doctors Without Borders hospital in Afghanistan. Doctors, patients—including children—and staff members were killed or wounded. There were also no protests when the Obama administration targeted Anwar al-Awlaki, an American citizen in Yemen, for assassination by drone strike. The man was killed without ever having been charged with a crime. Two weeks later, Obama—the recipient of a Nobel Peace Prize—authorized another drone strike that killed al-Awlaki's 16-year-old son, Abdulrahman, also an American citizen.

Most recently, picking up where President Obama left off, Trump personally authorized a commando raid on a compound in Yemen suspected of harboring al Qaeda officials. Among those killed were “at least eight women and seven children, ages three to 13,” including Nora, the eight-year-old sister of the teenager killed by Obama years before.

Likewise, while most Americans failed to show much opposition to the government's disregard for Americans' bodily integrity, shrugging their collective shoulders dismissively over reports of their fellow citizens being subjected to roadside strip searches, virtual strip searches, cavity searches, and other equally denigrating acts, hundreds of thousands mobilized to protest policies that could be advanced by the Trump administration that might demean or deny equal rights to individuals based on their gender or orientation or take away their reproductive planning choices. Similarly, while tens of thousands have gathered annually for a March for Life to oppose abortion, many of those same marchers seem to have no qualms about the government's practice of shooting unarmed citizens and executing innocent ones.

This begs the question: What are Americans really protesting? Is it politics or principle?

Or is it just Trump?

For instance, in the midst of the uproar over Trump's appointment of Steven Bannon to the National Security Council, his detractors have accused Bannon of being a propagandist, nationalist, and a white supremacist. Yet not one objection has been raised about the fact that the National Security Council authorizes secret, legal, targeted killings of American citizens (and others) without due process, a practice frequently employed by Obama.

The message coming across loud and clear: It's fine for the government to carry out secret, targeted assassinations of American citizens without due process as long as the individuals advising the president aren't neo-nazis.

Of course, this national hypocrisy goes both ways. Conveniently, many of the same individuals who raised concerns over Obama's “lawless” use of executive orders to sidestep Congress have defended Trump's executive orders as “taking us back to the Constitution.” And those who sounded the alarm over the dangers of the American police state have gone curiously silent in the face of

The list of abuses being perpetrated against the people by the government is growing rapidly.”

Trump's pledge to put an end to “the dangerous anti-police atmosphere in America.”

We can't have it both ways.

As long as we continue to put our politics ahead of our principles—moral, legal, and constitutional—“we the people” will lose.

And you know who will keep winning by playing on our prejudices, capitalizing on our fears, deepening our distrust of our fellow citizens, and dividing us into polarized, warring camps incapable of finding consensus on the one true menace that is an immediate threat to all of our freedoms? The U.S. government.

In her essay on “The Nature of Government,” Ayn Rand explains that the only “proper” purpose of a government is the protection of individual rights. She continues: “The source of the government's authority is ‘the consent of the governed.’ This means that the government is not the ruler, but the servant or agent of the citizens; it means that the government as such has no rights except the rights delegated to it by the citizens for a specific purpose.”

When we lose sight of this true purpose of government—to protect our rights—and fail to keep the government in its place as our servant, we allow the government to overstep its bounds and become a tyrant that rules by brute force.

Rule by brute force. That's about as good a description as you'll find for the sorry state of our republic.

SWAT teams crashing through doors. Militarized police shooting unarmed citizens. Traffic cops tasering old men and pregnant women for not complying fast enough with an order. Resource officers shackling children for acting like children. Citizens being jailed for growing vegetable gardens in their front yards and holding prayer services in their backyards. Drivers having their cash seized under the pretext that they might have done something wrong.

The list of abuses being perpetrated against the American people by their government is growing rapidly. We are approaching critical mass.

As I make clear in my book Battlefield America: The War on the American People, it may already be too late to save our republic. We have passed the point of easy fixes. When the government and its agents no longer respect the rule of law—the Constitution—or believe that it applies to them, then the very contract on which this relationship is based becomes invalid.

So what is the answer? Look to the past if you want to understand the future.

You want to save America? Then stop thinking like Republicans and Democrats and start acting like Americans.

The only thing that will save us now is a concerted, collective commitment to the Constitution's principles of limited government, a system of checks and balances, and a recognition that they—the president, Congress, the courts, the military, the police, the technocrats and bureaucrats—work for us. ★

Two Books from John Whitehead Every American Should Read . . .

A Government of Wolves: The Emerging American Police State

This book charts America's transition from a society governed by “we the people” to a police state governed by the strong arm of the law. Whitehead believes that the American people are in grave danger of losing their basic liberties. The simple fact is that the Constitution—and in particular the Bill of Rights—is being undermined on every front. Indeed, everything America was founded upon is being challenged. This book has been hailed by those on the left and right due to its masterful chronicling of America's shift away from the rule of law and the Constitution. Whitehead also offers a call to action. Hardback, 288 pages, $25 plus $4 S&H in U.S.

Battlefield America: The War on the American People

With a foreword by Ron Paul. John W. Whitehead paints a portrait of a nation at war with itself and on the verge of undermining the basic freedoms guaranteed in the Constitution. Indeed, police have been transformed into extensions of the military, towns and cities have become battlefields, and the American people have been turned into enemy combatants, to be spied on, tracked, scanned, frisked, searched, intimidated, invaded, raided, manhandled, censored, silenced, shot at, locked up and denied due process. Yet this police state did not come about overnight. Hardback, indexed, 337 pages, $25 plus $4 S&H in U.S.

Has Yemen Been Turned Into Terror Inc.'s New Afghanistan?

By Richard Walker

On Jan. 28, the U.S. conducted a risky attack on an alleged terrorist compound in Yemen. It is not known just how many people were killed in the botched raid, but among the casualties were a Navy SEAL and an eight-year-old Yemeni girl.

While this latest SEAL Team 6 raid by most accounts failed in its objectives, it nevertheless confirmed that the country is effectively the new Afghanistan for al Qaeda and ISIS.

It should be noted that if a conflict were to break out with Iran, Yemen could become part of it should Washington decide to target Yemen's Houthis, regarded by many in Congress as Iranian surrogates. That would be a softer option for President Donald Trump than engaging in a direct military exchange with Iran, especially if he believed Iran had crossed a red line with more missile tests and wanted to retaliate.

Yemen's Houthis have been discriminated against for decades. They are Shiites, like Iranians and the majority of Iraqis, and they have been fighting a war with the Saudis since 2015. Yemen is one of the world's poorest countries, sharing a border with Saudi Arabia, one of the richest.

The botched U.S. raid in Yemen, however, shone a light on a very disturbing trend in Yemen. Al Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula—better known as AQAP—and ISIS have been thriving as the nation has been torn apart by the Saudi regime's bombing campaign that has resulted in numerous war crimes against the Houthis.

The Saudis have used cluster bombs against civilian targets, including recently a school. Last year they bombed a funeral, slaughtering more than 125 people. The aim of the Saudis, backed by their Arab allies, is to install a dictatorship favorable to them.

For more than a decade, before the beginning of major civil strife following the Arab Spring, the country cooperated with Washington to target Islamic militants on its soil, at one stage receiving over $400 million in Washington aid. But when the Houthis ousted a president favored by the Saudis, the Saudis and their Arab partners launched a war approved by the Obama administration. The U.S. military had been running a secret drone war against AQAP, but behind the scenes it began providing munitions and intelligence to the Saudis.

Yemen's Saudi-Houthi war has allowed AQAP to become a bigger threat to the West than ISIS. AQAP claimed the Charlie Hebdo massacre in Paris and sent the underwear bomber to America. The group's ability to use Yemen as a base the way Osama bin Laden exploited Afghanistan has enabled it to plan sophisticated attacks. It has radicalized more Americans than other Islamic terror players, most notably men like the Fort Hood, Texas killer, Nidal Malik Hasan. He was recruited by one of its leaders, the American Islamic cleric, Anwar al-Awlaki, who died in a U.S. targeted strike in 2011.

His teenage son was also killed in a drone strike, and his eight-year-old daughter, Nora, was among a large number of civilians killed in the latest SEAL Team 6 strike. The two Awlaki children were American citizens. It is believed there may be more than 50 Americans in AQAP ranks.

Failings in the latest raid on AQAP were partly due to the fact that the lever for the operation was pulled by President Donald Trump over dinner without the participation of principal parties such as the CIA. Instead, Trump's son-in-law, Jared Kushner, and former news executive Steve Bannon were present.

Ops of this kind require detailed analysis. Some intel sources this writer spoke to speculated that the president may have acted too quickly, anxious for a bin Laden-type raid during his first week in office.

Contrary to claims by some Trump administration figures, plans for the Yemen raid were not viewed or approved by President Barack Obama before he left office. Instead, Obama agreed to a CENTCOM request for broad Yemen operations, indicating a plan was in place to make the country a primary U.S. military target.

Yemen is a strategically vital part of the globe. While it shares a border with Saudi Arabia, its real significance is that it overlooks the narrow Bab el Mandeb Straits linking the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden. It is a critical crossroads for world trade, and especially for oil shipments. In the 1990s, China tried and failed to establish an economic foothold there. Lately, Russia has become concerned that Saudi control of Yemen would be de facto Washington control.

Whether Trump will continue to back the Saudi war in Yemen is open to question, though he launched the SEAL Team 6 raid the day after he consulted with Saudi King Salman.

The Middle East has the effect of skewering presidents who intervene in its conflicts. Some within the president's inner circle would like nothing better than a conflict with Iran, a war that Israel's far-right leadership has long favored.

Trump has promised that he would not involve the U.S. in more wars with no end in sight. Yemen could suck in Trump should he move beyond targeted strikes against ISIS and AQAP to join Saudi attacks on the Houthis in an effort to remake the country in the West's image. ★

The Tyrannical Rule of the Supreme Court

By Donald C. Brockett. The Supreme Court has become an oligarchy exercising a tyrannical rule over our country. This book challenges the court's decisions in several important areas in an effort to cause all of us to re-think what role the court should take in reference to our Constitution. The Constitution was borne out of the reflective wisdom of our founders, forming an experiment in government never before tried. They tried to protect us from what history had done over and over to people in subjugating them to the will of the few. They wanted those decisions important to our lives left to us to decide through those we elect—not a tiny group of people driven by ideology, not the true law. Texas Governor Maps Out Border Strategy

• Greg Abbott meets with new DHS secretary to discuss border wall, sanctuary cities

By Mark Anderson

WESLACO, Texas—On Feb. 1, Texas Gov. Greg Abbott and newly confirmed U.S. Department of Homeland Security Secretary John Kelly got right to business when they met at the Texas Department of Public Safety's regional headquarters in the Hidalgo County city of Weslaco, just a few miles from Mexico, to start mapping out ways to secure the border under the Trump administration.

Addressing Kelly, just before embarking with him on a helicopter tour of the state's southern border, Abbott remarked, "[W]e are thankful . . . to the president . . . and your entire team for working collaboratively with us on achieving common goals to make sure that we regain the sovereignty and control of our border and keep our people safe."

But Abbott didn't just wake up to this issue. Over the last two to three years, well before Donald J. Trump's candidacy and his focus on border security as president, Abbott boosted the number of state troopers assigned to border areas, among other actions, due to what he saw as grave inaction by past U.S. administrations.

"More than $800 million was appropriated to place 250 permanent Department of Public Safety troopers on the border, along with additional law enforcement resources, including air and marine assets," a summer 2015 press release from Abbott's office noted. Moreover, "$4.2 million in grant funds" was allocated "to support the Border Prosecution Unit made up of 17 district and county attorneys within the Texas border region" to focus on "narcotics, weapons, human trafficking, organized crime, gangs, and other border-related offenses," the release added.

"This action would not be necessary if the federal government fulfilled its obligation to secure our nation's border," Abbott stressed at the time. "The problem is compounded by drug cartels and transnational gang enterprises that are involved in this illegal cross-border activity—including human smuggling," a stance he maintains, though he's hopeful things will change under the Trump White House.

MEXICO'S SOUTHERN BORDER THE KEY?

Of particular note during Abbott's Feb. 1 Weslaco visit was his key statement on a largely overlooked issue: "We have so many Texans being so concerned with our border being completely overrun with more than a thousand people a day crossing the border. These are people who aren't just coming across from Mexico; these are people who are coming across from the entire world."

GOV. GREG ABBOTT

Accordingly, in 2015, Abbott pledged to provide "up to $200,000 in Justice Assistance Grant funds to support increased law enforcement activities, including . . . critical security needs associated with the placement of Central American nationals and unaccompanied minors in Ellis and Rockwall Counties," a state press release noted.

In south Texas, the wide-open-borders credo that tends to dominate media reports—and is almost universal among the region's political, business, and media leaders—carries with it the false claim that border-security advocates want to keep nearly all Mexicans out of the U.S. and risk starving the border economy.

To be sure, some south-Texas retailers in McAllen and other cities, from Brownsville all the way to El Paso, do depend on cross-border commerce for business survival.

However, border-security advocates know full well that legal visitors from Mexico—who have a strong incentive to "fill up" in the U.S. due to record-high Mexican gasoline prices and obtain dollars because of the excessively weak peso—would not be hindered by a completed border wall or fence. These visitors, with papers and passports in hand, routinely enter and exit the U.S. legally on well-monitored international bridges. They shop or stay the weekend with Texas relatives who typically have legal residency. So, regular cross-border commerce, by all indications so far, would not be blocked by whatever efforts the Abbott and Trump administrations undertake.

But beyond the Mexicans who sneak into the U.S. to hide out and blend in, there are indeed scores of people from other Western Hemisphere nations who've confirmed they're from El Salvador, Guatemala and several other nearby states, as acknowledged by caretakers at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church shelter in McAllen. They watch over children and teens from such nations who are smuggled across the U.S. border.

This illegal entry of tens of thousands of people from multiple nations—when the U.S. is supposedly serious in defending itself in its "war on terror"—is the true crux of the border-security issue. Yet even Abbott, for all his efforts, has not publicly made the next logical leap: Namely, that Mexico's border with its southern neighbors is where security truly begins for the U.S., and perhaps even for Mexico.

The bedrock questions are: Why is it that Guatemalans and those from Belize, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua etc.—who claim they're fleeing their home countries to escape violence—are not aided by the Mexican people or government agencies near Mexico's southern border, long before the refugees would ever reach the U.S.? And how, presumably with few resources to spare, do these refugees make it all the way across Mexico to Texas, a distance of some 1,800 miles?

ABBOTT CUTS SANCTUARY CITIES FUNDING

On the very day that Abbott visited the southern Texas city of Weslaco to meet the Trump administration's new Homeland Security chief, Abbott followed through on his pledge to withhold $1.5 million from the city of Austin over local officials' stated efforts to undermine federal immigration law by becoming another "sanctuary city" for illegal aliens.

"Abbott blocked funding to Austin . . . after its sheriff said the city's jails would no longer honor most federal immigration detainers," Fox News reported. "Abbott's move begins a crackdown over sanctuary city policies in the state. The Republican governor is also pushing to sign new laws that could go even further than President Donald Trump's new executive actions against sanctuary policies."

Some Travis County officials [the Austin area] condemned Abbott's decision, which is costing Austin $1.5 million in grant money earmarked for crime victim services, courts etc.

In his latest State of the State address Feb. 2, Abbott resolved to address the challenge posed by Austin and other would-be sanctuary cities in Texas, pledging to hold law enforcement and other local officials accountable, even while some city officials claim their "sovereignty" is being attacked by Abbott. Oddly, they never comment on state or national sovereignty.

Meanwhile, the Texas state legislature, which convenes for regular session every odd-numbered year, has begun to hold hearings on a plethora of border issues. ★

Study on Cell Phone Dangers Ignored

• Scientists warn EMF pollution “likely cause” of brain, heart cancers in test animals

By James Spounias

Far-sighted health advocates have warned about the dangers of electromagnetic frequency (EMF) pollution, broadly including power lines, cellular phone towers, and cellular and cordless telephones, for a long time.

New technologies such as Wi-Fi and “smart meters” bring EMF closer to us—in our homes, workplaces, and many public spaces. They also make communication towers more prolific, which intensifies the problem.

A recent study on cellular telephone dangers and proposed action by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) went virtually under the radar.

The study by the National Toxicology Program (NTP) under the National Institutes of Health, done in Sweden, reported on May 31 that cell phone exposure within currently available safety limits was the “likely cause” of brain and heart cancers in test animals.

This result is especially significant because scientists do not often find causation. Instead, erring on the side of caution, they typically call for more and more studies.

However, this is one time when scientists were clear. Dr. Christopher Portier, formerly with the NTP, was quoted by the BioInitiative organization, a group of independent scientists dedicated to publishing and reporting on the possible risks from wireless technologies and electromagnetic fields, as saying:

“I would call it a causative study, absolutely. They controlled everything in the study. It’s [the cancer] because of the exposure. This is by far—far and away—the most carefully done cell-phone bioassay, a biological assessment. This is a classic study that is done for trying to understand cancers in humans.”

The cellular telephone link to cancer is controversial, with industry scientists denying any link and other scientists pointing out dangers.

Dr. Lennart Hardell, M.D. and Ph.D. of Orebro University in Sweden, stated: “(T)he animal study confirms our findings in epidemiological studies of an increased risk for glioma and acoustic neuroma among people that use wireless phones, both cell phones and cordless phones (DECT). Acoustic neuroma is a type of Schwannoma, so interestingly this study confirms findings in humans of increased risk for glioma and acoustic neuroma. In 2013 we called for upgrading the risk in humans to Group 1, [meaning] the agent is carcinogenic to humans. It is now time to re-evaluate both the cancer risk and other potential health effects in humans from radiofrequency radiation and also inform the public.

Smart Meters, Too?

By James Spounias

So-called smart meters are wireless devices that are part of an extensive wireless system installed on our homes and businesses that report to the utility company detailed energy usage. Some object to privacy invasion and possible health concerns surrounding the use of these controversial devices.

The EMF Safety Network organization conducted surveys of 410 adults and children in the U.S. and Australia. These were reviewed by Ed Halterman, Ph.D. (applied mathematics) and Ronald Powell, Ph.D. (applied physics) involving smart meters.

The top reported health problems include: 1) sleep disruption, 2) headaches, 3) ringing or buzzing in the ears, 4) fatigue, 5) loss of concentration, memory, or learning ability, and 6) disorientation, dizziness, or loss of balance.

Other problems reported include stress and anxiety; eye problems, including eye pain and pressure in eyes; cardiac symptoms, heart palpitations, and heart arrhythmias; arthritis, body pain, and sharp, stabbing pains; and nausea and flu-like symptoms.

If you don’t want a smart meter on your home, some state utility companies will allow you to opt out. However, in most opt-out states the utility company charges a fee if you do not have a smart meter on your home. ★

This NTP evidence is greatly strengthening the evidence of risk, is sufficient to reclassify cellphone radiation as a known cancer-causing agent, and confirms the inadequacy of existing public safety limits.”

The BioInitiative organization reports the cell-phone study “proves that non-ionizing radiation can plausibly cause cancer, not just ionizing radiation like x-rays, and puts to rest the traditional scientific argument that cell phone radiation can’t do harm.”

As alarming as the study and commentary are, there’s more bad news: The FCC is seeking to make it easier to install more “small cell” wireless antenna sites by “streamlining the permitting process.”

If you want to complain based on safety grounds to your local representatives that these wireless antenna sites shouldn’t be permitted near your home, business, school, or public space, you should remember that the 1996 Telecommunications Act gave the FCC exclusive jurisdiction to determine “safe” limits, preempting any local bodies from examining questions of health.

The BioInitiative organization has submitted a paper opposing the FCC’s proposal, signed by Cindy Sage, M.A., Lennart Hardell, M.D., Ph.D., and David O. Carpenter, M.D. They argue: “Health consequences have not been identified nor been factored into public safety limits. This is particularly true for the new 5G wireless technologies using millimeter wave frequencies (~28 GHz to ~71 GHz) that will be transmitted by small cells in the future. Adey (1993) warns: ‘Biomolecular and cell research in this spectral region has been meager. There may be special significance to biomolecular interactions with millimeter wave EM fields. At frequencies within the range 10-1,000 GHz, resonant vibrational or rotational interactions, not seen at lower frequencies, may occur with molecules or portions of molecules.’”

Sage, Hardell, and Carpenter note the FCC has not actually studied the safety of “non-thermal, low-intensity effects of chronic exposure to 900 MHz to the low GHz frequencies. . . . There is no basis for the FCC to make a positive assertion of safety of existing RF levels to which the public is perpetually exposed. Certainly unaddressed health concerns should stop the FCC from expediting new wireless technologies facilitating new small cell siting and satellite RF sources. The existing FCC public safety limits are grossly inadequate to protect public health from the body burden of the existing proliferation of RF-emitting devices and the wireless infrastructure supporting them, let alone from new RF sources that will make the situation worse for public health. There is a broad consensus that new, biologically based public safety limits for chronic exposure are warranted, given the scientific and public health evidence for health risks from low-intensity radiofrequency radiation exposures from wireless technology applications.”

Few would like to return to a pre-technological world, but, clearly, there is a need to know the actual risks of electromagnetic pollution and take measures to minimize harm. ★

Is Mayhem in Chicago “God’s Punishment”?

• Rev. David Manning says blacks need to look hard at their leaders and find new ones

By Dave Gahary

Barely in office three weeks, President Donald J. Trump has made no fewer than four public statements on the killings that are consuming Chicago, the third-most populous city in the United States. The Windy City—33% black, 31% white, 29% Hispanic—has been rocked by a murder-by-gun-and-knife epidemic that has even the most jaded and cynical on edge. While over 75% of those killed last year were black, around 20% Hispanic, and less than 5% white, no one has been spared, from infants to senior citizens.

After experiencing a decline in homicides, Chicago saw nearly 800 murdered in 2016, the worst in 20 years and a 58% surge from 2015.

On Jan. 24, Trump warned, “If Chicago doesn’t fix the horrible ‘carnage’ going on, 228 shootings in 2017 with 42 killings (up 24% from 2016), I will send in the feds!”

Two weeks after Trump’s “tweet,” the death toll has increased by 50%, hitting 63 on Feb. 6.

One reason for the rise in murders may be police tactics. Street stops, a preventive measure with proven success, have been steadily declining “since early 2014, when they peaked at 80,000 stops per month,” reported The Atlantic magazine the same day Trump tweeted his warning. By October of the following year they were down to 60,000 per month, and a mere two months later plunged to 10,000.

Not everyone is convinced, however, that the blood in the streets, parks, and homes can be ascribed to mere mortal undertakings. One of those is the wildly popular black pastor James David Manning, who has been heading a church for the past 35 years in Harlem, N.Y. Manning was born in 1947, when America was still a segregated society.

Harlem, a neighborhood in northern Manhattan, has, since the 1920s, been a major black enclave. In 1910, only 10% of Harlem was black, but that soared to 70% by 1930, due to the “Great Migration” of over 6 million blacks from the South. The black population reached 98% in 1950, dropping to 77% in 2000 and steadily declining since then.

AMERICAN FREE PRESS spoke with Manning on Feb. 6 to discuss the situation in Chicago. Manning, a few weeks shy of his 70th birthday, was born and raised in rural North Carolina and lived through the era known as “Jim Crow.” Jim Crow referred to state and local laws—enacted after Reconstruction and dismantled by 1965—that codified racial segregation in the South. Although the American South’s Jim Crow laws were de jure, meaning officially sanctioned, the North’s Jim Crow laws were de facto, meaning not officially sanctioned but still in place.

“I drank from colored water fountains,” Manning told AFP, “and I was not permitted to sit down in a restaurant in the very town I grew up in. If I ordered something, I had to go to a side window.”

Things have changed a bit, says Manning, but not always for the better. Currently, though, his cousin is the police chief in the small North Carolina town in which he grew up. This could never have been so in Manning’s younger days.

Manning has an answer for the orgy of killing in Chi-Town: “It’s the judgment of God.”

Manning pointed out that Chicago is the home city of Barack Hussein Obama, Jesse Jackson, Louis Farrakhan, Oprah Winfrey, and Jeremiah Wright, the so-called black leaders of the modern era, who have all become fabulously wealthy by exploiting the race card.

“God is providing the spirit and power for the killing as his judgment,” Manning continued. “And until black America begins to look at who they are and look at how wretched their leaders are, what they have done, and how they have sown these terrible seeds, the killings are going to continue.”

Manning—one of the most vocal participants in the “birther movement,” pulled no punches in his critique of Barack Obama.

“Barack Obama’s presidency, and what he has done to black people nationally and globally, is far worse. [Chicago] is just a microcosm. What has happened to families, where black men have abdicated their responsibility toward their children, [impregnating] these girls, and then leaving them to fend for themselves, not knowing where their next meal is coming from, living on government handouts, living in rat- and roach-infested buildings . . . this is across the board in the black community.”

The black family, he lamented, was actually in better shape in many ways during the era of Jim Crow than it is now. Over 90% of black families at that time had fathers in the household, he pointed out.

Thus he blames Obama for failing to preach a message of accountability to African-Americans, when he had the biggest bully pulpit in the world and the perfect opportunity to do so.

Manning believes the election of Donald Trump was white America’s “backlash” against the perceived disfranchisement of the majority race in America that was spearheaded by Obama.

He provided this warning about “Tribulation Trump,” as he calls the new president: “Donald Trump needs psychiatric help. He is sick as hell. He’s a psychopath. He ain’t gonna do any of the things he said he is going to do.”

Supreme Court Not Beyond Reach: Congress Can Impeach Justices

Contrary to popular myth, Supreme Court appointments are not for life, but are subject to the condition of good behavior. This means fidelity to the text of the Constitution. Congress should impeach and remove from the bench all federal judges guilty of judicial activism, "legislating" from the bench, in usurpation of the authority of Congress.

Article I section 1 of the Constitution gives full legislative authority to a bicameral Congress. This leaves zero legislative authority to either the executive or judicial branches of government. So Supreme Court rulings are in no way binding upon the nation. They are only binding upon the parties to the legal action before the court.

Law courts are supposed to be impartial and independent from either of the other two branches of government. It should therefore be an impeachable offense for either the Congress or the executive branch to attempt to "ideologically pack" the court in order to rubber-stamp the policies of the other two government branches. By no means should any one branch of government owe anything to the other two.

America's founding fathers established three separate and independent branches of government, so as to keep the government honest and free of corruption. Today, integrity of government operation remains of prime importance. Justice corrupted and debauched is no justice at all. Justices who substitute their own personal preferences for Constitution mandates should be impeached and taken off the bench on charge of unconstitutional judicial activism.

Article VI declares the Constitution to be the supreme law of the land, and all decisions, judicial and legislative, must be in pursuance thereof.

Fake News?

Common sense versus fake news? I choose common sense. Perhaps this tale has been aired before and I just missed it.

Shortly after the takedown of Saddam and Iraq, I was listening to the "Coast to Coast" radio show late one evening. A man identifying himself as a former Iraqi soldier called in. He said he had been stationed at the airport in Baghdad. The night before the invasion, or start-up of the war, he witnessed this event.

A line of cars approached the terminal just as a plane was coming in for a landing. The doors opened and the cars drove right onto the plane, and when all was secured it flew off again. He said he realized what was happening: The war was starting. Frightened, changing clothes, he left his post and returned home where he hid out for weeks.

Now, this tale may seem far-fetched to some, but I believe it makes more "common sense" than the story that Saddam, an extremely wealthy, knowledgeable person with access to transportation, should be found hiding in a "rabbit hole."

I discussed this tale with some people I knew who were Assyrian Christians from Iraq. None of them believed the story that Saddam was hiding in a hole in the ground. They still had access to friends in Iraq and said they were investigating the person claimed to be Saddam who was being held by Iraqi and U.S. forces. Saddam had many doubles used for security purposes. The one clue they were hung up on was that the man on trial had different ears than "the real McCoy."

This tale makes more common sense to me than all the others I have read concerning Saddam. I believe he and his sons are still alive somewhere. His sons' deaths were also very mysterious. If Saddam took his money with him, he is not hurting for comfort.

Emails in Cold Storage

As of now, President Trump has put the incriminating Clinton emails in cold storage. Does this mean this is the last we'll hear of them? Not necessarily. Should Hillary decide to try again in 2020, I'm sure the president will thaw them out.

And should Hillary and Bill decide to be constant critics of the president's policies, he might thaw them out sooner. But the Clintons are aware of this, so Hillary must be climbing the wall in frustration because of having her nasty tongue corralled like this.

Barack Obama is a totally different story, because he may try for an encore performance in 2020. Historically, Grover Cleveland did it in 1892, and Teddy Roosevelt tried in 1912 but lost to Wilson.

Ohio

(Those were different situations. According to the pertinent portion of the text of the 22nd Amendment, passed by the U.S. Congress on March 21, 1947 and later ratified by the requisite number of states on Feb. 27, 1951: "Section 1. No person shall be elected to the office of the President more than twice." But, we are talking about Barack Obama here, so maybe it's possible. If, in 2020, you hear of a golden-tongued man, about 60 years old, named Barry, claiming he was born in, say, Hawaii, who bears a strong resemblance to Barack Hussein Obama, please alert us immediately.—Ed.)

No Need to Hate Russia

It's hard for me to believe that so many people are blind. The protesters are causing the hate they claim to protest against. They should be grateful that we now have a president who is not afraid to say it as it is. We have been lied to long enough. His friendship with Russia is great. It might save us from an atomic war that could destroy both of our countries. The protesters are either dumb or just plain traitors that don't want to give our country a chance to prosper.

The End of Christianity

In regard to Dr. Kevin Barrett's article in the Jan. 30 and Feb. 6 edition, left out of this discussion is the obvious Israeli and Zionist intention of destroying all the last remnants of Christianity in the Middle East.

All those Arab elites that succumb to the graft, bribes, and political pressure of the Zionists understand that suppression of Christianity is the one non-negotiable in the "deal." Those countries that will not succumb are targeted for destruction by their surrogates, the U.S. and NATO, especially if those nations are peaceful and prosperous, nationalistic, and most of all, protective of their ancient Christian minorities.

These wars for Israel and Zion naturally inflame Islamic jihad and the persecution, expulsion, rape, and murder of the Christian populations.

Islamic radicalism is blamed, but the real source and first cause is Judaic radicalism. We've seen it in every war and CIA-orchestrated coup we have involved ourselves in at Zion's behest since the Balfour Declaration.

A Knife in the Back?

Presumably the whole point of Trump's presidency will be to discredit national self-determination in the eyes of the Western public. The reasonable middle, ordinary working men and women, who turned to Trump as the only hope for their loss of jobs and the decay and corruption of their cities, will turn away in horror at Trump's Zionist excess and once again embrace globalism as if there is no alternative.

Kevin, We Are With You

I'd like to comment on Dave Gahary's article on Oregon shop-owner Kevin Kerwin [in the Jan. 30 and Feb 6 issue]. Thank you for speaking the truth right out in front of the former Land of the Free. I do not understand how so many citizens could have been convinced that communism is good for our country—formerly, the land of the free.

Kevin, You're Not Alone

Kevin Kerwin, you are not alone. Just know those "idiots," also known as liberals and protesters, really and truly are communists. I wish I had the opportunity to write an article showing the details that makes this true. It would be a very long article.

Sen. Joe McCarthy was absolutely right, including his list of names, and it is now proven. McCarthy has been vindicated, so know your enemies live among you and us, and we fight powers and principalities you do not fully understand.

Take care, my far away friend.
