BOOK BURNING

Amazon.com bows to pressure after blitzkrieg against freedom of speech

By Paul Angel

“Who controls the past, controls the future,” or so said George Orwell in his prescient book 1984. He also warned that, “The most effective way to destroy people is to deny and obliterate their own understanding of their history.” Today, it seems the global thought censors are taking Mr. Orwell literally. As we went to press, we received word that, so far, hundreds of history books and e-publications have been removed in one fell swoop from the largest and most lucrative vending website in the world—Amazon.com, owned and run by Jeff Bezos (currently worth at least $73.4 billion, according to Forbes Magazine). Note that Amazon by itself accounted for 31% of all online sales on Cyber Weekend 2016 and 61% of all online sales growth in 2015, far surpassing all others.

Most of the books removed from Amazon deal with alternative views of World War II history, including hundreds of scholarly tomes by chemists, scientists, researchers, and philosophers who question taboo details about WWII that are illegal to discuss in a dozen or more European nations. Obviously, Bezos did not want to deal with this growing public relations nightmare.

Revisionist historian Germar Rudolf, one of the world’s most reputable revisionist scholars, informed us that Castle Hill Publishers had 68 print books and 72 e-books removed for sale from Amazon.

Anti-Zionist Jewish philosopher Gerard Menuhin saw his book Tell the Truth and Shame the Devil—a book about Zionist power—removed from Amazon in the blink of an eye. The Bad War: The Truth Never Taught About World War II by Michael King, a book touching on the role of the Rothschilds in fomenting unrest in Europe before WWII, was also banned. Peter Winter’s The Six Million: Fact or Fiction,* was specifically singled out by Yad Vashem, Israel’s official Holocaust museum, as particularly onerous. We expect more book burnings to come in the very near future.

So how does one so efficiently carry out the biggest book banning since 60,000 titles were removed from the shelves of German libraries after World War II by the victorious powers? Who holds such power over companies like Amazon and Google and YouTube, who represent, together, net worths of somewhere approaching a trillion dollars?

Among other groups concerned about maintaining political correctness on the Internet, a group called the Board of Deputies of British Jews (BDBJ) takes partial credit, along with Yad Vashem and the World Jewish Congress. According to BDBJ VP Marie van der Zyl, “It is very welcome that Amazon has listened and removed the offending titles from their website. These are not works of historical integrity. They are an anti-Semitic attempt to exonerate the Nazis of their crimes and to stoke the fires of hatred.”

Historian Rudolf had this to say: “The sweeping mass ban enforced within hours, and the senseless aimlessness and random nature with which it was implemented, clearly show that these books were not pulled because their content was checked and found impermissible, but because someone (probably Yad Vashem Holocaust Memorial Museum) had sent [Bezos] a list of items to ban, and Amazon simply complied by checking off all the items on that list.”

A PERSONAL MESSAGE FROM THE EXECUTIVE EDITOR

Fake News Media Outlets Showing True Colors

As AMERICAN FREE PRESS goes to press this week, Donald Trump has only been in office for two months, and the divide between what the “fake news” media is reporting and what’s really going on could not be wider. It seems like, every day, the press in Washington works itself into a frothy lather over every speech, every statement, every executive order, every decision, reacting to them as if Trump were ordering mass arrests and murdering his critics.

In all fairness, there were no temper tantrums from the Washington press corps when President Barack Obama doubled the national debt over the course of eight years and ordered law enforcement to deport millions of illegal immigrants and start groping little old ladies in airports. And we cannot forget how The New York Times, The Washington Post, CNN, and PBS fawned over Republican George W. Bush’s administration despite the fact that Dick Cheney, Paul Wolfowitz, Condoleezza Rice, and Colin Powell blatantly lied to the American public about 9/11 and Iraq.

But when it comes to Trump, all we hear are jarring shrieks from Washington that Trump is tearing down everything that presidents before him had worked so hard to build.

From our perspective, the reaction to Trump’s first two months in office is so excessive that it would be comical were this country not facing such serious threats to our future.

So what has Trump done in the past two months?

Most importantly, it looks like his America-first policies are bringing jobs back to the country. New employment figures show that U.S. companies created an unprecedented number of new jobs in February, which include a whopping 32,000 new manufacturing jobs—a huge improvement over his predecessors.

The past hemorrhaging of factories out of the U.S. appears to have stopped, as several international corporations—Samsung, Apple, Stanley Black & Decker, and Sun Paper Industry to name but a few—are planning to open new plants in struggling states like North Carolina, Ohio, and Arkansas.

When it comes to foreign policy, the Trump administration has made moves to ease relations with the Russians and begin to work together to fight radical terrorism in the Middle East. The added benefit of this will be that it will bring peace to countries like Syria and slow the refugee crisis, which has brought waves of immigrants fleeing to Europe and the United States to escape the bloody violence in North Africa and the Middle East.

Trump has also stepped up efforts to ensure the safety of all Americans by putting immigration under the microscope, a positive move that could help to prevent future terrorist attacks in the U.S.

Finally, the Trump administration is working to dismantle the legacy left behind by free-trading globalists and level the playing field for iconic American companies like Harley-Davidson, which have faced steep tariffs and value-added taxes when they sought to do business abroad.

In less than two months in office, Trump has made significant moves to keep his campaign promises—something unheard of in this day where politicians routinely make promises on the campaign trail that they have no plans to keep once elected.

Despite these gains, every day, Trump is mocked and ridiculed by the Washington press corps and the entertainment industry. And that begs the question, why would anyone in America, who actually wants objective, fair, accurate news, still read and watch the mainstream media?

There really is a simple solution. If you want the truth, subscribe to AMERICAN FREE PRESS in print and on the Internet. We will always tell it like it is—no matter who might be triggered, shocked, or offended.

News You May Have Missed

Jobs Boom

U.S. companies added a whopping 298,000 new jobs in February, beating expectations by more than 100,000. The figures released by ADP, a human resources and payroll company, provide key economic numbers from Donald Trump's first full month as president. Trump celebrated the news, saying, these "were the strongest consecutive months for hiring since August and September 2015." Construction jobs increased by 66,000, and the manufacturing sector added 32,000 to its rolls.

Cutting Big Government

In a Fox News interview, President Donald Trump revealed the reason he has not filled hundreds of vacant federal positions—it's a deliberate effort to shrink the overgrown central government. He said, "When I see a story about 'Donald Trump didn't fill hundreds and hundreds of government jobs,' it's because, in many cases, we don't want to fill those jobs." It was pointed out he has 600 empty positions (out of more than 4,000 roles for political appointees in the system). "A lot of those jobs, I don't want to appoint, because they're unnecessary . . ." he explained. "[W]e have so many people in government . . . What do all these people do? You don't need all those jobs." We'll soon see if the president is right.

Cold War Again

Supporters of President Donald Trump's apparent friendship with Russian leader Vladimir Putin and his admiration for Russia itself are wondering why Washington continues to send U.S. troops to Europe. The 10th Mountain Division's Blackhawk attack helicopters arrived recently in Latvia, on Russia's doorstep. They are part of a brigade that has sent 2,200 GIs to the Baltic state, as well as Germany and Romania, for a nine-month tour of training. The deployment is in turn part of Operation Atlantic Resolve, which has sent 5,800 soldiers to Europe so far, including a 400-strong armored division aviation regiment; and these are added to the 70,000 U.S. troops permanently stationed in Europe.

Wiretapping Everyone

While the mockingbird media are challenging President Donald Trump's accusation that Barack Obama wiretapped him during the 2016 presidential election race, those allegations are not lacking in credibility—because it wouldn't be the first time. In the past, Obama has wiretapped many people, including: WikiLeaks journalists, reporter Sharyl Attkisson, members of Associated Press, a Fox News reporter, European leaders Nicolas Sarkozy, Angela Merkel, and Silvio Berlusconi, other top Italian officials, top EU economic officials, EU and Japanese trade ministers, WTO official Johann Human, the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, and former UN Sec. Gen. Ban Ki-Moon.

Commonsense Rules

On the Senate floor March 7, Sen. Steve Daines (R-Mont.) spoke in favor of House Joint Res. 44, which would prevent the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) from centralizing all its decisions in Washington and freezing out local, state, and tribal input on land use. On Feb. 7, H.J. Res. 44 passed the U.S. House by a vote of 234-186—challenging a Department of the Interior rule issued during Barack Obama's final days as president and published in the Federal Register in December. Daines noted that Montana's miners and ranchers, western governors, and others want the rule re-examined. Daines urged his colleagues to work with Trump and new Interior Secretary Ryan Zinke, a Montanan, to fight the rule and restore "western commonsense land management," right when rancher Cliven Bundy's federal trial is highlighting the BLM's mismanagement of vast amounts of western lands.

End of Globalism

At a recent technology conference that brought together some of the wealthiest tech executives in the world, billionaire investor Peter Thiel told a crowd of attendees that the election of Trump showed that the tide is going out on globalism. No one would even think of putting "global" in their business name anymore, he added. He also took aim at international bankers and financial speculators, saying, "A decade ago, this was a group of people who were running the world. . . . And now, it's just a group of people who messed up the world."

Factories Open in U.S.

In a positive sign of the times, two major Chinese corporations recently announced that they would be opening factories in the United States following statements by President Donald Trump that he would be slapping tariffs on the U.S. border to help level the playing field for American workers and companies. Fuyao Glass, a billion-dollar company that manufactures window panes in China, recently announced it will be building a factory in the Ohio town of Moraine, a suburb of Dayton. Chinese executives with Tianyuan Garment, which produces clothes for brands like Adidas, Reebok, and Armani, said they will be taking over a defunct 100,000-square-foot metal fabrications plant in Little Rock, Ark., to begin making clothes in the United States. America-first policies work.

Good Gun Control

An altercation was under way at a Topeka, Kan. Walmart parking lot on March 4, with one man wielding a baseball bat and another one a knife. The man with the knife had stabbed the other man when a heroic citizen noticed the fight and drew his handgun to put the kibosh to it. As reported by Breitbart News, the citizen held the two men to the ground at gunpoint until off-duty police officer Joshua Klamm was able to rush to the scene and take over. Both men were booked for aggravated battery.

Judge Helps Illegal Alien

Judge Monica Herranz in Multnomah County, Ore. is under investigation for helping an illegal alien escape capture by agents of Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). The court referee is "under internal review and the target of complaints from a federal prosecutor after allegedly helping the undocumented immigrant elude ICE . . . by exiting the courtroom through an employee [only] door," according to reporter Corey Pein of the Willamette Week. The young man, Mexican Diddier Pacheco Salazar, in his mid-20s, was in the court on charges of driving recklessly and being under the influence of alcohol or drugs. Portland considers itself a "sanctuary city" for illegal aliens, but Trump has signed executive orders stepping up deportations and declaring the "sanctuary cities" could lose federal funding. Salazar and his attorney, John Schlosser, were aware feds were waiting outside the front of the courthouse, and Schlosser admits he told the man what his options were.

Illegal Alien Crimes

Conservative news outlets are reporting that two MS-13 gang members who have been accused of raping two Texas teen girls and killing one of them are illegal aliens from El Salvador. Apparently proud of their deeds, the suspects, Diego Rivera, 18, and Miguel Alvarez-Flores, 18, grinned and waved at cameras during their first court appearance after their arrest. After one of the girls, 15, "disrespected" a "shrine" in the apartment of one of the culprits, they took her to a road in southwest Houston and shot her to death, prosecutors told the court. The other girl tortured by the men is 14.

Real Healthcare Reform

While Vice President Mike Pence was dispatched to Capitol Hill to support "repeal and replace" legislation for Obamacare, Sen. Rand Paul (R-Ky.) argued that conservative factions in Congress have the votes to derail such legislation. "The House Freedom Caucus has enormous power," Paul said. "So do the conservatives in the Senate if they stay together." Paul is among those Republicans who feel the Trump replacement plan is still too similar to Obamacare. He has floated his own "replace" option consisting of sizable tax credits and health savings accounts. The Senate side also has the Patient Freedom Act as a possible replacement, while the House has the American Health Care Act. All we know is premiums have gone up dramatically under Obamacare and deductibles can be as much or more than $6,000 for each family member right now.

Leftists Try to Ruin Trump Marches

• Fake media belittles huge charitable events featuring all walks of life

By Mark Anderson

AUSTIN, Texas—Donald Trump supporters gathered in spite of heavy rain for a “March 4 Trump” rally in the Texas capital. They had clearly had enough of media diatribes against Trump—apparently calculated to defame and destabilize the new president and his administration after only two months in office. Many people sense that a fair, accurate journalistic critique of the 45th president is too much of a stretch for the mainstream media.

The Austin supporters, like those who gathered in cities nationwide, had also had their fill of anti-Trump protestors littering, destroying property, attacking Trump supporters or threatening to do so—including singer Madonna’s Jan. 21 call to “blow up” the White House.

At a March 4 Trump rally in St. Paul, Minn., where organizers say close to 1,000 pro-Trump participants showed up, six anti-Trump agitators fled after setting off fireworks inside the state capitol, but were arrested and face felony riot charges.

During another pro-Trump rally March 4 in Berkeley, Calif., several people were injured and at least 10 arrested in an altercation between opposing camps.

Austin, St. Paul, and Berkeley were far from the only venues where Trump supporters hit the streets that day. March 4 Trump press agent Tori Alby of Nevada told AFP that such marches took place in 52 cities and towns. Las Vegas was among the largest with estimates exceeding 1,000 marchers, Ms. Alby said, adding that opposing marchers didn’t number more than 50 anywhere.

The March 4 Trump events, conceived by Air Force veteran Vincent Haney, were organized to give Trump crucial support, to oppose the unfair anti-Trump national press coverage, and to counter the actions of counter-protestors who, abusing their right of free speech and assembly, have torched cars and shattered storefronts in their rage over corrupt internationalist-insider Hillary Clinton losing the presidential race.

MARCHERS’ PERSPECTIVES

“These [anti-Trump] protestors are just hurting their own cause, just like the Democrats when they showed no support for Trump during his speech [before Congress],” a Texas car dealer named Mike told AFP in a restaurant after the Austin rally. “And the media is only hurting itself.”

In Austin, Priscilla Duran, a conservative Hispanic student at the liberal University of Texas/Rio Grande Valley, said she was glad to see these rallies happening “so we can come together as a nation and support our president.”

Speakers at the rallies in Austin and elsewhere called for unity in the face of what organizers called

Don't believe the fake media. There are a lot of legal immigrants who don't appreciate people entering the U.S. illegally. These Trump supporters were photographed by AFP's Mark Anderson at a rally in Texas.

“a seditious fringe” working to sabotage Trump’s vision for America while risking a virtual civil war.

Ms. Alby noted there was a charitable undercurrent at the events, as food drives for the homeless were part of the pro-Trump rallies. Among the 300 or so pro-Trump marchers in Austin was a small “LGBTQ for Trump” group of gay activists as well as a “Hispanics for Trump” group.

Furthermore, some pro-Trump and anti-Trump marchers managed to mend fences and stop their fighting.

Ms. Duran, who was with the Hispanic group, told AFP that people approached her early at the Austin rally and asked her what it’s like to be a Hispanic Trump supporter from the generally liberal Rio Grande Valley—comprised of the southernmost counties that border Mexico.

She replied that there are many Hispanics, including women, in the valley and around the nation who support Trump’s advocacy of strict border security and insistence that Mexicans and others wanting to come to the U.S. should do so legally and responsibly.

But a stubborn stereotype, promoted via media and academia, suggests Hispanics who disagree with liberal immigration policies are traitors to their people. A Hispanic woman who sang the national anthem at the Austin rally lamented that pro-Trump Hispanics are often called “anti-Hispanic, anti-Mexican.”

“They’re always trying to put the same blanket over everyone,” Ms. Duran told AFP.

Elsewhere, Trump supporters waving signs and flags listened to speeches during a rally at Neshaminy State Park in eastern Pennsylvania.

“They . . . love what Donald Trump represents, which is . . . about making America first,” rally organizer Jim Worthington was quoted as saying by local media.

The Erie Times-News reported that about 100 people gathered in downtown Erie, Penn., where retired cosmetologist Linda Pezzino told the crowd, “Trump has done more in three weeks than Obama did in eight years.”

BACKGROUND

While peaceful pro-Trump rallies took place across America, the fake media continues to insist that Russia could not be anything other than an arch-enemy of the U.S., and, therefore, anyone associated with Trump who in any way conversed or merely crossed paths with a Russian official is a traitor.

But the question isn’t so much whether Trump’s new Attorney General Jeff Sessions spoke with a Russian envoy; the core question is why talking to a Russian official, especially an ambassador, should be defined as a bad thing.

The media’s anti-Russian narrative is hampering Trump’s important goal to improve relations with a strong Russian Federation which, as AFP reports have shown, has exercised restraint in the face of U.S. belligerence.

Russia has not conducted military exercises that even compare with NATO’s provocative exercises—with tanks, missile-defense batteries, and ranks of armed soldiers parked at Russia’s border.

And as the expansionist NATO alliance continues enlisting more member-nations, imagine the hue and cry if Russian forces were to mass along Canada’s border with the U.S. ★

Jesus' Lost Words revealed in ancient scroll buried for nearly 2,000 years

- Did the Son of God revealed an “ancient medicine” to His apostles that has the power to restore long-term memory in just FOUR days?

By Cecil Harvey, Health Correspondant

Biblical scholars call it one of “the most extraordinary archeological discoveries in the modern world...” but only recently have we begun to understand just how important it is.

In December 1945, while digging for fertile soil for his crops, a local farmer stumbled onto this ancient scroll near Nag Hammadi, Egypt. At first, he thought it was just a worthless piece of paper. But soon after, scholars translated the first words from ancient Greek:

“These are the hidden words that the living Jesus spoke...”

And knew they had found something extraordinary. As you’re about to see, these lost words from Jesus reveal a fast-acting, natural remedy that researchers from Scientific American, The Alzheimer’s Research Foundation and the Wake Forest University School of Medicine confirm has the potential to begin reversing some of the worse symptoms of Alzheimer’s in as little as FOUR days.

MRI images from a renowned Harvard scientist have also confirmed the health benefits of this “medicine.” In fact, more than 600 scientific papers have confirmed that these “lost words of Jesus” hold the power to keep our brains young.

Julie G., 49, knows exactly how devastating Alzheimer’s disease can be.

A couple of years ago, she started experiencing some terrible episodes of memory lapse.

Doctors soon confirmed Julie’s worst fear — she was diagnosed with early stage Alzheimer’s disease.

Within just a few months of using this “ancient medicine,” along with a few other lifestyle changes, she felt a dramatic improvement in brain function. Her mental functions have tested better than 90% of the population.

Mary J., 56, had been struggling with memory loss for two years.

She struggled analyzing data and writing reports at work and considered quitting her job.

That’s when she desperately started looking for solutions... and came across Jesus’s lost words.

Using this comprehensive program, her memory problems vanished. She was not only able to go back to work, but also became much more productive.

Julie and Mary are just two of the thousands of Americans who have discovered the power of this healing protocol.

Kristen B., in Texas, saw results in just a couple of months.

She says:

“[This] has been one of the most profound things I’ve ever undertaken. Two months in and I feel like a new person. The level of focus I have now is unprecedented.”

John D., from Minnesota, simply said:

“A miracle happened. My memory improved.”

Armed with brain imaging technology, scientist are now confirming the healing power of this “ancient medicine.”

Imagine being able to:

- ✓ Keep your mind razor sharp...
- ✓ Melt away anxiety...
- ✓ Ease arthritis pain...
- ✓ Sleep like a baby...
- ✓ Lower your blood pressure...
- ✓ And live a longer, healthier life.

No more doctors frowning at your blood pressure readings...

No more anxiety, stress, or feeling uneasy or sad for no apparent reason...

No more suffering from joint pain or discomfort...

Nothing left but a fitter, sharper, more youthful you... feeling better

AFP Attends Anarchapulco Confab

• Libertarians, anarcho-capitalists discuss future of freedom movement in Mexico

By John Friend

ACAPULCO, Mexico—Anarchapulco, billed as “the world’s premier conference for voluntaryist thinkers and activists,” recently wrapped up in the breathtakingly beautiful city of Acapulco, Mexico. This author was one of the hundreds of individuals from around the world to have been lucky enough to attend.

Featuring a wide array of speakers from libertarian and anarchist perspectives, the 2017 conference—the third of its kind since the gathering was first organized in 2015—was held at the fabulous Resort Mundo Imperial, an elegant hotel, resort, and convention center in Acapulco’s Diamante district, a short drive from the historic downtown and city center of the world renowned Mexican resort and tourist attraction.

Organized largely by Jeff Berwick, a leading libertarian and anarcho-capitalist activist who maintains “The Dollar Vigilante” website, this year’s conference featured a number of notable speakers, including G. Edward Griffin, Foster Gamble, Adam Kokesh, Max Igan, Lauren Southern, Luke Rudkowski, Jeffrey Tucker, and Larken Rose, among many others.

The conference aimed to “bring together hundreds of principled anarchists to share ideas on how to live free and build a better world” and undoubtedly achieved its goal. In addition to libertarian and anarchist perspectives offered through-cussion throughout the conference. Based on the conversations this writer had with numerous participants, many attendees made the journey to Anarchapulco primarily due to their interest in bitcoin and its potential as an alternative to the U.S. dollar and other globalist-controlled currencies. The value of bitcoin, which is bought and sold through a variety of online currency platforms, has increased tremendously since its founding in 2008, with the price of one bitcoin currently valued at over $1,200. One year ago, one bitcoin was worth between $300 and $400.

Other attendees came to network with like-minded activists, listen to alternative political and philosophical perspectives not heard elsewhere, and just enjoy the sunshine and views of Acapulco.

“I attended mainly for the people—the speakers and the amazing attendees,” Ray Robinson, an American who also attended Anarchapulco last year, explained to this reporter. “What initially interested me was tax-free offshore accounts and meeting like-minded people who’ve set up expatriate communities outside the U.S., particularly in Acapulco.”

Berwick, originally from Canada, currently resides in Acapulco, and many attendees at the conference expressed interest in relocating there or to other parts of Mexico.

Acapulco, often described in the media as a dangerous and unsafe city due primarily to Mexican drug cartels and corrupt police, proved to be quite a hospitable, friendly, and safe city, from this writer’s perspective and experience. A variety of Mexican police, law enforcement, military, and private security officials openly patrolled the city and streets, making their presence known to any potential criminals.

Anarchapulco 2017 proved to be a major success and once again demonstrated how more and more people from around the world are becoming energized, emboldened, and determined to create alternatives to the globalist system of debt, endless war, and degeneracy. ★

Lovely Mexican girls in modern garb based on traditional Aztec styles were there to greet attendees.

Did Chinese Regime-Change Plot Fail?

• North Korean leader may have found out about planned coup and ordered murder

By Richard Walker

The meticulously planned assassination in a Malaysian airport of Kim Jong Nam, the older half-brother of North Korea's leader, Kim Jong Un, was like the plot of a spy novel, but missing from much of the coverage was the hidden hand of China.

Nam was casually making his way through Kuala Lumpur international airport on Feb. 13 to fly back to his home in Macau, a small Chinese territory best known for its gambling and high rollers, when his life came to an abrupt end within a span of 15 minutes. Two young local women, in what onlookers assumed was a prank, came up behind him, rubbed a cloth against his face and fled. Within minutes he was suffering from breathlessness, blurred vision, and nausea. Security staff moved him to a medical room where he collapsed and died. It was as if he had been bitten by one of the world's deadliest snakes, but the substance that killed him was instead a highly toxic chemical weapon known as VX.

A colorless liquid, VX can only be weaponized in a miniature form by a highly sophisticated chemical weapons laboratory like those run by the major powers and a few nations like Israel and North Korea. There is no means of detecting it, making it easy to transport across national boundaries. There is also no known antidote. Once it touches the skin or eyes, as it did in this case, death comes in minutes.

VX can be used by the military in a gas form dispersed in missiles. A small quantity will kill an entire city's population. Assassins have to be specially trained to transfer even a microscopic quantity to a cloth, as occurred in this case.

The two female assassins were patsies, who had been coached for their role. One claimed she was paid $90 and believed she was participating in a television prank. The two were quickly apprehended, but not the two four-man teams of North Korean intelligence operatives lurking nearby. One team left on a flight to North Korea shortly after the killing, and the one that stayed behind tried, but failed, to steal Nam's corpse from the local coroner's office.

Two hit teams would have been standard procedure of a kind frequently used by Mossad assassins. One team would have remained close to the action, with the other ready at the last moment to deliver a lethal VX dose to Nam if the first attempt had failed.

The killing had echoes of Mossad's botched attempt to kill Hamas leader Khaled Meshaal in 1977 in Amman, Jordan with a syringe filled with a chemical weapon, as well as the 2006 murder of defector Alexander Litvinenko in London. It is believed that Russian assassins slipped Litvinenko a minuscule dose of weaponized polonium 210—an atomic element—by putting it in his tea at a meeting in a London hotel.

Above, Malaysian healthcare workers in hazmat gear are shown checking for evidence of the highly toxic chemical weapon known as VX nerve agent in the Kuala Lumpur International Airport. Below, Vietnamese Doan Thi Huong, in yellow shirt, arrives at the Sepang Court Complex in Malaysia. She and an Indonesian woman, Siti Aisyah, are accused of killing Kim Jong Nam, the half-brother of the North Korean leader Kim Jong Un. Inside sources allege the women, who they say thought were playing a prank, are patsies of the North Korean government.

So how did Kim Jong Un come to order the murder of his older half-brother, who had once been their late father Kim Jong Il's choice to succeed him? First, one has to examine the Kim family history. Nam fell out of favor with his father after he tried to leave the country with his family for a trip to Disneyland, using bogus Portuguese passports. The matter became an international scandal, and in 2001 he was forced into exile.

While he traveled a lot, Nam had a wife and children in Macau under the watchful eyes of its Chinese overlords. While he had a reputation for gambling, it was exaggerated in the mass media. In fact, he was well read and became openly critical of the dynastic rule of his half-brother. He spent most of his life in top hotels in Macau, but his family remained in a seaside villa.

He was aware his opposition to the North Korean regime might result in assassins being sent to eliminate him. Friends say he pleaded with his brother to leave him and his family alone. He was often accompanied by two female bodyguards and was advised not to stray far from Macau where the Chinese could watch him. He believed that since rich North Koreans gambled in Macau, hid money in its banks, and bought Western goods there, his half-brother would not jeopardize that arrangement by killing him there.

According to a British intelligence source who spoke to this writer on condition of anonymity, in the past year China became so concerned about Un's erratic behavior and missile launches that it began to imagine a North Korea without him. It was convinced North Koreans would accept Nam as a dynastic replacement.

While China ruminated about how to get rid of Un, it is believed that his spies discovered what they were up to. The story is Un decided to outsmart the Chinese and strike first. By killing his potential successor in Malaysia, and not on Chinese territory, he ensured that China had no grounds to retaliate diplomatically by closing off Macau to North Koreans. ★

RED BECKMAN SPEAKS

NUMBER 23

MARTIN "RED" BECKMAN: Democratic Candidate for Governor A Tax Protestor & Proud of It!

FREE!

25 years ago, back before Democrats had become so un-American, Red Beckman ran for governor of Montana as a vocal Tax Protestor on the Democratic ticket. Now at the ripe old age of 88, he says that if there has been any change, it certainly hasn't been for the better. Take a look at what Red was saying back in 1992, taken from his campaign flyer . . .

* * *

RED BECKMAN says that he is a Jeffersonian Democrat. Thomas Jefferson, labeled a "tax protestor" by Kind George III, said "good government" is less government.

RED BECKMAN says America needs less government.

RED BECKMAN says he is the only tax protestor (Democrat or Republican) who has filed as a candidate for governor.

RED BECKMAN says it was tax protestors who fought and won the American War of Independence.

RED BECKMAN says it was tax protestors who wrote the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States of America.

RED BECKMAN says tax protest is our political heritage.

RED BECKMAN says only tax protestors should be allowed to run for public office.

RED BECKMAN says if we had been electing tax protestors to public office, we would not have multi-trillion dollar federal debt.

RED BECKMAN says politicians gave us the Workman's Compensation problem which forced employers to take their business and jobs to other states.

RED BECKMAN says state politicians and educators have been sleeping in the same bed and we now have an educational system that is too expensive, inefficient, wasteful and corrupt, RED BECKMAN says politicians sell promises to raise campaign money, but he has no promises for sale.

RED BECKMAN says campaign promises are usually worthless after the elections.

RED BECKMAN BACK IN 1992

THE LAW THAT NEVER WAS
Vilified, suppressed by the IRS.

RED BECKMAN says health care facilities should not be paying property taxes and health care people should not be paying income taxes (state or federal).

RED BECKMAN says if you really want to know the solution to our state and nation's problems, you will want to read his latest book Walls In Our Minds.

* * *

Today, Red's not running for governor, but he won't give up trying to get the truth out about the income tax scam and what is happening to the United States. Red Beckman spent most of the whole decade prior to his run for governor speaking publicly nationwide and funding the research for that illuminating gem of information showing the fraud in the passage of the 16th Amendment. And for more than 30 years following the publication of THE LAW THAT NEVER WAS, and with various standing rewards of $25,000, $50,000 and even $100,000 to anyone that could show anywhere in the IRS Code any law requiring ordinary Americans (earning only wages) to file a 1040 form, nobody had ever found it! ★

Trump Needs to Jettison Iran Hawks

• Tehran Conference underlines global support for Palestine—and challenges president

By Kevin Barrett

TEHHRAN, Iran—The expression “Tehran conference” usually refers to the historic meeting of Franklin Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, and Joseph Stalin in November 1943. But a more recent Tehran conference—the Sixth International Conference on the Palestinian Intifada—held Feb. 21 and 22, may turn out to be just as historic.

Nearly 1,000 people from roughly 80 nations around the world, including heads of parliament and other high-level dignitaries, met in Tehran to vow all-out support for the Palestinian liberation struggle. And although all of Iran’s highest officials participated, including President Hassan Rouhani, Parliament Speaker Ali Laranjani, military chiefs Mohammed Bagheri and Mohammad Ali Jafari, and Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif, it was Supreme Leader Sayyed Ali Hosseini Khamenei’s eloquent voice and long-term commitment to the Palestinian cause that carried the most weight.

This author was one of nine Americans participating as part of a non-governmental-organization-sponsored sub-delegation of about 50 pro-Palestine alternative writers and intellectuals from around the world. The U.S. contingent spanned the ideological spectrum from the left (Sander Hicks) to the right (E. Michael Jones) with most falling somewhere in between.

Many of the U.S. participants have been marginalized in their own country for voicing strong anti-Zionist positions, including critiques of Jewish tribal power that are taboo in the West. People like E. Michael Jones of Culture Wars magazine, Mark Weber of the Institute for Historical Review, and Mark Glenn of Crescent and Cross are vilified and banned from mainstream discourse in the West, yet welcomed and appreciated in Iranian intellectual circles. Jones calls Tehran “the capital of the free world.”

Likewise, two anti-Zionist Naturei Karta rabbis, Yisroel Dovid Weiss and Ahron Cohen (whose car was destroyed in a 2014 arson attack), are despised and excluded from the American and British Jewish communities, yet wildly popular in Iran.

Khamenei opened the conference by laying out the problem in no uncertain terms: “[Israel’s] entity and identity are dependent on the gradual destruction of the entity and identity of Palestine.” In other words, Zionism equals genocide. Khamenei termed Zionism a “cancerous tumor” and said the cure is fearless resistance, which will, in stages, gradually put Israel into an untenable situation, leading to a peaceful ending of the Zionist experiment in aggression, wholesale theft of land and resources, and Jewish-superiority apartheid.

The Bilderbergers: Puppet-Masters of Power?

An Investigation Into Claims of Conspiracy at the Heart of Politics, Business & the Media

Since 1954, a discrete and select group of wealthy and powerful individuals have attended a private, yearly conference to discuss matters of their choosing. This group represents European and North American elites, as well as new talent and rising stars, from the worlds of politics, business, media, academia, the military and even royalty, and has included household names such as Margaret Thatcher, Henry Kissinger, and Prince Philip. In recent years, their numbers have featured David Cameron, Tony Blair, Angela Merkel, Bill Clinton, and David Rockefeller. They are “the Bilderbergers,” named for the hotel in the Netherlands where their secret gatherings were first hosted. Investigative writer Gerhard Wisnewski explores the numerous claims of conspiracy that swirl around the group, revealing names of participants, their agendas, and their goals. The scene opens in the sun-kissed seaside resort of Vouliagmeni, Greece, where Wisnewski tries to observe and report on a Bilderberg conference. He soon attracts aggressive, unwanted attention from police and undercover security, and it is made abundantly clear he is not welcome. From this rude introduction, Wisnewski works backward to the founding of the Bilderbergers in 1954 by a shadowy Jesuit with secret service allegiances. Examining records and hidden reports, the author uncovers the true history of the organization, alliances among key individuals, and their common interests. Softcover, 288 pages, $25. Add $4 S&H inside the U.S. (Outside the U.S. email bookstore@americanfreepress.net for S&H.) sent high-level representatives to the conference. These included Hamas, Islamic Jihad, Fatah, and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. All of those sometimes feuding groups have managed to get on the same page during the past few months, thanks in part to the Iranian commitment to bringing together all the main currents of Palestinian freedom fighters. Hezbollah, the Lebanese group fighting Israeli occupation and ISIS, was also represented.

Iran's commitment to unifying the world's pro-Palestine forces is especially heroic given current political realities. In recent years, Israel has succeeded in consolidating its power not only in America and the West, but also in the backward, dictatorial portion of the Arab world. Saudi Arabia and other Gulf oil sheikhdoms are now openly allied with the Zionists.

Against this background, President Donald Trump and some of his advisors have taken extreme anti-Iran positions that conflict with the U.S. national interest. Two weeks after his inauguration, Trump called Iran "the world's leading terrorist state." Yet, in reality, Iran and its ally Hezbollah are the world's leading fighters against the only two "Islamic" militant groups that target the West: al Qaeda and ISIS.

So why does Trump think Iran sponsors terrorism? Because his good friend Israeli Prime Minister Bibi Netanyahu and his Zionist son-in-law Jared Kushner tell him so. The Zionists consider anti-Israel resistance groups "terrorists." Iran supports them. That is why the Zionist-dominated United States has gone along with Israeli efforts to label Hamas, Hezbollah, and Islamic Jihad "terrorists."

The U.S. is shooting itself in the foot by siding with the Zionists against the people of the Middle East and the world. A Chinese delegate at the conference expressed shock when I told her I was from the United States.

"What?" she asked me. "You are from America? Why do the Iranians let you in?"

While American businesses are basically banned by their own Zionist-run government from trading with Tehran, other nations, led by the Chinese, are making money by dominating global trade with the Iranians, the most productive, technologically sophisticated people in the Middle East.

Will the Trump administration ultimately let go of its Iran hawks, like former National Security Advisor Michael Flynn, and decide to pursue America's interests rather than those of Israel? If that day ever comes, a whole lot more Americans—businessmen and tourists, not just dissident writers like this one—will be borrowing the book title from Flynt and Hillary Levrett and Going to Tehran. ★

Mass Immigration Taxing Environment

• Hoards of legal, illegal immigrants put strain on water, resources, wildlife

By Frosty Wooldridge

If we, the citizens of the United States, fail to change course by our actions, what you see in the graphs and the numbers will occur within the next 30 years. If we fail to rescind the 1965 Immigration Reform Act, then yes, we are doomed to add a total of 138 million more people by then, on our way to a population of 625 million in the U.S. alone within 80 years.

Oceanographer Jacques-Yves Cousteau inspired me to start scuba diving back in 1963. He remains one of my environmental heroes.

“We must alert and organize the world’s people to pressure world leaders to take specific steps to solve the two root causes of our environmental crises—exploding population growth and wasteful consumption of irreplaceable resources. Overconsumption and overpopulation underlie every environmental problem we face today,” Cousteau said.

Cousteau spells it out clearly, but he’s not alone. Another 100 top world experts say the same thing in their own books published over the past 30 years. Yet world leaders ignore this issue like the bubonic plague. Why? That’s the mystery of the century. Somehow, the world’s elites think none of the consequences will reach them. They are exceedingly incorrect.

As our immigration-driven population juggernaut smashes into our country by 2050—a scant 33 years from now—we will no longer be able to change it at that point. We face devolving into a Third World country. Worse, we face the “energy slave,” oil, being exhausted within this century. Oil drives everything.

What’s the big deal, environmentally? Fact: Humans burn 94 million barrels of oil, 24/7. We exhaust billions of tons of particulate and carbon that soaks into the ground and absorbs into the oceans. It kills the soil and acidifies the seven seas. Experts tell us that humans expect to burn nearly 200 million barrels of oil daily by 2030—just 13 years from now. How? China adds a net gain of 27 million new cars annually. According to the book, The Long Emergency: Surviving the Converging Catastrophes of the Twenty-first Century by James Howard Kunstler, by 2030, China will burn 98 million barrels of oil daily.

But look at this catch. Walter Youngquist, a retired professor of geology from University of Oregon, argues:

As we go from this happy hydrocarbon bubble we have reached now to a renewable energy resource economy, which we do this century, will the “civil” part of civilization survive? As we both know there is no way that alternative energy sources can supply the amount of per capita energy we enjoy now, much less for the 10 billion

BABYLON'S BANKSTERS THE ALCHEMY OF DEEP PHYSICS, HIGH FINANCE & ANCIENT RELIGION

The modern-day financial crisis is nothing really new, reveals master researcher Joseph P. Farrell in Babylon's Banksters. Banking has been tinkered with and controlled for the past thousand years of human history. See how a seductively simple formula devised by a large and powerful Chinese family led to the “credit default swaps” bust. Read how astrology and a fascination for gemstones played into the banking operations of the super-rich. What are the long-term goals of the most powerful international cabals? In this latest installment of his remarkable series of books on alternative science and history, Farrell outlines the consistent pattern and strategy of bankers in ancient and modern times, and their desire to suppress the public development of alternative physics and energy technologies, usurp the money creating and issuing power of the state, and substitute a facsimile of money-as-debt. Here, Farrell peels back the layers of deception to reveal the possible deep physics that the “banksters” have used to aid them in their financial policies. NEW from
AFP!

[people] expected by 2050. And energy is what keeps this game going. We are involved in a Faustian bargain—selling our economic souls for the luxurious life of the moment, but sooner or later the price has to be paid.

Can you imagine what's going to happen when we don't have fuel to fill the tractors that are used to plant or harvest crops or to run the trucks to transport food to your table? What will happen when 8.3 million hungry people in New York City double to 16.6 million by 2050, or 11 million people in Los Angeles double to 22 million, or 5 million people in Chicago jump to 10 million—all within 33 years?

Remember: To a large extent, legal and illegal immigration drive this nightmare in the U.S.

Does anyone honestly think we will be able to solve our environmental problems with an additional 138 million people?

What about fresh water? Seven states already face water shortages.

What about the quality of life in our cities as 35 of them double their populations?

What about species extinctions in the U.S. from habitat loss?

"Upwards of 100 species . . . mostly of the large, slow-breeding variety . . . are becoming extinct every day, because more and more of the Earth's carrying capacity is systematically being converted into human carrying capacity," writes Daniel Quinn, citing a study by Norman Myers for Oxford University. "These species are being burnt out, starved out, and squeezed out of existence."

As Florida's population jumps from 18 million to 36 million people by 2050, how do we solve extinction rates of alligators, pumas, snakes, butterflies, eagles, egrets, pelicans, and marsh hawks? Do you have any ideas?

In the book, A Final Warning, author James Lovelock warns:

At this point, it's almost certainly too late to manage a transition to sustainability on a global or national scale, even if the political will to attempt it existed, which it clearly does not. Our civilization is in the early stages of the same curve of decline and fall as so many others have followed before it.

While the media portrays the "symptoms," the cause and connection escape them. Ironically, that cause also escapes every national leader from the president, legislators, and state governors right down to average citizens.

Population equates to a mathematical problem. Presently, it is still subject to our control, but the passage of time without understanding and action will move it beyond our reach and authority.

Let's begin a national conversation on immigration and create a positive future for our children. ★

If you Google: Nursing Sisters Port Dover, you’ll see a book by Harry B. Barrett. In that book are pictures of my grandmother and her heroic nursing sisters during WWI, including one sister who was mentioned in wartime dispatches for her heroism along with a certificate presented to her by King George V. (In spite of her “valor in the face of the enemy,” a woman was ineligible to receive the Victoria Cross!)

There are hundreds of letters and pictures, including one of the ambulances my grandmother donated (before we entered WWII) encouraged by her friend, suffragist CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT, who moved around the corner from my grandmother in New Rochelle, N.Y. As a youngster, I remember all the sewing machines and their many friends at my grandmother’s house sewing thousands of pre-die cut clothes together to keep children warm during the brutally cold English winters. Carrie Chapman Catt also founded the League of Woman Voters and is most famous for her Congressional speech resulting in the 19th Constitutional Amendment that gave woman the right to vote in 1920!

All this took place after Susan B. Anthony died in 1906 in Rochester, N.Y. where my grandfather baked his first loaf of BOND BREAD in 1915, resulting in 50 factories producing over 1.5 million loaves of bread a day . . . a Horatio Alger success story which enabled my grandmother to help further woman’s rights. She was inculcated with a sense of moral responsibility by her family who emigrated here in 1720 and then moved to Canada because they were Loyalists to the King and the Church of England.

BESET WITH MODERN AILMENTS

Now, history repeats itself, except this time their counterparts have problems with clogged arteries, heart attacks, prostate problems and cancer by stonewalling a Man’s right and a Woman’s right to flush DEUTERIUM (a major cause of Aging and Cancer) and Pathogens out of their bloodstreams . . . so these diseases aren’t handed down to generations of our unborn children and grandchildren!!

Go to www.JohnEllis.com/NIH and you can watch an informative video which explains just how our E5 Water Machine works. And, just below the video, there is a green link to multiple NIH.Gov studies demonstrating the adverse health effects of deuterium in your water.

The video shows that by changing water properties, small amounts of this water can treat vast quantities of ordinary water (even an aquifer or lake) so Municipalities can supply this healing water right at the tap!! Go to our website JohnEllis.com/NIH with a link to the National Institutes of Health. (Deuterium is found in every bottle or glass of water you drink!)

However, DDW (Deuterium Depleted Water) is only part of the battle for better health as noted by Nobel Prize Winner Albert Szentgyorgy: “Hydrogen is the Fuel of Life” because, unlike ordinary DDW, by also changing Water Properties and increasing the Hydrogen Bond Angle between atoms (so it has more room to hold viruses and environmental contaminants in suspension) they can be eliminated from the bloodstream with almost immediate results (note typical cancer charts)!

Small amounts of this water can treat millions of gallons of ordinary water (as the Municipal Video shows) including markers for disease, so they can be flushed from a human waste lagoon or the blood stream along with heavy metals (Flint, MI: thousands of children have irreversible brain damage)!!

VIOLATING FARADAY’S LAW?

Here’s what a man in Zurich said: “I have had your E5 Water Machine for only 24 hours. I had gross swelling in my legs and hadn’t worn ordinary shoes in years. Your water immediately destroyed the markers for elephantiasis in my blood stream!! I lost all the water weight in my legs and I bought a pair of shoes size 10 ½. Also unlike ordinary DDW, using electrolysis (a battery and two thin pieces of stainless steel, anode and cathode, not a stack that negates power) your water produces so much Hydrogen it violates Faraday's Law... producing the energy needed to stop disease!!"

AMAZING POWER PROPERTIES

A company that produces hydrogen generators for trucks found the required power slowly went down over 24 hours (a cascading effect that is immediate once it has been treated) from 31 amps to less than 1 amp making the same amount of hydrogen by adding only 20 drops of this water to ordinary water in their hydrogen generator (another website video)! Using this technology, you can power your car, heat your home and produce electricity for pennies. Watch the Video that shows examples PROVING you are drinking the wrong water . . . just as food supplies energy, this water provides the "BODY ELECTRIC" energy that powers your heart (defibrillator to stop a heart attack, pacemaker)!

COOK WITH THIS WATER!

Since it's made by boiling and cooling, this energy is imparted to your food, unlike ordinary water that absorbs energy (from your food and body) to reach equilibrium! Also, since DEUTERIUM studies (150 ppm) show it kills fruit flies and disease carrying mosquitoes, you don't want to remove all the Deuterium!! Instead, INCREASE the Hydrogen Bond Angle (so it holds more contaminants in suspension along with Deuterium) and flush Deuterium along with viral diseases from the bloodstream with almost IMMEDIATE results!! Note the typical cancer charts: The "purest water" is USELESS because it doesn't do the above. They still have cancer!

MAKING DDW YOURSELF

Using our E5 Water Machine, you can make two types of DDW for PENNIES per GALLON . . . not $300 for a small bottle! This is done by heating and cooling water hundreds of times per gallon (not just once!) to change the properties of that water. We have 13 International Patents and 332 FDA Tests. You can judge the blatant dishonesty in the water industry using simple electrolysis. A child in science class could do that!

Associate Says, 'Trump No Anti-Semite'

• Jewish American insists claims of bias against president are “ridiculous”

AFP recently sat down with a pro-Israel Jewish supporter of Donald Trump to get his views on, among other things, the mainstream media and the recent charges that anti-Semitism is growing in America under the billionaire populist president.

By Dave Gahary

After a “reporter” asked President Donald J. Trump a question at an impromptu press conference on Feb. 16, the fake news media launched an attack against the America-first billionaire-turned-politician, pulled right from the pages of their rotten playbook.

What topic was so compelling and important that the elite media felt it was absolutely imperative to devote page after page of their publications on? The answer is anti-Semitism.

When Trump fielded a question toward the end of his 77-minute press conference from “Jake Turx” of Ami (“My People”) magazine—which caters to the Orthodox Jewish community in the U.S. and Israel—things got ugly, at least according to the fake news media.

The “reporter,” whose real name is Abraham Jacob Terkeltaub, was born in Brooklyn, N.Y. He is a humorist and satirical writer, and the first Hasidic Jew to become a member of the White House press corps.

Turx stated at the press conference in part: “What we are concerned about and what we haven’t really heard you address is the uptick in anti-Semitism and how you intend to take care of it.” Turx was alluding to a rash of alleged bomb threats against Jewish community centers across the country. Out of the 69 “threats” directed to 54 of these centers in 27 states, all have been hoaxes.

After Turx rambled a bit more, Trump said, “OK, sit down. I understand the rest of your question.”

That was all the fake news media could stand.

- “Trump clashes with Jewish reporter over anti-Semitism question,” lied The Hill.

- “Anne Frank Center Slams Trump: ‘Do not make us Jews settle for crumbs of condescension,’” screamed The Washington Post.

- “ADL Head: Speak Up Now Against Anti-Semitism, Mister President,” ordered The Jewish Daily Forward.

- “Trump’s long-tangled history of anti-Semi-

You don’t get more Judeophilic than Trump, so what’s all the squealing? Is it to convince the American public that everyone who does not agree with every policy pushed by the Zionist lobby is “anti-Semitic”?

tism,” later changed to “Trump too late in denouncing anti-Semitic acts, critics say,” squawked USA Today. And on and on and on.

In his speech before Congress on Feb. 28, however, Trump cleared up any confusion as to where he stands on the issue of anti-Semitism. That seemed to pacify the fake media, at least for now anyway.

However, in order to find out what a man on the street thought about all this nonsense, AMERICAN FREE PRESS interviewed Steven I. Marcus, a 74-year-old pro-Israel Jewish man, who voted for Donald Trump. Marcus worked in the construction and development business, where he met Trump on at least two occasions, the first of which was an unpleasant one.

“In 1977, I was with a large development and construction company in New York City, and Trump was converting a hotel into condominiums on 42nd Street,” Marcus explained to AFP. “That was one of his first jobs on his own, I think.”

Marcus explained where he met Trump.

“I walked into my office on a Friday morning and Trump was [there],” he began. “I’ll tell you the truth: He was a skinny kid with dirty blond hair in those days. And he had his feet across my desk, and he’s on the phone. I said to him, ‘Excuse me, this is my office. Can I have my phone back? Hang it up.’ He says, ‘Wait, I’ll just be a couple of minutes.’ I said, ‘No, you’re getting out of my office now,’ and I used Greenblatt claims that President Trump has not spoken out forcefully enough against “anti-Semitism,” despite the fact that Trump has condemned it.

a couple of explicit words. I said, 'If you don't get off, I'm gonna throw you through the window.' I had a bad temper."

Trump left, but it wasn't over for Marcus.

"Five minutes later the chairman of the board of the parent company called me up and said, 'What the hell are you doing? This is one of our customers!' I said, 'You know what? Let him go in your office and put his feet up on your desk. I don't want them on my desk.'"

Marcus was destined to meet the future president again.

"About eight-and-a-half years later on a job I ran into Donald, and he was very nice," said Marcus. "Of course, when I mentioned to him what happened eight-and-a-half years ago, he didn't remember it. Whether he really didn't remember it or not, that's what he said."

Marcus, who worked in the same industry as Trump, is in a unique position to counter the fake news media's lies about Trump.

"Guys who went to work for me in the company called Titan, when they left, they went to work for [Trump]," explained Marcus. "He paid them fantastic salaries, gave them cars, and everybody I spoke to who worked for him said, 'He's the best boss I ever had.'"

Marcus added: "Contrary to what [the fake news media says], he loves women executives that work for him. He said they're tougher than the men, and he pays them top dollar."

AFP asked Marcus his views on the mainstream media.

"The liberal press absolutely lies about him and distorts it," he said. "It's disgusting, it really is. I don't read a newspaper anymore. The only thing I watch, I watch the Fox News channel, because it's the only one where I feel I get to know what's going on that's real. The rest of it is all made up, with all these liberal people."

He said, "Today these liberals, guys like this [George] Soros, who's spending all this money, hiring these people—when you see it on television, and you see these people at marches against Trump, it's all paid."

Marcus continued: "These liberals can't accept the fact that Hillary lost. God, I don't know what this country would be like if she had won. I tell you the truth, I think she would have wound up being worse than Obama, who was an abortion."

Marcus feels the Republicans in Congress should get behind the president.

"My only worry is that the Republicans in Congress have the backbone to back him," he said. "They gotta realize, the fate of this country lies in what this guy can do. If they don't back him, we're not even gonna be a country anymore. I strongly believe we need the wall. We need more than the wall, but the wall is a good beginning. Keep these people out and get rid of all these rapists and criminals who are being hidden. And I want to see him pull the federal money from every one of these states that won't abide by federal law."

AFP asked Marcus—who's experienced real anti-Semitism—about the Jewish attack on Trump, and whether he believes attacks against Jews are as serious as the fake news media claims they are.

Executive Director Steven Goldstein of the little-known Anne Frank Center for Mutual Respect (recently re-named) says this about Trump's efforts to keep illegal aliens out of America and institute a sane vetting process for other immigrants: "As President Trump prepares orders to wall out Mexicans and shut out refugees to America, today marks one of the most hateful days in our nation's history."

They're more interested in [making money] than the fact that they're supposedly protecting Jews.
—Steven Marcus

"I personally am saddened that so many stupid Jews are loyal Democrats," he began. "My own sister, you can't argue with her. And the joke is—and it's not even a joke—Trump's daughter converted to Judaism, his son-in-law is a Jew, his three grandchildren are being raised as Jews, and to call him anti-Semitic is asinine. He's anything but that."

Marcus touched on his experience with true anti-Semitism.

"My first major job in construction, I was working for a company. They were basically Catholic," Marcus explained. "I was the only Jew working there, but the owner didn't care because I produced. But the people I worked with were not crazy about Jews. And I wound up making it bad for them, because I worked twice as hard. And the boss kept saying, 'Why is Marcus doing all this work and you people aren't following him?'"

Marcus continued: "So I fought anti-Semitism. You know what? It is what it is. I don't care. Nobody's ever come after me to kill me, thank God, or anything else. You can't make the whole world love you. And, unfortunately—now, I'll be very blunt—a lot of Jews go off the deep end. They're sick people, these ultraliberals. You know, my father used to say, 'The definition of a conservative is a liberal whose daughter gets raped.' They're all great at telling you and me how to live, except that they don't follow the same. Nobody can love everybody. People hate the Irish. People hate the Italians. They hate the Germans. They hate this. There's always going to be people hating different people for different reasons. It doesn't bother me."

AFP also asked about the Jewish groups spreading the lie that hatred against Jews is running rampant.

"You know what they want?" he asked. "They're raising money. They're more interested in themselves than the fact that they're supposedly protecting Jews. These groups have their own agenda. They're all ridiculous."

He added: "They [should just] shut up and forget about it. Everybody doesn't have to love me because I'm a Jew. You don't have to love a person because he's an Italian. Everybody has their different thoughts. But if you start running around carrying signs, all you're gonna do is make people hate you more. So I don't put any weight on any of this stuff. People want to be anti-Semitic, they can be anti-Semitic."

Marcus summed up his feelings about Trump and America.

"I may be a weird Jew because I'm a conservative, but I believe in America," he said. "This is my country, and my religion and everything else is secondary and third. I'm an American, and I believe in Donald Trump. I know sometimes he talks from the hip. Who cares? That's why we elected him. He says what he believes." ★

Journalist Convicted for Self-Defense

• Man who drew weapon to scare off rampaging crowd found guilty on 21 counts

By John Friend

A recent court decision involving a political activist's attendance at a Black Lives Matter (BLM) protest last summer demonstrates just how tyrannical America has become in an era of political correctness, hostility toward the Second Amendment, and a glorification of minorities and leftist activists.

In Portland, Ore., Michael Strickland, a 37-year-old conservative blogger, journalist, and activist who maintains the popular YouTube channel "LaughingAtLiberals," was recently found guilty of 21 felony and misdemeanor charges stemming from his presence at a BLM protest in early July of last year. Strickland, known for his coverage of radical leftist events, was filming a BLM protest in downtown Portland on the evening of July 7 when he was confronted by a large group of hostile BLM protesters, some of whom were masked, armed with flag poles, and making threats against Strickland while advancing toward the citizen-journalist.

It must be noted that radical leftist protesters, often masked, violently assaulted their political opponents—and even innocent bystanders—repeatedly throughout the 2016 election season, causing personal injury and private property damage on numerous occasions. Additionally, BLM protests often devolve into riots, where violence, looting, and destruction take place on a massive scale.

This booking photo from the Multnomah County Sheriff's office shows Michael Strickland, who was arrested for displaying a gun during a Portland, Ore., rally. Strickland had pulled the legally registered firearm after a group of Black Lives Matter protesters—known for their unrestrained violence—pursued him.

Fearing for his safety and being completely outnumbered, Strickland briefly drew his Glock semiautomatic handgun to ward off the hostile crowd that was hounding him. Amateur video footage of the protest and confrontation shows Strickland retreating while being pursued by a group of BLM protesters before eventually brandishing his firearm, for which he had a legal concealed carry permit, only to quickly reholster his weapon after the situation was de-escalated and the crowd backed off.

"What happened was there were about 10 or 12 people that surrounded me," Strickland explained at the time. "They started pushing and shoving me. They were using their flag staffs as weapons. I'm backing up, they kept coming toward me. . . . That's why I drew. . . . I was outnumbered, they were pushing and shoving me. . . . I feared for my life, because I was outnumbered, and they had weapons."

Shortly after the confrontation, a SWAT team arrived and Strickland was apprehended and taken into custody, charged with menacing and disorderly conduct.

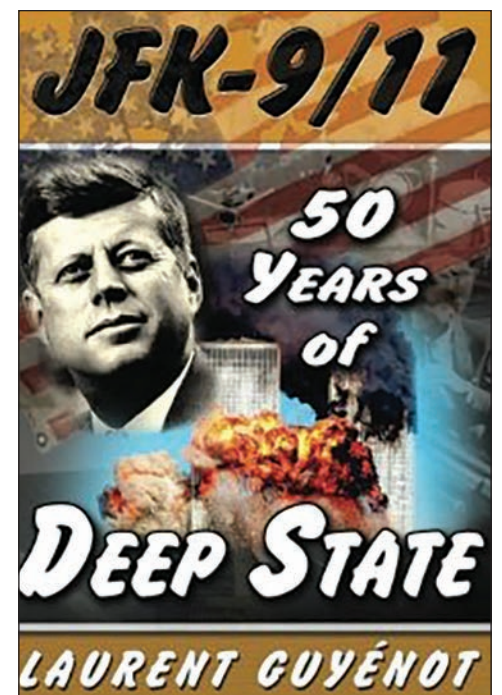

At Strickland's recent trial, Judge Thomas Ryan found the conservative activist guilty of 10 counts of unlawful use of a weapon, 10 counts of menacing, and one count of second-degree disorderly conduct for brandishing his legally concealed firearm at protesters that fateful evening. While Strickland argued he was acting in self-defense, prosecutors contended he did not have a legitimate fear of being in imminent danger or of being physically hurt.

A shocking exposé of Deep State atrocities from the JFK murder to the attacks of 9-11

JFK-9/11

JFK-9/11 by Laurent Guyénot assembles the most significant and well-documented "deep events" of the last 50 years into a coherent narrative of the "deep history" of the United States and its sphere of influence. The result is both a concise introduction for newcomers (a "deep history for dummies"), and an insightful perspective for informed readers. Relying strictly on documented evidence and state-of-the-art JFK and 9/11 research, the book cuts through the layers of government and mainstream media lies to expose the hidden powers at work in the Empire's underground foreign policy. It documents the role of undercover and paramilitary operations, psychological warfare and disinformation campaigns, and above all false-flag terror in the course of world politics since the beginning of the Cold War, and increasingly since Sept. 11. The book is divided into two parts: the first deals with the underlying forces of the Cold War, the second with the driving forces of the War on Terror. The period investigated begins just before Nov. 22, 1963 and peaks on Sept. 11, 2001, the two deep events that weigh most heavily on the unfolding of American and world history. The author highlights their structural similarities, examines how one made the other possible 38 years later, and follows the underlying thread leading from the one to the other, in the hope of anticipating and circumventing future atrocities. Video footage of the confrontation shows Strickland retreating while being pursued by a group of BLM protesters before brandishing his firearm.

Strickland is scheduled to be sentenced in May.

The reaction to Strickland's conviction from Second Amendment and free speech activists has been justifiable outrage.

"Given all the violence that we've seen at Black Lives Matter and other leftist demonstrations, Strickland clearly had cause to fear for his life," Chris Cantwell, a leading libertarian and gun rights activist, writer, and host of "The Radical Agenda," a popular podcast, recently explained to AFP in an email exchange. "He displayed his weapon in its holster and warned the demonstrators as he walked backward, and they continued to pursue him as he retreated, so he pulled out his gun and pointed it at his assailants without firing a shot. He showed extraordinary restraint, and if the self-defense laws of Portland, Ore. do not allow for this kind of measured defensive posturing, then they will certainly—and almost certainly already have—gotten people killed. If a gun owner has to wait until his assailants are on top of him to draw his weapon, then at that point he has little choice but to fire. George Zimmerman comes to mind. Strickland may have saved a lot of lives that day, not least of all his own."

Unfortunately, Strickland's case has received little mainstream coverage, a fact recently pointed out by Mark Walters of "AmoLand.com," a pro-Second Amendment website. This is a clear-cut case of "self-defense, so compelling that the nation needs to see and hear it, yet it is blatantly and intentionally neglected by the 'dominant' and failing 'mainstream media,'" Walters recently wrote.

After reviewing the footage of the confrontation, an objective viewer would have to find Strickland's actions were entirely justifiable given the circumstances in which he was operating. As readers of this newspaper know all too well, BLM protests are often violent, and those viewed as hostile or unsympathetic to the movement are regularly targeted by radical leftist activists. Strickland was one such example.

Cantwell believes Strickland should be praised, not condemned, for his actions that day.

"He shouldn't just be set free; he should be praised for his courage and his restraint," Cantwell told AFP. ★

Supreme Court Decision Forces Political Correctness on Juries

By Matthew Raphael Johnson

Thanks to a landmark ruling by the Supreme Court on March 6, jury deliberations will now have to take place under the ever watchful eye of the state in order to monitor for politically incorrect thoughts.

It all started in 2007 when Miguel Angel Pena-Rodriguez was arrested for sexually assaulting two teenage girls. The two young women had identified him to the police, and it should have been a simple open-and-shut case. There was little doubt about the veracity of the children, and he was eventually convicted of two misdemeanors and was forced to register with the state as a sex offender.

The problem comes a short time after the conviction, when two of the jurors in the trial accused another of making racist statements. The juror in question reportedly said that Pena-Rodriguez is likely guilty, because Mexican men tend to treat women poorly.

The offending juror, who had a law enforcement background, also stated that Pena-Rodriguez's alibi witness was not to be trusted because he was an "illegal immigrant" and a criminal himself.

The defense sought to exploit this, arguing that the one juror's personal views deprived Pena-Rodriguez of a fair trial.

The case went all the way to the Supreme Court, and, on March 6, the majority reached a decision. While they did not go so far as to rule in favor of granting a new trial, the justices said that sometimes courts should "consider the evidence of the juror's statement and any resulting denial of the jury trial guarantees."

Writing for the majority, Justice Anthony Kennedy argued: "The unmistakable principle underlying these precedents is that discrimination on the basis of race, odious in all aspects, is especially pernicious in the administration of justice."

The question is, were the juror's comments unreasonable and cause for the Supreme Court to take the case?

Sexism and so-called "machismo" are very much a part of Mexican culture, and the juror was not wrong to bring this up during jury deliberations.

On May 20, 2016, even the BBC ran a story describing a feminist march in Mexico, condemning the very same "machismo" mentioned in the offending comment above.

Marisol Zarco Reyes, a psychologist at Mexico State Council for Women, stated that "Machismo is a hegemonic model of masculinity in Mexico. The man who shouts, who has to hit people to show his power. Yes, there's machismo in Mexico."

In 2012, a major study showed that violence makes Mexico one of the worst places for a woman to live in the G12. "Mexico invented the term 'machismo,' and among the poorest rural and indigenous populations, a woman's role is to stay at home," said Blanca Rico, executive director of Semillas, Sociedad Mexicana Pro Derechos de la Mujer, a Mexican women's rights group.

"Violence against women is generally accepted or acceptable, socially speaking," said Lyric Thompson, a writer with the International Center for Research on Women. Yet none of this can be mentioned now during jury deliberations for fear of having the case thrown out of court.

According to the National Gang Center at the Justice Department, gang violence is a non-white affair. Non-whites make up just over 90% of all gang members with Hispanics making up about half of the total. But if a person's race is mentioned in a gang violence case, the criminals could go free.

Statistics show that "machismo" leads to greater levels of domestic violence, but its truth is now illegal in jury deliberations. The assumption of the court is that all races are identical in behavior in terms of culture, crime, and civil life.

To believe that the court is really arguing that a reasoned comment about Hispanic male "machismo" is identical to irrational discrimination based exclusively on appearance is beyond credibility.

The sad reality is, non-white criminals, otherwise convicted of their crimes, will now have lawyers combing through jury deliberations seeking "offending" statements that might be seen as accepting race and ethnicity as actual human categories. This will have to be the case since no defense lawyer will leave this stone unturned in the face of a conviction.

For this to occur, there must be a court reporter present for all jury discussions. If not, then how can a "fair trial" be assured? How can the public know if the jurors adhere to political correctness? ★

A Simple Solution to U.S. Financial Woes

- Stop empire building, cut taxes, cut regulations, end the drug war, end the welfare magnet

By Rep. Ron Paul

It can be a challenge to follow the pronouncements of President Donald Trump, as he often seems to change his position on any number of items from week to week, or from day to day, or even from minute to minute. Consider his speech in late February at the Conservative Political Action Conference (CPAC). It was reported as “fiery” and “blistering,” but it was also full of contradictions.

In the speech, Trump correctly pointed out that the last 15 years of U.S. military action in the Middle East have been an almost incomprehensible waste of money—$6 trillion, he said—and that after all that U.S. war and meddling, the region was actually in worse shape than before we started.

It would have been better for U.S. presidents to have spent the last 15 years at the beach than to have pursued its Middle East war policy, he added, stating that the U.S. infrastructure could have been rebuilt several times over with the money wasted on such militarism.

All good points from the president.

But then minutes later in the same speech he seemed to forget what he just said about wasting money on militarism. He promised he would be “upgrading all of our military, all of our military, offensive, defensive, everything,” in what would be “one of the greatest military buildups in American history.”

Printing money out of thin air destroys the currency, hastening a U.S. economic collapse, and places a cruel tax on the middle class.

This “greatest” military buildup is in addition to the trillions he plans on spending to make sure the U.S. nuclear arsenal is at the “top of the pack” in the world, as he told the press recently. And that is in addition to the trillion-dollar nuclear “modernization” program that is carrying over from the Obama administration.

Of course, when it comes to nuclear weapons, the United States already is at the “top of the pack,” having nearly 7,000 nuclear warheads. How many times do we need to be able to blow up the world?

Where is the money going to come from for all this? Is the president going to raise taxes to pay for it? Is he going to make massive cuts in domestic spending? In the same CPAC speech, Trump reiterated his vow to “massively lower taxes on the middle class, reduce taxes on American business, and make our tax code more simple and much more fair for everyone.” And that’s all good. So it’s not coming from there.

Will he cut domestic spending? The president has indicated that he also wants a massive infrastructure modernization program launched in the near future. The plan will likely cost far in excess of the trillion dollars the president has suggested.

That leaves only one solution: printing money out of thin air. It has been the favorite trick of his predecessors. While he correctly condemns the $20 trillion national debt passed down from previous administrations, his policies promise to add to that number in a massive way. Printing money out of thin air destroys the currency, hastening a U.S. economic collapse and placing a very cruel tax on the working and middle classes as well.

Following the president’s constantly changing policies can make you dizzy. That’s a shame, because the solution is very simple: End the U.S. military empire overseas, cut taxes and regulations at home, end the welfare magnet for illegal immigration, and end the drug war. And then get out of the way. ★

Hidden History: An Exposé of Modern Crimes, Conspiracies, and Cover-Ups in American Politics

from
AFP

The U.S. government has spent as much time covering up conspiracies as it has helping the American people. In Hidden History, you will see the amount of effort that our government has dedicated over the past 50 years to lying and covering up the truth to the world.

Starting with the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, author Don Jeffries chronicles a wide variety of issues that have plagued our country’s history. Whether it is the assassinations of MLK and RFK, Iran-Contra, the Oklahoma City bombing, TWA Flight 800, voting fraud, or 9/11, every major disaster or war that we’ve witnessed has somehow been distorted by those who are supposed to be protecting us. Jeffries also delves into extensive research on a host of other important topics that will shock many conspiratologists and laymen alike.

Whether you’ve only heard bits and pieces of these stories or you’ve read several books on the topics, Hidden History is the book that belongs in every conspiracy truther’s library, as the information included here has never been collected together in any other published work available.

So sit down, strap in, and get ready to be shocked and awed by how much has been hidden by our “free and open” government over the past 50 years. Updated for 2017, this version features a new introduction by AFP reader favorite Roger Stone.

Russia & America

• Natural allies in the battle for civilization

By Patrick J. Buchanan

The founding fathers of the Munich Security Conference, said Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.), would “be alarmed by the turning away from universal values and toward old ties of blood, and race, and sectarianism.”

McCain was followed by Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov, who called for a “post-West world order.” Russia has “immense potential” for that, said Lavrov. “We’re open for that inasmuch as the U.S. is open.”

Now, McCain is not wrong. Nationalism is an idea whose time has come again. Those “old ties of blood, and race, and sectarianism” do seem everywhere ascendant. But that is a reality we must recognize and deal with. Deploring it will not make it go away.

But what are these “universal values” McCain is talking about? Democracy? The free elections in India gave power to Hindu nationalists. In Palestine, Hamas. In Lebanon, Hezbollah. In Egypt, the Muslim Brotherhood, then overthrown in a military coup welcomed by the world’s oldest and greatest democracy. Have we forgotten it was a democratically elected government we helped to overthrow in Kiev?

Democracy is a bus you get off when it reaches your stop, says Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan, autocrat of Ankara, a NATO ally.

Is freedom of religion a “universal value”? Preach or proselytize for Christianity in much of the Islamic world and you are a candidate for martyrdom. Practice freedom of speech in Xi Jinping’s China and you can wind up in a cell.

As for the Western belief in the equality of all voluntary sexual relations, in some African and Muslim countries, homosexuals are beheaded and adulterers stoned to death.

In Nuristan Province in U.S.-liberated Afghanistan this month, an armed mob of 300 besieged a jail, shot three cops, and dragged out an 18-year-old woman who had eloped with her lover to escape an arranged marriage. Beaten by relatives, the girl was shot by an older brother with a hunting rifle and by a younger brother with his AK-47.

Afghan family values. Her lover was turned over to the husband. An “honor killing,” and, like suicide bombings, not uncommon in a world where many see such actions as commendable in the sight of Allah.

McCain calls himself an “unapologetic believer in the West,” who refuses “to accept that our values are morally equivalent to those of our adversaries.”

Lavrov seemed to be saying this: Reality requires us here in Munich to recognize that, in the new struggle for the world, Russia and the U.S. are natural allies not natural enemies. Though we may quarrel over Crimea and the Donbass, we are in the same boat. Either we sail together or sink together. Does the foreign minister not have a point?

Unlike the Cold War, Moscow does not command a world empire. Though a nuclear superpower still, she is a nation whose GDP is that of Spain and whose population of fewer than 150 million is shrinking. And Russia threatens no U.S. vital interest.

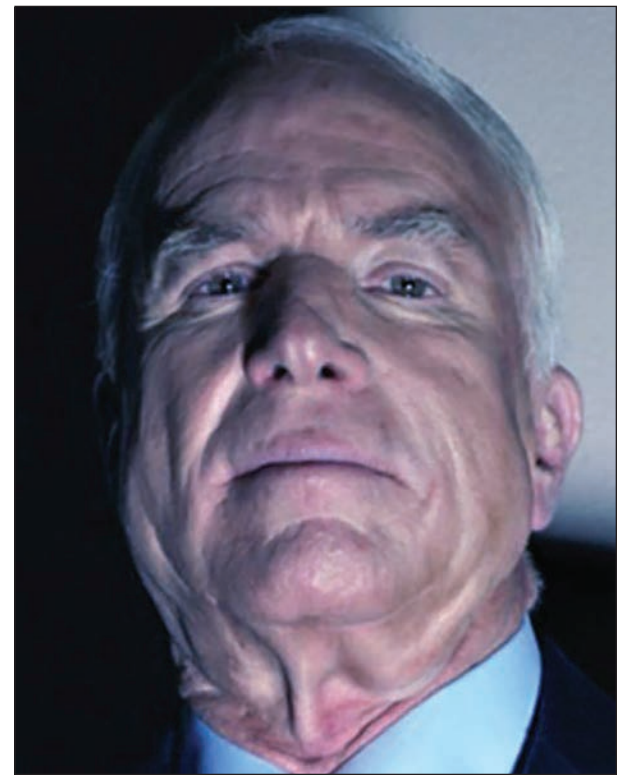

Where America is besieged by millions of illegal immigrants crossing from Mexico, Russia faces to her south 1.3 billion Chinese looking hungrily at resource-rich Siberia and Russia’s Far East.

The China that is pushing America and its allies out of the East and South China Seas is also building a new Silk Road through former Russian and Soviet provinces in Central Asia. With an estimated 16 million Muslims, Russia is threatened by the same terrorists and is far closer to the Middle East, the source of Sunni terror.

Is Putin’s Russia an enemy, as McCain seems to believe?

Before we can answer that question, we need to know what the new world struggle is about, who the antagonists are, and what the threats are to us.

If we believe the struggle is for “global democracy” and “human rights,” then that may put Putin on the other side. But how then can we be allies

The John McCain Russian saga is bizarre. According to the website “True Pundit,” “Sen. John McCain as a presidential candidate in 2008 directly and illegally propositioned Vitaly Churkin, the Russian ambassador to the United Nations, to donate to the McCain/Sarah Palin GOP ticket, according to documents released by Wikileaks. Adding intrigue to an already bizarre story, “True Pundit” recently contacted Russia’s embassy in New York for comment from Ambassador Churkin regarding McCain’s unorthodox written request for money. . . . [D]iplomatic staff reported Ambassador Churkin had died suddenly at the embassy. NBC News has framed the death as suspicious.”

of President el-Sissi of Egypt and Erdogan of Turkey, and the kings, emirs, and sultans of Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Kuwait, and Oman?

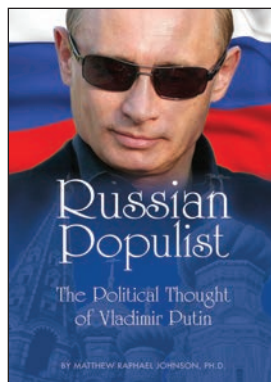

But if the new world struggle is about defending ourselves and our civilization, Russia would appear to be not only a natural ally, but a more critical and powerful one than that crowd in Kiev.

In August 1914, Europe plunged into a 50-month bloodbath over an assassinated archduke. In 1939, Britain and France declared war to keep Poland from having to give up a Prussian port, Danzig, taken from Germany under the duress of a starvation blockade in 1919 and in clear violation of Woodrow Wilson’s Fourteen Points and the Danzigers’ right of self-determination. In the two wars, 50 million to 100 million died.

Today, the United States is confronting Russia, a huge and natural ally, over a peninsula that had belonged to her since the 18th century and is 5,000 miles from the United States. “We have immense potential that has yet to be tapped into,” volunteered Lavrov. But to deal, we must have “mutual respect.” Hopefully, President Donald Trump will sound out the Russians, and tune out the Beltway hawks. ★

Caterpillar Stings Surprise, Plague Unwitting Victims

By the AFP Staff

Be careful in your garden: Caterpillars may look like friendly creatures but some have a venomous “sting” which can result in hospital visits if severe symptoms develop.

An AMERICAN FREE PRESS subscriber contacted us recently to inquire about a sting from a saddleback caterpillar (Acharia stimulea). Others have called to complain of painful stings from the “furry puss caterpillar” (Megalopyge opercularis). The furry puss caterpillar is considered to be the most dangerous caterpillar in the U.S. and Central America.

More than 50 species of caterpillars in the Americas are capable of inflicting very painful stings. Caterpillars often have fibers and hairs as a form of protection against predators. Sometimes these contain powerful toxins delivered when the skin is penetrated.

Entomologist Don Hall at the University of Florida told National Geographic: “A puss caterpillar sting feels like a bee sting, only worse. The pain immediately and rapidly gets worse after being stung, and can even make your bones hurt.”

Hall also told the magazine: “How bad the sting hurts depends on where you get stung and how many spines are embedded in your skin. People who have been stung on the hand say the pain can radiate up to their shoulder,” and last for weeks.”

While AFP cannot give medical advice, National Geographic said, “Although there are no defined medical procedures if you do get stung by a [poisonous] caterpillar, Hall recommends covering the area with cellophane tape [or duct tape] and then ripping it off to remove any spines that remain in the wound.”

Cleaning the affected area is recommended, and, by all means, seek medical attention if need be. Other online sources recommend applying ice packs to reduce the stinging sensation, and following that with a paste of baking soda and water. If the victim has a history of hay fever, asthma or allergy, or if allergic reactions develop, contact a physician immediately. ★

High Priests of Modern Medicine Censor Subject of ‘Toxic Burden’

• Doctor risks wrath of establishment by blasting vaccine additives

By James Spounias

There are some cracks in the medical-industrial complex, and one of the most electric issues facing medicine today is the matter of vaccinations, discussion of which can result in heated conversations akin to religious fervor.

Dr. Daniel Neides, a medical doctor associated with the prestigious Cleveland Clinic, got himself into hot water by writing a column on vaccinations, that says, in part:

How can you call it preservative-free, yet still put a preservative in it? And worse yet, formaldehyde is a known carcinogen. Yet, here we are, being lined up like cattle and injected with an unsafe product. Within 12 hours of receiving the vaccine, I was in bed feeling miserable and missed two days of work with a terrible cough and body aches.

My anger actually stems from a constant toxic burden that is contributing to the chronic disease epidemic. And yet the government continues to talk out of both sides of its mouth. We want our citizens to be healthy and take full advantage of the best healthcare system in the world (so we think), yet we don't treat our bodies with the love and attention they deserve.

Our air, water, and food supplies are completely compromised, and so it is time for us to take matters into our own hands.

We live in a toxic soup. There are over 80,000 chemicals used in various industries country-wide. There are over 2,000 new chemicals being introduced annually. We breathe in these chemicals through exhaust, eat them in our processed foods (just look at the labels that have 20 or 30 ingredients and good luck pronouncing their names), textiles (clothing, bedding, furniture), and personal care products, including make-up, deodorant, shampoos, and soaps.

Toxins accumulate in our fat cells if they are not eliminated and interrupt normal bodily functions. Your body should be a finely tuned machine with all of the organ systems working in concert together. But when toxins disrupt normal function, problems can occur.

Those problems include cancers, auto-immune diseases, neurologic problems like autism, ADHD, and Parkinson's disease, and the most prevalent chronic diseases like obesity, diabetes, and heart disease.

Neides is not “anti-vaccine,” even though the comments in his article did get him into trouble with the high priests of medicine, who simply do not allow any dissent on the controversy.

The “toxic burden” has been written about repeatedly by this writer and many others—who have been ignored or dismissed as cranks—for a long time.

Will the fact we are dying because of toxic burden, among other preventable causes, force public outcry to bring light to how pollution affects us and lead to a concrete plan to minimize toxins and detoxify us all? Or will we continue to ignore the issue, to our own peril, and get caught in the tangled web of manufactured distractions of no consequence? ★

Give Up the Cell Phone Data!

- California bureaucrats ordered to release data on health risks

By James Spounias

The government in California may soon have to fork over documents revealing, among other things, that the use of cellular telephones may be harmful to health.

On Feb. 24, a California superior court judge ruled the state of California must release records from the state's Environmental Health Investigations branch that may contain cautionary advice on cellphone use.

The Environmental Health Department initiated a study of cellphone use as early as 2010, generating review of studies and commentary.

Joel Moskowitz, Ph.D., director of the University of California, Berkeley School of Public Health, requested the documents under California's Public Records Act. The state refused, resulting in Moskowitz suing for release under the act.

Moskowitz told San Francisco's KPIX 5 News, "I would like this document to see the light of day, because it will inform the public that there is concern within the California Department of Public Health that cellphone radiation is a risk, and it will provide them with some information about how to reduce those risks."

Asked why he believes the state is fighting release of the records, Moskowitz said, "They claim that this would lead to chaos and confusion among the public. I suspect that they were afraid of the reaction from the telecommunications industry should they publish this document. In fact, they even argued that in their brief."

Moskowitz's attorney, Claudia Polsky, told KPIX that the law on releasing public documents, which are funded by taxes, states that they may not be released if they are in draft or preliminary form, are not kept or retained, or if the harm of releasing them outweighs the public interest.

The court, having reviewed state documents in chambers, found the document was not in preliminary form, noting that mere wordsmithing had occurred for at least seven years, and that because the report existed, the state could not claim exemption based upon the second hurdle, that records were not kept.

The judge was less than impressed with the state's argument that releasing the information would cause more harm than good, stating that to keep information from the public about possible risks to health, because the public couldn't act responsibly if they learned of it, is "paternalistic," according to Polsky.

Other states, such as Connecticut, have issued similar guidance urging that people limit cellphone use and, as much as possible, keep cellphones away from direct contact with the body.

The state of California may appeal the court's ruling, which would create more delay in release of the records. ★

EU on the Verge of Disintegration

- Is pet project of the CIA, Bilderbergers and would-be world rulers near death?

By Ronald L. Ray

Recent events across the Atlantic raise numerous questions about the continued viability of the New World Order's (NWO) European Union (EU). The return of nationalism, increasing financial instability, and the mass invasion of racially, religiously, and culturally foreign hordes have put in doubt the ability of the CIA's and Bilderbergers' pet project to deliver on its elitist promise.

Following World War II, the financial pharaohs in the West restructured the Old Continent to favor their internationalist empire. A key first step was the duplicitous effort at European "integration," begun as the European Coal & Steel Community and transformed gradually into the present EU. Less known is the key role of the CIA in the EU's establishment, demonstrated through now-declassified State Department and CIA documents.

Established in 1947 out of the remnants of the Joseph Hieronim Retinger (1888-1960) was a Polish political adviser. He was a founder of the European Movement that would lead to the creation of the European Union. He was also involved in founding the notorious Bilderberg group. Above he is shown recuperating from a near-fatal dose of assassin's poison.

WWII Office of Strategic Services run by Gen. William Donovan, the new CIA under Allen Dulles and Gen. Walter Bedell Smith already promoted the integration concept heavily in 1948, through the American Committee for a United Europe (ACUE) operated by Donovan and a shifting group of CIA agents, according to documents revealed in 2000.

In 1958, the ACUE provided 53.5% of funds for Joseph Retinger's European Movement, according to London's The Telegraph. Much funding was also provided through ACUE from the Ford and Rockefeller Foundations, among other globalist- and government-tied business groups. Washington, D.C., continued to promote European integration at least into the 1970s.

On Feb. 27, Michael Best at "Muckrock.com" revealed that the CIA was additionally involved over the years in the globalists' notorious Bilderberg conferences from their outset in 1954, when Paul Nitze attended, according to declassified documents Best obtained. The "Bilderberger boys" likewise promote the EU. In fact, both Retinger and Prince Bernhard, the founders of the Bilderberg group, had close ties to the CIA, according to “The Ruling Class,” an article in the Oct. 1, 1976 New Times that was found in CIA files.

The U.S. State Department similarly had a hand in the EU project. A June 11, 1965 memo urged Vice President of the European Economic Community (EEC) Robert Marjolin to pursue monetary union secretly, until “adoption of such proposals would become virtually inescapable,” according to The Telegraph.

Allegedly, the CIA’s interest in establishing the EU was to contain Soviet communism and ensure ongoing U.S. economic and political hegemony in the region. NATO was the other anchor of this plan. But by the 1980s, the European NWO-types had begun to make the EEC/EU a power in its own right, one of three regional administrations under a future one-world government. Now, the EU juggernaut appears to be in danger, at least on the surface.

The overweening efforts of Zionists and their globalist governmental henchmen to overwhelm white, Christian Europe with violent, criminal masses of so-called refugees has awakened growing numbers to the cultural and genocidal danger. Nationalists and populists in Europe are on the political ascendancy, particularly in Eastern Europe. In the west, Marine Le Pen of the National Front is a leading contender for president of France. Thousands of Germans have demonstrated regularly against the demographic destruction of their nation.

But the economics reveal more. For example, General Motors is withdrawing from the EU market, with its Vauxhall manufacturing plant up for sale. And the untenable monetary situation seems set to implode.

According to the website “MishTalk,” the Trans-European Automated Real-time Gross Settlement System (Target2) shows massive trade and debt imbalances between EU member nations on a level now exceeding those preceding the 2011 financial crisis.

Essentially, goods flow from Northern Europe, especially Germany, to Spain, Italy, and Greece. But only IOUs for payment are provided, leaving Germany with Following charges of criminal activity and sexual assaults, Marine Le Pen, the head of the Front National political party, took a trip to northern France in late January to see conditions. Ms. Le Pen, who could be France’s next president, was barred from entering the camp. The populist leader says liberal globalization has brought crime and terrorism to France.

a recent 796 billion euro uncollectable credit in the Target2 system. Conversely, Italy had a 364 billion euro trade deficit (debt), which it cannot pay.

Moreover, capital is fleeing the southern Eurozone to the north as part of the cycle. “MishTalk” quotes “Euro intelligence” to the effect that “international banks based in London sell bonds to the Bank of Italy from their Frankfurt-based branches—so that the asset purchases result in transfers of central bank money from Italy to Germany.” But instead of investing the profit into Italian bonds, the international banks also invest in Germany.

In other words, it appears the Rothschild empire is deliberately exacerbating intra-EU economic disparities, in order to cause economic collapse and debt default to the south, leaving primarily Germany, under the European Central Bank system, to pay for the bankers’ “losses.” The Rothschilds still seek the destruction of Germany, only this time by financial means. But who will rule a devastated Europe overrun by foreigners?

The only solution is for the nations of Europe to jettison the phony EU and repudiate the equally phony debt “owed” to central and private banks, establish an international barter system for trade, and issue their own debt-free money. Otherwise, the banksters will, under current law, seize nearly every last penny from pensions and savings accounts to recover their self-created “losses,” impoverishing hundreds of millions of Europeans. ★

FACT vs. FICTION: Bohemian Grove: Cult of Conspiracy

They secretly meet for 17 days each July in a remote “sacred grove” of ancient redwood trees in the deep forests surrounding San Francisco.

Some 1,500 in number, their membership roll is kept secret, but includes the super-rich, blood dynasty member families of the Illuminati, heavy-hitting corporate chieftains and high government officials. Mingling among them are a number of Hollywood movie stars, Broadway producers, famous entertainers, musicians, authors, painters, and poets. Great statesmen and—so we’re told—gentlemen. The names you’ll recognize: Former U.S. Presidents William Howard Taft, Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover, Dwight Eisenhower, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan, George H.W. Bush, and George W. Bush, former FBI and CIA directors; former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger; international bankers; heads of big oil companies, and corporate CEOs frolic in the redwoods. Some of the most famous creative people in history—Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Jack London, Will Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, and Art Linkletter—all “let their hair down” here. There are stories . . . some of them too strange to believe. Tales of global leaders plotting the world’s destiny there in secret “war rooms,” hand-picking presidents and future leaders from the Bohemian Grove. Reports of occult rituals being conducted by these same powerful men, clad only in hooded red, black, and white robes, offering an effigy of a human being to be sacrificed by fire to a towering 45-foot stone owl god. Sometimes, they discard the robes, don women’s clothing and parade around onstage in theatrical productions or—if the spirit so moves them—they wear no clothes! But is any of it true? This book proposes to answer many of the most frequently asked questions about Bohemian Grove, investigate the rumors, fully document what is known to be true, and destroy a few misconceptions.

Now the truth can finally be revealed. Mike Hanson is a first-hand eyewitness who has been inside the Bohemian Grove. In the summer of 2000, Mike secretly “infiltrated” the grove. He filmed several hours of footage, including the entire “Cremation of Care” ritual, which is published in full here for the first time. He peers behind the moss-covered limbs and trunks of ancient, gnarled trees to discover what really goes on at Bohemian Grove. Bohemian Grove: Cult of Conspiracy promises to expose the secrets of the redwoods. Foreword by Texe Marrs.

Ukraine Imploding

• U.S. puppet regime unable to control growing chaos

By Ronald L. Ray

The New World Order (NWO) never sleeps. Here at home, the euphemistically named war machine called the “intelligence community” and morally bankrupt Democrats and Republicans in Congress are fighting total political war against President Donald Trump’s nationalist and populist agenda, pitting themselves against the vast majority of citizens, who support him. But while this circus distracts Americans, the NWO-sponsored anarchy abroad continues. Case in point: the increasingly ungovernable chaos in Ukraine, where corrupt politicians, renegade militia, and international banksters are destroying the land and people.

The situation in the former “breadbasket of Europe” is what was intended also for Russia by the hidden world controllers, had not Vladimir Putin come to power. The Ukrainian government, installed in a bloody CIA/Mossad coup, is run nearly entirely by corrupt, wealthy Jewish oligarchs, not by the increasingly destitute Ukrainians themselves.

Simultaneously, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) employs its standard lending dirty tricks—loans in exchange for “austerity” and “privatization”—to siphon off Ukraine’s natural resources and manufacturing infrastructure, and to steal the little remaining wealth of the Ukrainians.

In medieval times, it was a great nation, but Ukraine has since become a Balkanized third-world country. Its government perilously refuses to accept the secession of the historically Russian Crimea and its electoral choice to return to the mother country. The rulers of Ukraine wage an ongoing terrorist war against the residents of the southeastern separatist provinces and would-be republics of Lugansk and Donetsk in the Donbass region. And the supposedly “loyal” and “ultra-nationalist,” but increasingly independent, Azov Brigade militia ensures increasing anarchy through its brutal tactics.

In January this year, the Ukrainian government decided to launch another military offensive against the Donbass, violating the Minsk Agreements. Apparently, they foolishly hoped to gain sympathy from the West just ahead of the meeting between Ukraine’s President Petro Poroshenko and President Donald Trump in early February. The seeming intent was also to prevent the lifting of sanctions against Russia. But they were beaten badly by the “rebels” and received fierce criticism from both Russia and the West into the bargain.

Poroshenko suffered additional humiliation when Trump met first with Poroshenko’s political rival, the equally corrupt former prime minister, Yulia Tymoshenko—perhaps signaling growing U.S. impatience with its incompetent puppet regime. Nevertheless, it is unlikely the Trump administration would favor Tymoshenko, who calls for martial law—essentially total war—in the Donbass region. That action could provoke a Russian military response, and Trump is unlikely at present to favor such a move, given his desire for improved U.S. relations with Russia.

PETRO POROSHENKO

Later in February, the allegedly “ultra-nationalist” and “neo-nazi” Azov Brigade militia, which has supported the U.S.-installed Ukrainian government, assaulted and took control of a water purification plant in Donetsk, which ironically also supplies water to other parts of Ukraine. What could have become a humanitarian disaster for Donbass and neighboring regions was averted, as the Ukrainian military saw itself forced to attack its own “ally” and drive the Azov Brigade from the area.

Adding to the latest round of deadly troubles, members of another Ukrainian “ultra-nationalist” group, the Samopomich Party, began about the same time to block shipments of coal from the separatist Donetsk province to the rest of Ukraine. Seventy-four thousand rail cars of coal were kept from crossing the disengagement line, which separates the hostile parties, as the political extremists from western Ukraine asserted that no coal should be accepted from the Donbass “traitors.”

But the Ukrainian people are the ones who would suffer the most, while still enduring winter, as the critical fuel supply for electricity and heating is depleted. Prime Minister Volodymyr Groysman called for an end to the blockade, which he said was threatening 300,000 Ukrainian jobs, but the government seemed incapable of acting to restore the coal supply. Some have suggested the blockade is intended to bring down Poroshenko.

Strangely enough, the situation is complicated even further by a Ukrainian politician’s attempt to submit to Trump an unofficial “peace proposal” for war-torn Ukraine. Andriy Artemenko, who is trying to portray himself as the Ukrainian Donald Trump—nevertheless also tainted by political scandal—was able to convey the ideas through a circuitous network involving the “Russian-American” Jewish oligarch and Trump business partner, Felix H. Sater, Trump’s personal attorney, Michael Cohen, and Cohen’s brother’s father-in-law, Alex Oronov.

The unrealistic proposal, requiring Russia to lease Crimea from Ukraine, apparently found no real interest from Trump and was rejected immediately by Russia. Even more strangely, Oronov turned up dead on March 2. ★

Here is a photo of one of the families living in old Cold War bunkers in the city of Marinka and Petrovsky in the Donetsk Oblast, Ukraine. They live there for two reasons: either their houses have been demolished by government and/or opposition bombings or they can afford no other dwellings. Humanitarian aid groups try to provide as much water as possible, but many of the people of Ukraine are suffering.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

U.S.A. Must Protect the Borders

The establishment and the deep state were shocked when Donald Trump won the presidency. They misunderstood how angry the American voter is. It was not part of the plan.

That plan involves an alien model of governing that is being forced on us without our knowledge or consent. It is a movement toward world government, and it has been around for over 100 years in the U.S. They started with the Federal Reserve, which is not part of our government.

Their model elevates the government over the people. Our Constitution disagrees, however, saying that we, the people, are sovereign over the government. Our country is the only place that has this, and oh, how they hate it.

As of today, Christianity is the biggest threat to their plans. Why? Because most Christians understand what's going on, and they believe in a higher power than government.

We've been made aware of all of this only because of the alternative news media. Journalism, as we once knew it, is obsolete. They're nothing more than "spin" today, trying to change our views. I might call it propaganda.

We are a country with borders and laws. Trump just put a brief ban on people coming from other countries. He's not the first. Obama did it for six months, and Jimmy Carter did it. It's nothing new. And if we can't protect our borders and know who is coming in, we've lost our nation.

Farrakhan and 9/11 Truth

I enjoyed Kevin Barrett's Louis Farrakhan article on page 22 [in AFP's Feb. 27 & March 6 issue]. It is nice to see Barrett writing for AFP. Although Farrakhan still insists on calling whites "blue-eyed devils," he is a phenomenal speaker and has revealed some very important truths over the years, such as the dominant Jewish role in the African slave trade and Israel's involvement in taking down the WTC on Sept. 11, 2001.

In a previous speech on 9/11, Farrakhan publicly credited Victor Thorn as a "top 9/11 scholar." Is Farrakhan an AFP subscriber? If not, he surely seems to be an AFP reader.

Not All Religions . . .

I am writing to AFP today regarding the letter from Mr. C. Koulik [in AFP's issue 7&8], a Catholic. The issue concerned an ad that seems to identify "religion" as the cause of world unrest. Really, that charge could certainly identify some sects, but not all religious faiths.

It is natural for mankind to give the creator his due. The enemies of all religion are, by and large, the enemies of AFP. AFP's Catholic writers seek the truth in religion as well as in world and national affairs. Caution when accepting ads is a good idea.

How Mexico Will Pay for the Wall

We all hear President Donald Trump's good speeches about building the wall and that Mexico is going to pay for it. However, there has only been some nebulous talk of a trade arrangement for financing the wall.

To make it very simple, Trump should impose a 5%-10% federal payroll tax on the wages of all aliens, whether illegal, legal, green card, visas, refugees etc. This payroll tax will pay for construction and patrolling of the wall and for other expenses related to immigration. The tax will be handled the same way as it is for Social Security and FICA payroll deductions. Various states can do similar payroll deductions to recover their alien impact costs. The tax may have the added benefit of discouraging new aliens from coming to America, thus saving American jobs. Also, it might encourage aliens already here to leave. This would make many job openings for citizens.

Keep it simple. With aliens paying the tax, fewer dollars will be sent out of the country, hence Americans will not have to pay for the wall.

Give Policies a Chance

I have been a subscriber since AFP was The Spotlight in 1986, and I would like to address the other deplorables who voted for Donald Trump. I can hardly sit still when the "fake" media uses its power to blast President Trump's orders on protecting our borders. One of the duties of the president is to protect our borders. During his second term, Barack Obama did everything in his power to destroy the U.S. Now the people who backed him—the Democratic Party, the one-world government, and the wealthy elites—are doing everything to undermine Trump.

We have always been a nation that welcomed immigrants, but stop for a second and think. An immigrant has to have skills or an education that would benefit America. No nation can survive an influx of people who are on the dole with their hand out. We can't even take care of our own.

Mexico is happy to see all the poor Mexicans crossing their borders into the U.S. The money that is sent back to Mexico only helps their economy. Meanwhile, all of the Mexican citizens entering the U.S. have become a strain on the U.S. economy. A pregnant woman should never be allowed to have a green card to work in the U.S. She is able to go to any hospital to have her baby and then that baby is given citizenship. Under current U.S. law, this "anchor baby" would then also give his parents citizenship.

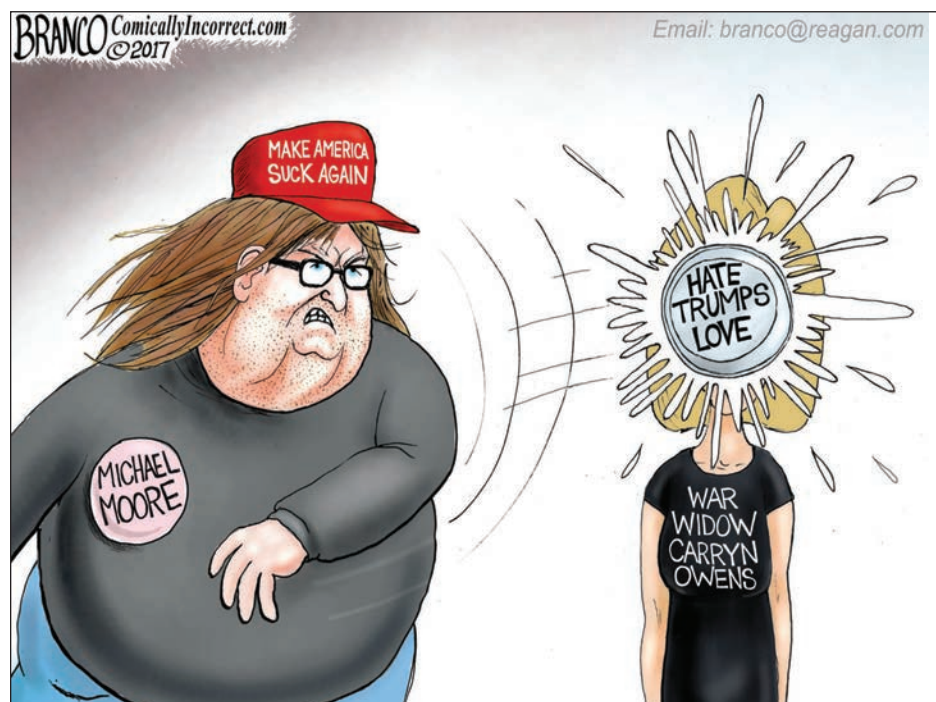

It is important that Trump's immigration policies are enforced. The fake news media can milk a whole week out of just one illegal immigrant who was deported. The problem is that this alien knew he was wrong when he entered the U.S..

I would ask all of the deplorables, who voted for Trump, to back him and give him a chance to make the changes that we so desperately need.

Battle of the Billboards

• Citizens in North Carolina show true meaning of freedom of speech

By Dave Gahary

A seven-word, anonymous billboard running along a stretch of road between Greensboro and Winston-Salem, N.C. has many locals up in arms, feeling that the message “delivers an antiquated, misogynistic, even transphobic message.” They’ve decided to fight back, by putting up their own billboard, with plans to spread them across not just North Carolina, but the entire country. What are the seven words that so disturbed a “liberal” contingent of the Winston-Salem community last month? “Real Men Provide. Real Women Appreciate It.”

Winston-Salem (population 241,218), nicknamed the “Camel City” (think cigarettes) is the most religious city in the state, and is extremely racially diverse, with a mix of 47% white, 35% black, and 15% Hispanic.

A local business owner, Molly Grace, who was tipped off to the billboard on Facebook, had organized a peaceful protest on Feb. 26 to counter what she and others feel is the sign’s negative message: “that men provide and that women should be thankful.”

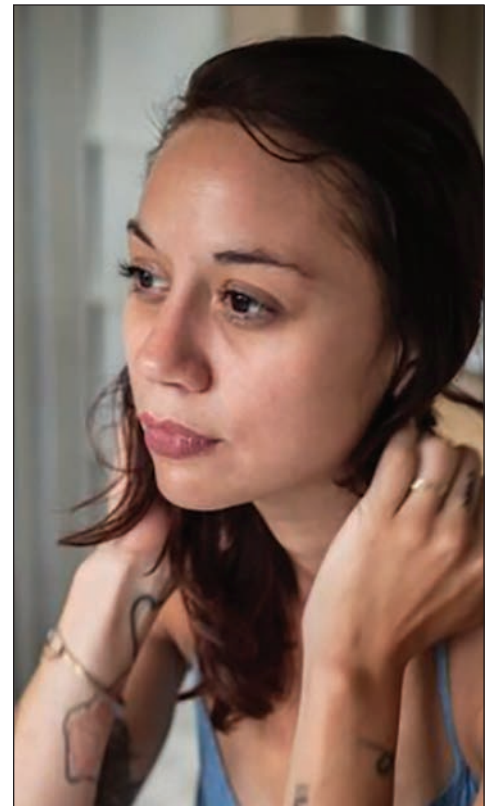

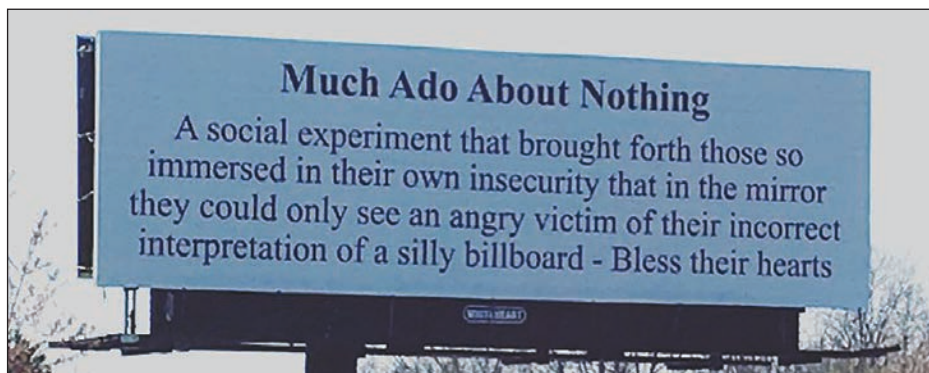

AMERICAN FREE PRESS sat down with Ms. Grace, a white, heterosexual, 30-year-old, single mother of one, who relocated to the Tar Heel state from western Pennsylvania seven years ago. She explained why she was offended by the message and what she is doing about it.

“The message was a hurtful one, and regardless of what the author intended it to mean—which is still unclear—the words that were chosen send an emotionally harmful message to young girls and boys,” she told AFP.

Others see the message as extremely positive, especially in the black community, where, as Rev. James David Manning pointed out in an interview with this writer several issues ago:

“What has happened to families, where black men have abdicated their responsibility toward their children, [impregnating] these girls, and then leaving them to fend for themselves, not knowing where their next meal is coming from, living on government handouts, living in rat- and roach-infested buildings . . . this is across the board in the black community.”

Obviously, for that segment of the black community that falls into this category, the slogan “Real Men Provide” takes on a completely different meaning, especially for black women.

Top left, the original billboard that ticked off Ms. Molly Grace (right) so badly. Below, left, is the replacement billboard scolding Ms. Grace for taking it all so seriously. It reads: “Much Ado About Nothing. A social experiment that brought forth those so immersed in their own insecurity that in the mirror they could only see an angry victim of their incorrect interpretation of a silly billboard—Bless their hearts.” We say more power to both parties for exercising their free speech rights.

Inspired to counter the message, Ms. Grace organized a rebellion of sorts.

“Several people and myself tossed around different ideas of what we could do that would send a more positive message to counter the negative one,” Ms. Grace explained. “We decided that purchasing our own billboard with a positive, all-inclusive version of that message would be a really good way of doing that.”

Those attending the protest event voted and selected “People of Quality Don’t Fear Equality” for the words that will adorn their billboards.

Ms. Grace, who has received nasty phone calls and emails as well as death threats, is not deterred. “We are raising the funds to not only get one billboard in the Winston-Salem area, but we’re actually looking at making this an ongoing project and trying to get the same billboard all over other areas throughout the country,” she explained.

So far the project has garnered $3,627 in donations. “The billboard in Winston-Salem will cost about $2,000,” states the donation website. “We are hoping to exceed that goal and raise $10,000 to purchase several more billboards with the same message around the country.”

Curiously, on March 4, the seven-word billboard that caused such a stink was replaced by a new 39-word one: “Much Ado About Nothing. A social experiment that brought forth those so immersed in their own insecurity that in the mirror they could only see an angry victim of their incorrect interpretation of a silly billboard—Bless their hearts.”

Ms. Grace touched on why this message offends her as well.

“The thing that we were protesting is not ‘nothing,’ so shame on you for trying to tell us that the things that are very important to us are nothing,” she said.

So the next time you’re out driving around the country—wherever you are—keep your eyes peeled for politically motivated billboards. Whether you like their messages or not, it’s a peaceful way to express your opinions and exercise your First Amendment rights. And that’s what free and open debate should be about—not violent tactics in which one group or another tries to physically assault those who hold differing opinions, causing mayhem, property damage and, sometimes, serious physical injury. ★

Dave Gahary, a former submariner in the U.S. Navy, prevailed in a suit brought by the New York Stock Exchange in an attempt to silence him.

Vitamin C Plus

VITAMIN C PLUS starts with PureWay-C®, which is a form of vitamin C using non-GMO European made Ascorbic Acid, tests suggest stays longer and has more efficacy than "regular" vitamin C. Masquelier's® Grape OPCs have proved to be the missing link in the vital collagen cross-linking with elastin that builds healthy tissue, especially blood vessel wall tissue. Resveratrol has become very popular in the past decade since we first introduced it into our Vitamin C Plus because it has a reputation as an anti-aging factor. Masquelier's® Grape OPCs and Resveravine® are made in France by distinguished "plant extract" firms.
